

The SPECTRUM

“Achieve the wisdom of knowledge of Truth as this will enable you to wisely follow the Laws of The Creation.”

DEDICATED TO BRINGING YOU THE TRUTH

VOLUME 1, NUMBER 9

NEWS REVIEW

$ 3.50

FEBRUARY 1, 2000

What If Everything You Thought You Knew About AIDS Was Wrong? An Interview With Christine Maggiore

IN THIS ISSUE:

Update From Our Editor, p.2

Finding Your Natural State
Of Inner Energy Balance, p.15

Colloidal Silver: Exploring
A Great Healing Legacy, p.17

BIG BROTHER INTERNET:
Nameless & Faceless In Cyberspace, p.33

Remember To Look At The View, p.35

Part VIII Of A Series
Native American Perspectives:
Facing Our Destiny, p.36

Hilarion:
Letting Grow By Letting Go, p.40

When Disclosure Serves Secrecy, p.42

The News Desk, p.45

Praise From Our Readers, p.59

1/24/00 RICK MARTIN

“If objective and unbiased medical research is important to you, then you owe it to yourself to consider the facts summarized in this book. It dares to present a wide range of research findings that raise critical questions about commonly accepted HIV/AIDS theory. You may never think about AIDS the same way again!”

• Anthony Robbins—Author: Awaken The Giant Within and Unlimited Power

“Misinformation about AIDS is more contagious than the disease itself. By giving us an accurate understanding, Christine Maggiore is fighting an epidemic of fear. Do you want to be afraid or do you want to be informed?”

• Gavin de Becker—Author: The Gift Of Fear

In 1992, Christine Maggiore took what is commonly referred to as “the AIDS test”. The results of that test would turn her world upside-

(Please see An Interview With Christine Maggiore, p.3)

The SPECTRUM
9101 West Sahara Ave., PMB 158
Las Vegas, NV 89117

FIRST CLASS MAIL

Pre-sorted
First Class
U.S. Postage PAID
Bakersfield, CA
Permit 758

The paper covering the full spectrum of news and information to help you to follow the First Law of The Creation. The Highest (First) Command of The Law of The Creation states: "Achieve the wisdom of knowledge of Truth, as this will enable you to wisely follow the Laws of The Creation." In other words, go forth and gain as much knowledge and experience as you can.

TO SUBSCRIBE:

To order call 1-877-280-2866 toll free.
Outside US 1-661-823-9695.
$35.00 for 12 issues in US 1st Class Mail, $45.00 Canadian/$50 Foreign.
Please call for quantity subscription rates.

EDITORIAL POLICY:

Opinions of The SPECTRUM contributors are their own and do not necessarily reflect those of The SPECTRUM staff or management. The SPECTRUM will always correct any meaningful error of fact.

Permission is hereby granted to anyone to quote The SPECTRUM in whole or in part, so long as full credit of this source is given, including contacting address and phone number.

PUBLISHING INFORMATION:

We intend to offer, to the best of our ability, the Truth, however it comes to us, in order to allow you to make up your own mind and be able to make informed decisions about things that impact your daily life. We hope to broaden your choices and allow you to create for yourself a better world.

All manuscripts submitted must be either typewritten and double-spaced, or preferably on disk. If return is desired, a stamped self-addressed envelope is required. The SPECTRUM assumes no responsibility for unsolicited manuscripts.

The SPECTRUM is published by The Spectrum Newspaper, Inc., at 9101 West Sahara Ave., PMB158, Las Vegas, NV 89117. Our email address is: <thespectrum@tminet.com>.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS:

Send your old, incorrect address label along with your new address and ZIP code to The SPECTRUM 30 days before you move. Send change to: The SPECTRUM, 9101 West Sahara Ave., PMB158, Las Vegas, NV 89117.

WEB ADDRESS: <spectrumnews10.com>.

Update From Our Editor

Well, here we go again—for some of you. As we were well into preparing the material for this issue of The SPECTRUM, we began to receive inquiries from some of our non-U.S. subscribers about not yet receiving last month's SPECTRUM! One enthusiastic reader in Canada finally received her paper, intact in its envelope, on January 24—only about three weeks late! We have no idea what happened.

Possibly they were being held-up at the border, but we've received no ransom notes about such kidnappings, or other evidence of detainment. The usual inquiries only resulted in the usual chorus of "I don't know" from all the likely suspects. Everybody in the delivery bucket-brigade claims to have gotten the enveloped papers out their door in a timely manner at the beginning of the month.

It reminds me of one of comedian Bill Cosby's routines from thirty years ago now about kids and the word "Idunno". The typical scenario goes something like this: Billy was swinging a baseball bat in the den rather than, as Mom asked him, to go outside. Awhile later, Mom comes into the den and asks Billy why the aquarium is cracked, leaking water all over the floor, fish gasping, carpet squishing underfoot. Billy, now absorbed in a TV show, looks up blankly and says "Idunno" as the dripping bat sits next to Billy on the floor.

At least you readers maintain a sense of humor and encouragement despite the unexpected bumps in the road. We float upon a steady stream of nice notes, such as M.P. sent from BC Canada: "Thank you all for your love and dedication to The Truth" and "The January issue is GREAT! May the Creator bless all of you greatly" as wrote M.A. in Seattle WA, and "...with GREAT-full thanks for all your hard work" from M.G. in Pennsylvania.

And then there arrived a more "News Desk" kind of note a few days ago from M.S. warning how "The article in SPECTRUM is right on target." This refers to The Mechanism Behind An Upcoming Major Global Economic Crisis in our January issue. M.S. closely monitors "insider" numbers associated with the stock market and other money matters, and said those numbers show our money system is on very, very thin ice: "The last time this happened was during the Gulf War. It is called an inverted yield curve. Wall Street and knowledgeable folks are very aware that this is the key sign of an impending economic recession. If this persists for a period of one quarter or more, the market may read this as the sign of full-blown depression." Now, whether or not the Federal Reserve pranksters will prop-up the "booming economy" façade for a bit longer, say to coincide with some political agenda, who knows, but things really don't look good.

And speaking of financial matters, while your encouraging notes sure help us to maintain our commitment of getting out The Truth to you, we've tried using them to pay, say, the telephone bill, but the phone company just doesn't seem to appreciate their value—or our sense of humor.

To put things in perspective for you, subscription revenues cover about 10% of monthly operating costs, and the majority of donations cover another 10% in a good month of your generosity. This is not to imply that we are not enormously grateful for your help, especially in response to my recent request at Christmastime. However, in order to keep this paper going—while the word continues to spread and new subscriptions come in—there is JUST ONE generous source that has been kindly making up the difference between what we have and what we need to pay the monthly bills. And such a large imposition cannot be expected to go on!

After all, our website is free and carries all but the most recent issue of The SPECTRUM, out of respect for those who do provide us with subscription money support. And with that subscription base growing at a healthy rate, we will eventually cover our costs. Even donations scale-up with the population of the subscription base. But what about right now and what about the extra debt piling-up monthly?

To address this hemorrhaging problem as directly as possible, we have decided to put into place the machinery to accept selective advertising, as another source of revenue.

Many of you newer readers probably are not aware that our philosophy and policy has always been to NOT accept any paid advertising, even though there are requests on a regular basis for us to do so. Any information in The SPECTRUM which may look like advertising is simply that—information—freely given, which we feel may be of interest to our readers, often in tandem with the subject matter of feature articles.

We hope to have the advertising machinery in place for the next issue of The SPECTRUM. At that time we should be able to list rates and conditions, etc., for such an offering. This will probably include Classified and Personal ads. So if you know anyone who might like to advertise in The SPECTRUM, please let us know; our readership is widely varied and all over the world.

With that said, we hope to continue to be able to bring you "the full spectrum" of Truth as no other source of information can. You should see the interviews lined-up with those who admire our philosophy and are anxious to be heard through this forum. Stay tuned!

— Dr. Edwin M. Young, Editor-In-Chief

An Interview With Christine Maggiore

[Continued from Front Page]

down and embark her on a quest for knowledge about this “disease” that would, ultimately, throw into question almost everything being said about this subject through public sources.

Let me begin by quoting from her book What If Everything You Knew About AIDS Was Wrong? in order to set the background and tone of this discussion: “Can you imagine receiving a fatal diagnosis without being told the diagnosis is based on an unproven idea and an uncertain test? Being instructed to take powerful, experimental drugs without being told these drugs compromise health, destroy functions necessary to sustain life, and were approved for use without adequate testing? Being informed that you have, or should expect, deadly illnesses without being told that these same illnesses are not considered fatal when they occur in “normal” people?”

“For anyone who tests HIV positive, getting all the facts is a matter of life and death. The important decisions a person makes should be based on thorough, verifiable data. All of us need, and have the right to receive, honest and complete information about HIV and AIDS.

“Almost every AIDS organization in the country offers free instruction for people who test HIV positive. Standard information includes how to prepare a will, how to collect disability, health insurance, and public benefits, what drugs and tests to take, and which diseases to anticipate—all based on the assumption that HIV positives are, or will be, ill and do not have long to live.

“Information on AIDS that is free from bias, that accurately describes tests and drugs and offers facts that support a will to live, participate in society, and cultivate a healthy future are rarely, if ever, mentioned. Some AIDS groups even lobby to limit public access to data that undermine their dire presentations of HIV and AIDS.”

One gets the strong impression of a hidden agenda at work behind the HIV support community. Does the “business” of AIDS bring in a lot of money to the so-called health practitioners who treat this “disease”? Why so much misinformation broadcast as scientific fact? Could such misinformation and disinformation be used to create a “fog” which obscures (and thus protects) the not-so-nice origin and hidden agenda behind the HIV virus? Are we being led to focus upon causes or upon effects?

Christine Maggiore

Quoting once again from her book, we read that:

“Contrary to popular belief, AIDS is not new and is not a disease. AIDS is a new name given by the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) to a collection of 29 familiar illnesses and conditions including yeast infection, herpes, diarrhea, some pneumonias, certain cancers, salmonella, and tuberculosis. These illnesses are called AIDS only when they occur in a person who also has protective disease-fighting proteins or antibodies that are thought to be associated with HIV.

“A person is diagnosed with AIDS if they have one or more of the 29 official AIDS-defining conditions, and if they also test positive for antibodies associated with HIV. In other words, pneumonia in a person who tests HIV positive is AIDS, while the same pneumonia in a person testing HIV negative is pneumonia. The clinical manifestations and symptoms of the pneumonia may be identical, but one is called AIDS, while the other is just called pneumonia. None of the 29 AIDS illnesses are new, none appear exclusively in people who test positive for HIV antibodies, and all have documented causes and treatments that are unrelated to HIV. Prior to the CDC’s creation of the AIDS category, these 29 old diseases and conditions were not thought to have a single, common cause.”

Aside from being the author of a very controversial book on AIDS, Christine Maggiore is now head of an AIDS organization, which she started, called The American Foundation For AIDS Alternatives, 11684 Ventura Blvd., Studio City, California 91604; phone: (877) 92-ALIVE, and email at: AFAA@aliveandwell.org. For information about how to obtain a copy of her book, see the information box later in this interview. [All footnotes in charts refer to her book.]

[Editor’s note: For you more informed readers who already have a good picture of the “business world” of modern medicine—the vast amounts of money to be made and the fierce battles to keep “alternative” (and much cheaper) healing modalities away from the public’s attention—as well as you who have an appreciation for the larger, hidden agenda of the so-called “elite” controllers, a plan which is the exact opposite of a “health”-promoting enterprise, what you are about to read is STILL quite revealing in terms of illustrating the extent to which the modern, conventional “health” system enterprise has become astonishingly bold and degenerate. It is one thing, for instance, to launch fear-laden propaganda campaigns via the media to try to coerce you into getting dubious flu shots (see the News Desk column’s article on this subject); it is quite another matter to impose

the kinds of forceful, yet lawful, shenanigans which Christine relates here. And if this kind of nonsense is happening in the area of AIDS medicine, what do you think about other areas?! It's not a very pleasant thought.]

With that said, let's now move directly into a discussion with Christine Maggiore about the very misunderstood subject of AIDS and HIV.

Martin: Obviously this is a hot and complicated subject. Let's clarify some misconceptions right off the bat by starting with the trigger that sets off a chain-reaction in people's lives, namely "the AIDS test". What is the so-called AIDS test? Is it accurate? What does it indicate? And, how did you find out all about it?

Maggiore: The AIDS test isn't a test for AIDS. It's not even a test for HIV, which is information that I found very surprising after having been diagnosed HIV positive, myself, in 1992. And, based on that test, was told that I had an infection with HIV, which was a "lethal" virus that would cause me, one day, to develop AIDS, specifically within a 5-7 year time frame.

The test, I later found out through my own experience, is not reliable for even testing for the presence of HIV antibodies. It uses proteins to identify the presence of HIV antibodies, but none of those proteins are able to specifically identify HIV proteins. That is, none of the proteins in the test kit belong exclusively to HIV, and are, in fact, shared by a number of antibodies that a person can produce in response to a variety of illnesses and conditions that often affect normal, healthy people.

Antibodies are something we want our body to produce, because they protect us from viral illnesses, and so we carry around with us, as protection, many antibodies that can cause an HIV test to falsely register positive in a person who's never been exposed to HIV. Now, antibody tests are used routinely in diagnostics, with a degree of reliability, but that reliability has been established through a process that was not used in developing the HIV antibody test and has never been established to this day.

And what that is, a positive antibody test should have been checked against the presence of the actual virus in the people who tested positive, at the very beginning of this, and any time a new test kit is developed. If, say, simply for the simplicity of mathematics, out of 100 people who test HIV-antibody positive, 99 have the actual virus, then you can call the test 99 percent accurate. But all the claims of accuracy for the HIV-antibody test are based on either reproducibility—that means how many times can we get the same answer, in the same person, running the same test—or with the presumption that it's always correct in a person who has symptoms and illnesses that are considered AIDS—which is a pretty big assumption to be making. Nobody has ever done what a good doctor, a good scientist should do, which is to verify, in people who test HIV-antibody positive, that in fact they have correlation to the presence of actual virus.

So, what is the test testing for? Nobody knows. That's one of the biggest problems with the whole HIV paradigm—it begins, as your question so accurately asks, with the whole notion that a positive reaction on an to identify virus. In fact, they're not approved by the FDA, which, I sometimes think, will approve anything when it comes to AIDS. They're not approved by the FDA, these tests for diagnostic use, and very clearly the manufacturer states that the test is not to be used as a screening test for HIV or to confirm the presence of HIV infection. So, again, we are using a test as a diagnostic tool, when it's contra-indicated for that, and using that to give people a life or death diagnosis.

That's why I wrote my book. Having found out this information, I felt it was valuable and important enough to share with people, whether they test positive or not, so people can make some accurate assessments about the AIDS information we're given.

I should mention here, my own experience is that, a year into my HIV-positive diagnosis, I was already a public speaker and an educator, and a board member for several prominent AIDS organizations. At the recommendation of a doctor, I retook my HIV-antibody test and my results came back in the following order: indeterminate, positive, negative, and positive.

And that was what set me on the road that took me outside mainstream AIDS thinking, and caused me to, really, stumble upon the scientific and medical data that I put forth in the book.

Martin: This is just an aside, really, not something I had planned on asking: Did your search, at any point, take you to the Tijuana clinics?

Maggiore: You know, I had lots of people, concerned friends, sending information my way about various "cures", but at no time did any doctor tell me that I was in imminent danger. It was always something that was going to occur to me, that was going to occur at some "future" date. I would become sick; I would become ill.

But, I was told repeatedly, by every doctor I saw, that I was in amazingly good health, so I didn't feel the pressure to be running around like so many people I knew, trying anything and everything that came my way, whether it was natural or allopathic. I really was able, thankfully, to take my time and examine everything, and I ended up never taking any kind of AIDS treatments, natural or otherwise.

Martin: Let's talk about the societal stigma associated with being HIV positive.

Maggiore: It sucks. (Laughter) It's terrible. The stigma is very powerful.

First, it affects how you view yourself. Suddenly, you're no longer able to rely on your own perceptions about your health, because you're told that understanding that is out of your realm, that you need to rely on these diagnostics, all of which function in the same manner with regard to AIDS or the HIV antibody test. They're all using surrogate markers, indirect means of expressing ideas about health that are, from my research and ### true or false?

- ❶ AIDS is a new disease.
- ❷ HIV is the virus that causes AIDS.
- ❸ The "AIDS test" is extremely accurate.
- ❹ The rate of HIV infection in America increases every year.
- ❺ AIDS is our nation's biggest health threat.
- ❻ AIDS is a growing risk for women, heterosexuals, and teenagers.
- ❼ The African continent is being devastated by AIDS.
- ❽ HIV causes AIDS years after infection.
- ❾ New AIDS drugs are responsible for recent declines in AIDS.
- ❿ Without medical intervention, pregnant women who test HIV positive will give their children AIDS.

All ten of these statements are false! Surprised?

HIV-antibody test indicates something to us about the presence of a virus that is, allegedly, the cause of a collection of diseases called AIDS. And that's not anything that the test can tell us.

There are new tests now, called "viral load", but these tests don't tell us about the presence of virus either. They, actually, look for fragments of genetic material—RNA or DNA—and these are not able from my personal experience, not indicative of much of anything.

So you learn, first of all, to deny your own health, basically. If you're in good health, you learn to question that, and doubt that, and live in fear that it's all falling apart in ways that will become clear at some future date—but in the present moment are unknown to you, which is frightening. You live in almost a constant state of panic.

Then you have this stigma that the doctor gives you. Even if you're healthy, when you test HIV positive—some people are ill, most people are not—but if you're healthy and test HIV positive, your doctor doesn't regard you as healthy anymore. You are a-symptomatic. That means you're just waiting for the symptoms to kick-in. Nobody else in the world is described as a-symptomatic, except people who test HIV positive. Everybody else who feels good is "healthy".

Your doctor will also speak to you, generally, and I'm talking about having seen about 12 or so AIDS doctors, personally, myself; they use the IF, WHEN, and YET words.

They say "When you get pneumonia". "Oh, you haven't had a yeast infection, yet?" "Well, if you're not feeling ill now, you certainly want to take precautions for when you do."

You get into this system that is not at all about health care, but about illness anticipation and illness prediction. And so, you're again stigmatized as a person who may feel good today, but, somehow, insidiously, unknown to you exactly where, perhaps, your body is completely falling apart and it's only a matter of time until you get all the terrible things that they're constantly looking for.

You live with a social stigma. You are considered a danger to yourself and other people. You have, according to the HIV-AIDS paradigm, a lethal virus. Somehow, testing positive for non-specific antibodies is viewed as harboring a lethal virus that can be spread, according to news reports, very easily from one person to another.

Of course, I've found this to be terribly exaggerated, and downright incorrect. The longest and largest study that was ever conducted was between what are called sero-diverse couples; that is, one person in the couple tests HIV positive, the other HIV negative.

This study followed a large group of couples for more than 10 years. These couples did not consistently practice what would be called safe sex. And after 10 years, not a single HIV-negative person, within these sero-diverse couples, became HIV positive—not one!

So, from this they decided that it took at least a thousand sexual contacts with a person who is HIV positive in order for another person to become HIV positive. They found nothing at all, except they had to come up with something after 10 years. So, you live with the social stigma.

Now, the chances—and this is not calculated by me but by actuaries—of testing HIV positive after a single sexual encounter with a person outside an AIDS-risk group is 1 in 7 million. That's less than the chance of dying of food poisoning at a fast-food restaurant, less than the chance of being injured in an elevator ride, and much less than the chance of being struck by lightning—yet we're told every day it takes once, only once.

And we're also told that it can happen to everyone, when, in fact, 88% of the American AIDS cases are very strictly confined to two groups, as categorized by the Centers for Disease Control: men who have sex with men, and IV drug users.

The social stigma that you get is that you're infected with something; it's causing your health to decline, even though perhaps, in the moment, you can't feel it or see it. Anything that you have or other people have is suddenly attributable to your presumed HIV infection. While you're waiting to fall apart and die of AIDS, you should stay the heck away from other people because you can infect them with this terrible thing.

Then you have the benign kind of things that go on, socially, with your friends coming up to you. This used to happen to me a lot.

I'd show up at the last minute for a dinner party in jeans and a T-shirt, and everyone else would be dressed up. No matter how I looked when I walked in the door, I always heard: (gasp) "You look so great!"

Martin: (Laughter)

Maggiore: "Oh, my goodness! I'm so glad to see you!" Which translates to: "She's not dead yet. She's got flesh on her bones. She's still alive." And then they'd whisper in my ear, as they're hugging me tightly: "How are you?"

"Fine" no longer suffices. (laughter)

I should be carrying my medical records with me, or something, or about to divulge that "the end is near". It's really annoying.

Martin: (Laughter) Excuse me.

Maggiore: (Laughter) And then, if you end up in a situation like I did a couple of years ago—I was pregnant and I also had a positive HIV status. Try to get around THAT stigma!

Martin: That's one of my questions. We're jumping ahead, but let's talk about HIV-positive pregnant women and the misconceptions.

Maggiore: Oh, my goodness. Pregnancy is one of 60 conditions noted in the scientific and medical literature that can cause a positive reaction on an HIV antibody test. So, right there, there's a problem with the whole notion of wide-spread HIV testing among expectant mothers!

Another problem with that—and we can go into this later, if you like—is that any time you apply a diagnostic tool, however reliable, to a population that does not have the problem—in this country, less than 1/10 of one percent of child-bearing-aged women ever have a diagnosis of AIDS, so it's not a widespread problem—you apply that diagnostic test to this population and the result is widespread FALSE positives.

It's just a mathematical law. Even when a test is really accurate, the same thing happens. It falls apart when it's applied to a population who do not suffer from the conditions being tested for in large numbers.

So, that's a big problem. For example, women contact me who have tested positive. Most recently a woman who has had three relationships in her life. None of the men who she's had relationships with test HIV positive. None of the men have any of the symptoms of AIDS. None fall into any risk group category for AIDS—yet, and this would be her second pregnancy, she tests HIV positive. This is taken as "gospel" that she is HIV infected.

And she's told that she cannot have a baby in a hospital facility without taking AZT drugs.

AZT is a failed cancer chemotherapy drug that works by destroying DNA chains as they're forming, which leads to cell death.

She cannot have a baby without taking experimental protease-inhibitor drugs—without delivering by cesarean section. Without a 12-hour, or so, infusion of AZT during labor, which is, essentially, the same thing that a cancer chemotherapy patient gets—a big old infusion of chemotherapy—during labor!

And, without agreeing to

| Formula for AIDS |   |                   |   |              |
|------------------|---|-------------------|---|--------------|
| Pneumonia        | + | Positive HIV Test | = | AIDS         |
| Pneumonia        | + | Negative HIV Test | = | Pneumonia    |
| Tuberculosis     | + | Positive HIV Test | = | AIDS         |
| Tuberculosis     | + | Negative HIV Test | = | Tuberculosis |

This formula creates the illusion of a perfect correlation between HIV and AIDS.

feed her baby formula during its infancy—no breast milk. So that's what this unreliable test leads to when it's applied to pregnant women. It's a terrible thing.

And I was very fortunate to circumvent that system by finding the only, the last remaining hope in my general area—and I had to drive some 35 miles to get to her—a certified nurse mid-wife who agreed that even a dying woman had the right to have a baby.

I figured, if I get in on that “clause” and it's good enough for me (laughter)—we'll straighten out the details later that I'm not dying. And I was able to deliver, naturally, my son without medical interference of any kind.

My son, now almost 2½ years old, has never had any serious health problems—minor colds, I think two times, a fever once or twice, and has never had so much as an ear infection. He's gloriously healthy.

That, I find, is a VERY common experience among HIV-positive mothers who made decisions similar to mine. What's unfortunate is when they are forced into a health-care system that, literally, mandates that they do things which, from my experience and my research, make absolutely no sense and are, really, a threat to life and well-being—such as taking these chemotherapy drugs and other experimental drugs during pregnancy and during labor.

And the new thing—the new trend, the new fad—is AZT therapy for 6 weeks for any baby born to an HIV-positive mother, whether that baby is HIV positive or HIV negative at birth. So, even healthy HIV-negative babies, if you want to give any credence to the HIV test, are being given routine chemotherapy in their formula bottles because their moms aren't allowed to breast feed for their first six weeks of life, which is another unspeakable tragedy.

There was recently a case in Eugene, Oregon, of a perfectly healthy woman, no risk factors. Her husband is HIV negative. They've been together for more than a decade. They have a daughter, I think 8 or 9 years old. These two were HIV negative.

She suddenly tests HIV positive. She decided she did not want to take the drug therapies, after trying them and becoming ill. She concluded her pregnancy without any kind of therapy, but ended-up in a hospital delivery room to have her baby.

The day the baby was born, within hours they sent in an infectious disease specialist. The infectious disease specialist went through the laundry list of what she needed to do, which was, of course: no formula—AZT therapy.

And she said “No, thank you” to both. She felt that she was well-informed and had come to a reasonable conclusion, based on her own study of the scientific and medical evidence. The infectious disease specialist left and came back a couple of hours later with a court order.

The state of Oregon had taken custody of her child. They mandated AZT therapy for six weeks, and barred her from breast feeding, while she was still in the delivery room. And, as a matter of fact, I just heard from her yesterday—first time in a long time.

On December 29th, which is a year and some months after her son was born—a perfectly healthy, HIV-negative son, by the way—on December 29th of last year, the State of Oregon, finally, gave her back custody of her son.

Martin: I was going to say, it sounds like a case for the American Civil Liberties Union.

Maggiore: You know what? They're not interested.

Martin: No kidding?

Maggiore: No, I tried, and so have a couple of other people, approaching them on this. The unfortunate thing is, so many intelligent, well-informed people, who question a lot of information about health, about political and social issues, turn-off their brains, take off their thinking caps when it comes to AIDS. For some reason, even alternative health practitioners who question allopathic treatments for cancer, for heart disease, for infectious illnesses of any kind, do not question AIDS; do not question the government's information; do not question the Health Department's information; do not question media reports.

This is probably one of the most difficult aspects of this—that for open-minded people, or people who like to consider themselves open-minded, AIDS is a way to express your compassion. If you support AIDS, you support compassion. If you support AIDS, you support the people who are diagnosed with AIDS, that is, some people who tend to be marginalized from our society at large, such as gay men and IV-drug users.

So, to question AIDS suddenly becomes: you're against certain groups of people, or you're a conspiracy theorist. It doesn't occur to otherwise really brilliant (laughter) brilliant people—I've talked to some of the greatest minds of our time—and I am very disappointed, many, many times, that there is no room in their hearts and in their minds to question government, media, AIDS organizations, AIDS information.

As it stands now, it is required in the state of New York, which has—AIDS cases are primarily divided up into about 4 states: New York, Florida, California, and Texas, I think. It is now required in the state of New York that a woman who is having a baby report to the hospital with evidence of her HIV status.

And a lot of people who contributed their personal accounts to my book, mostly women, were HIV tested during the course of prenatal screenings, or during birth procedures at the hospital, without their permission and without their knowledge. You can't even rest assured that, by living in a state where this isn't required, or by declining what's explained as a “voluntary test”, if you voluntarily decline, there is no guarantee that your wishes will be adhered to. Many of the women who gave their stories for the book talked about being told it was a test for anemia, being told it was a routine diagnostic, just run for whatever reason after a woman has a baby, no worries—and then later, called and told “This is so-and-so, you tested positive, or, you have AIDS”.

That's another thing about the whole HIV-AIDS issue—that it is considered outside the realms of our civil liberties, of our privacy. It is not a personal issue. It's considered a public health threat, and so that suddenly changes all matters of how the tests are administered and how people are allowed to conduct themselves.

What is AIDS? I think it becomes more clear when you understand that AIDS isn't a disease. AIDS is a collection of previously known, and even common, illnesses that have been categorized as AIDS. But when these same illnesses and conditions occur in someone who has not tested HIV positive, they are called by their old name.

AIDS is 29 conditions such as: tuberculosis, yeast infections, certain kinds of cancers, certain pneumonias. None of these conditions or illnesses called AIDS are exclusive to people who test HIV positive. All of them have causes and treatments well known, that are completely unrelated to HIV,

AIDS in America

- AIDS is a category, not an illness
- There are 29 familiar conditions in the category including pneumonia, yeast infections, salmonella, and certain cancers.
- None of these conditions are new.
- None of these conditions appear among people who test HIV positive; all appear among people who test HIV negative.
- All AIDS conditions have documented causes and treatments that are unrelated to HIV.

and are only called AIDS when they happen to someone who also has a positive HIV-antibody test.

If you have a yeast infection, which is a pretty common thing, and you're HIV negative, you've got a yeast infection. Everybody knows it's caused by an imbalance of friendly bacteria. If you are HIV positive, and you have a yeast infection, that's AIDS. And while we acknowledge, on one plane, that it's caused by an imbalance of friendly bacteria, because you've tested HIV positive, you're thrown on lifelong prophylactic antibiotics—which, most of the time exacerbate the yeast infection—and that is considered a hallmark of AIDS.

So, AIDS isn't even a disease, it's a category, it's a collection of previously existing conditions that occur among people who test HIV negative and people who test HIV positive.

So why do these conditions occur? There's a lot of different reasons, almost as individual as the people. But to correlate all of those with a positive antibody test, on a test that's not specific, and to claim that they're caused by an infection with a virus, is, in my opinion, irresponsible.

Another important thing to understand about AIDS is, because it's not a disease, because it's a definition, the definition of what AIDS is changes from country to country. And this really makes for an interesting situation.

Our definition of AIDS is slightly different from that of Canada, our neighbors to the North. In 1993, here in the United States, we changed the definition of AIDS. We added to it 4 illnesses, and we added 1 non-illness which is having a T-cell count, T immune cells—that's a laboratory measurement—if one time that shows your T-cells are less than 200. If you have that, if you have no symptoms, no illness, but you have a T-cell count, one time from a lab, of 200 or less, and you're HIV positive, you have an AIDS diagnosis.

Since 1993, more than half of all the newly diagnosed AIDS cases in this country are among people with no symptoms or illnesses, who have what's considered a low T-cell count.

In Canada, they never adopted that definition, which means that there are more than 180,000 Americans with an AIDS diagnosis who could be cured of that diagnosis of AIDS if they were to drive across the border into Canada, where a low T-cell count is NOT considered the diagnostic criteria for an AIDS diagnosis.

In Africa, it's something else, again. We don't have a list of 29 illnesses, and no HIV test is required. An AIDS diagnosis in Africa can be based on: fever, persistent cough, weight loss that's involuntary and greater than 10 percent, and diarrhea. In Africa, that suffices for an AIDS diagnosis.

Of course, those clinical symptoms are also the clinical symptoms of most things that trouble the African continent: poverty, malnutrition, leprosy, tuberculosis, malaria, the effects of drinking unsanitary water. Yet, in Africa, those symptoms are enough for an AIDS diagnosis. In this country, that wouldn't be acceptable. This is the only "disease", supposedly, where you can cure yourself by moving, or become sick by relocating. (Laughter) Don't ever go to Africa if you've got a cough and a fever; you'll find yourself in big trouble!

Martin: You mention in your book, also, that the designation AIDS is actually a surveillance tool. What did you mean by that?

Maggiore: I didn't mean anything by that. What I got that from was a report from the National Institutes of Health, when they produced a Summary Report on AIDS in an attempt to answer critics of the HIV-AIDS hypothesis, and in that they mention that they call AIDS, that's just a direct quote, a "surveillance tool". That's what it is. It's a category that's used to survey, count, quantify certain illnesses, but only when they occur in people with a positive HIV-antibody test. Nobody's running around counting yeast infections, outside of the HIV-antibody tests.

Martin: Have you come across any—how do I want to term this—informed doctors or clinics or labs that you actually WOULD recommend for AIDS testing?

Maggiore: Well, there is no such thing as AIDS testing, based on the HIV-antibody test.

What there are tests for, are comprehensive tests that can give you an assessment on how your body is doing as a whole, functioning, interrelated system. And, if you're facing health challenges, these give you some information as a tool to getting better, and monitoring the progress of some doctors who use health-enhancing, immune-supporting therapies that rely, primarily, on non-toxic modalities that can restore a person to health or prevent somebody who's at risk of getting sick from ever becoming ill.

But an AIDS test, which is really an HIV-antibody test, or what is called a viral load test, does not give reliable, useful information, in my opinion, from my research and experience.

Martin: Let's talk about who is, statistically, more at risk for AIDS in this country. Men or women, and why?

Maggiore: How AIDS cases break down in this country is that 88% fall into two categories: men who have sex with men—and these are categories determined by the Centers for Disease Control, and they only take into consideration their own categories. If you fall outside of this category, you are usually put into heterosexual contact or, sometimes, "risk unknown". But, the Centers for Disease Control don't count any category of health risk, such as IV-drug use, on its own, is not considered a risk for your health—malnourishment, chronic, constant use of antibiotics or steroids, is not considered a risk to the immune system, only having sex with another man or using IV-drugs.

So, 88% fall into those two risk categories. 90% (or close to—actually it just shifted in the last couple of years to 85%) are among men.

So, it is disproportionately divided, even within those risk groups, among men—1% hemophiliacs, 1% transfusion recipients, I think it's 4% among people who claim heterosexual contact (I'll look at my own book here) with an IV-drug user, and 6% among people who just say "Hey, I slept with somebody".

By the way, all of these responses are voluntary and are unverified. When they go back and ask people, again, who say "Hey, I just slept with somebody. I don't know what happened", they find that between 60% and 90% of those people suddenly remember falling into the two top-risk categories: men who have sex with men or IV-drug users. So it isn't a widespread health risk, by any means.

Martin: Certainly not a widespread health risk for women.

Maggiore: No, no, no. And also, too, if you look at how many people die of AIDS and compare

Why HIV Cannot Cause AIDS<sup>22</sup>

- HIV is a retrovirus. Retroviruses are not cytotoxic; they do not kill cells.
- HIV shares the same genetic structure as all other known retroviruses. Hundreds of retroviruses are normally found in healthy human beings.
- Even if HIV could kill T-cells, it only infects on average 1 in 1,000 T-cells which is not enough to deplete T-cells and cause AIDS.
- Most healthy people have had infections with cell-killing viruses like those that cause herpes and mononucleosis. These viruses infect millions of T-cells—up to half of all immune cells—without causing T-cell depletion and without causing AIDS.

that to other causes of death among Americans—well, first of all, one thing, before we even begin with that—AIDS deaths are counted among anyone with AIDS who dies, whether they die of what's called AIDS, in a car accident, if they're hit by a piano, if their medicines kill them, it's all thrown in. So that's another thing to remember.

If you are given a diagnosis of AIDS and die in a car accident, you don't end up in the car accident category, you're an AIDS death. It's actually, officially, called "death among persons with AIDS", a very carefully constructed category title there. And, despite that and despite all the emphasis on AIDS, we have, every year, three times as many deaths each year from heart disease than the total of all the people who have ever died of AIDS. You have more people dying from cancer in a year than have ever died of AIDS. You have more people, in the period known as the AIDS epidemic, who have died from the correct use of properly prescribed prescription drugs. You have more people who have died of suicide, and more people who have died in car accidents, than you have who died of AIDS. Suddenly, it's not America's biggest health threat.

HIV infection in the United States, according to the Centers for Disease Control, the number of people testing HIV positive has not increased once since 1985 when the test was made available for general use.

Martin: That's amazing.

Maggiore: Let me just look at my book so I can give this to you exactly:

- You have more than 13½ million cases of gonorrhea during this period of time;
- 6 million cases of genital herpes;
- 4.3 million cases of chlamydia;
- 1.5+ million cases of syphilis.

In the whole period of time known as the AIDS epidemic in this country, we have 655,000 AIDS cases, as of the last Centers for Disease Control tally, Year-End Report. And, if you recall, 182,000 of those AIDS diagnoses were given to people who are not even ill.

Martin: Have you found, since you've been "out there", that there are others in the AIDS field doing the kind of questioning of existing definitions that you are? Or, have you found that people are just locked-in to the "status-quo" of information?

When you're treating immune-suppressed people, or allegedly immune-suppressed people, with chemicals that CAUSE immune suppression, you're not going to arrive at a happy outcome.

Maggiore: I could have never saved my own life or written this book were there not other people out there doing this, to whom I am eternally indebted. Their work is what I base my work on. Yes, thankfully, there are. There are not enough of them, though.

Martin: Who are some of those people? Are there any particular people or organizations that come to mind?

Maggiore: The Group for the Scientific Reappraisal of the HIV-AIDS Hypothesis is one group.

Martin: And where are they?

Maggiore: They're based in La Jolla, California, but they have a toll-free national phone number that's listed in the book: 877-256-6406. They are a group of, primarily, MDs, Ph.D.s, and include a couple of Nobel Laureates, who not only question the HIV-AIDS hypothesis, but publish a monthly newsletter called Rethinking AIDS, that you can find at their website: rethinkingaids.com which is a wonderful source of information.

There is a team of doctors in Australia who've done some just fantastic work on eliminating the flaws of HIV-antibody tests, and their works are found at the great virusmyths.com website. In there you can find all sorts of articles and information—by subject category, by author, contributed by the many people around the world who work at bringing about public awareness of these very important questions. And there are a number of doctors and health practitioners and people who, given a chance to think about this, realize, rather quickly, that what they've been told doesn't add up.

It's just that not often are we given an opportunity to think about this from a new perspective. We usually are bombarded with warnings, with UN "estimates"—and, this year, in honor of World AIDS Day, the UN dropped the word "estimate" from their report. So, now when they give us estimates of AIDS cases or estimates of AIDS deaths—which are so completely out-of-line with actual diagnosed cases—I think they said some 16 million people died of AIDS last year, worldwide. Last year, the total for all cases diagnosed EVER in the ENTIRE WORLD during the period known as the AIDS epidemic is 2.2 million. Now there are 7 times as many deaths as we've ever had diagnoses?

And then they say there are 33 million people, worldwide, infected. I mean, they're just constantly throwing these things at us and, prior to World's AIDS Day this last year, 1999, they at least gave thinking people a chance to consider that their numbers were estimates. Now they just dropped that, entirely, and they're just given to us as: "The UN says..."

The UN says that AIDS is causing the devastation of Africa. Africa has 2½ times the population of the U.S. and we have about the same number of AIDS cases. So, if AIDS is devastating Africa, why the heck isn't it really devastating the U.S.? There's a report coming out of the UN, one I cite in my book, it's almost comical. If it weren't so sad, it would be funny. A Reuters report, based on the UN estimates—they left the word in, that year—that "a Kenyan dies of AIDS every 3 minutes". If you multiply that out, that makes more dead Kenyans in one year than there have ever been AIDS diagnoses in Kenya. And if you multiply that out to the whole AIDS epidemic, you end up with a total greater than all AIDS cases ever diagnosed in the world.

Martin: Pretty amazing, huh?

Maggiore: Yeah. I mean, I wish I could get away with that for other stuff, like my bank account: "I estimate I have 4 million dollars."

Martin: Ok, if it's not HIV, what causes AIDS?

Maggiore: Well, what causes these 29 diseases? Depending on what country you're

Copy of an AZT Label

SIGMA

3 -AZIDO-3 -DEOXY- THYMIDINE

(AZT; Azidothymidine) (30516-87-1)

Desiccate
Store at less than 0°C

C<sub>10</sub>H<sub>11</sub>N<sub>3</sub>O<sub>4</sub>      FW 267.2
Purity 99% (HPLC)
For laboratory use only. Not for drug, household or other uses.

TOXIC

Toxic by inhalation, in contact with skin and if swallowed. Target organ(s): Blood Bone marrow. If you feel unwell, seek medical advice (show the label where possible). Wear suitable protective clothing.

This label has appeared on bottles containing as little as 25 milligrams, a small fraction (1/20 to 1/60) of a patient's daily prescribed dose of 500 to 1,500 mg.<sup>109</sup> living in, in Africa it's maybe 4 or 5. Conditions that lead to collapse of the immune system that have been known in the medical literature for about 70 years. In my book, I break them down to categories that I describe as: physical risk factors, chemical risk factors, biological risk factors, and psychological risk factors. And I explain how these factors apply to AIDS. What makes my job easier than trying to explain this—

Martin: And those were very good descriptions in the book, by the way. I was very impressed with that.

Maggiore: Oh, thank you. What makes my job a little easier with this is that there is not one case of AIDS described in the medical literature that does not include one or more of these immune-destroying health-risk factors, and there is not one case of AIDS documented in the medical literature in a person who's full risk is exposure to HIV.

When you consider that HIV is a retrovirus with no known cell-killing mechanism—retroviruses don't kill cells—yet AIDS is supposed to be the depletion, the death of immune cells?

HIV does not explain the loss of immunity or immune cells associated with AIDS. These other factors, that I go into detail about in the book, are able to, and have been able to in the past, before we adopted the AIDS categorization, explain and also relieve immune suppression, which is really a big issue.

When you're treating immune-suppressed people, or allegedly immune-suppressed people, with chemicals that CAUSE immune suppression, you're not going to arrive at a happy outcome.

And when you're stigmatizing starving people in third-world countries as having uncontrollable sexual activities—notice how, in every other country of the world, except the United States, Canada, and Europe, AIDS is suppose to be something equally divided between men and women, therefore insinuating that there's something about the sexual practices of non-European, non-White people. That's a terrible stigma to be living under. It does nothing to help prevent the TRUE health risks, which are often, in these third-world countries and developing nations: poverty, malnutrition, rampant disease such as tuberculosis, malaria, leprosy, measles—measles kills more than AIDS.

AIDS is not the leading cause of death in any African nation. Measles, malaria, tuberculosis—individually many, many times top diagnosed cases of AIDS and death.

So, if we talk about if it's not HIV, what is it? When you look at other things, it not only broadens the scope of what is called immune suppression, but it opens up the discussion to include things that actually help people to improve the quality of their lives and the quality of their health, and get better.

Martin: Let's get back to the effectiveness of the so-called "treatment modalities" such as chemotherapy. Can you comment further on existing treatment modalities and their toxic effects?

Maggiore: Current therapies involve a combination of chemotherapy and protease-

Current therapies involve a combination of chemotherapy and protease-inhibitor drugs. Prior to the new therapies, we had chemotherapy drugs, all of which are modeled on AZT, which was created over 30 years ago as a treatment for leukemia. It was rejected before it was patented or ever tried out on human beings because it was so toxic; it destroyed the—it killed the experimental mice, the cancer-ridden mice, who received the treatment, before the cancer could. It destroys cells. It caps-off DNA chains, as they're forming, and leaves the cell dead.

inhibitor drugs. Prior to the new therapies, we had chemotherapy drugs, all of which are modeled on AZT, which was created over 30 years ago as a treatment for leukemia. It was rejected before it was patented or ever tried out on human beings because it was so toxic; it destroyed the—it killed the experimental mice, the cancer-ridden mice, who received the treatment, before the cancer could. It destroys cells. It caps-off DNA chains, as they're forming, and leaves the cell dead.

Its manufacturer acknowledges that it causes 5 of the official 29 AIDS-defining illnesses, including T-cell depletion, muscle wasting, diarrhea, dementia, and lymphoma. When it travels from a lab to a pharmacy, it comes with a package that has a label with a skull & crossbones on it and the word TOXIC very prominently displayed.

Testing shows that it's incorporated into our cells' DNA. It disrupts the mitochondria, which is the energy factory of cells. It's designed to terminate DNA chains. In addition to causing those 5 AIDS-defining illnesses, it also causes nausea, liver damage, headaches, dizziness, sexual dysfunction, hair loss, seizures, neuropathy—which is, if your arms or legs fall asleep, you get that tingling. Well, imagine that all the time, except it hurts really bad; that's neuropathy. That's caused by the damage to the nervous system. It is very destructive to the digestive system, which is why it causes the diarrhea and the nausea.

We know chemotherapy does that when it's given to cancer patients—yet chemotherapy, when it's given to AIDS patients, it's somehow supposed to be "surprising" when people no longer have the ability to absorb nutrients and digest their food.

This is a powerful, powerful toxin. And the idea is "Well, what else is there? We've got to do something. These people are infected with HIV", which brings us back to the test.

Remember, the test doesn't even tell you accurately that you've been infected. And people don't get the kind of information readily that we're sharing today, upon which to base a decision to take this toxic stuff.

And then it is also being given to children, many of whom are HIV negative, but born to an HIV-positive-testing mother—and provided in such a way that its consumption is mandated. That is, a single mom, because she's HIV positive, is relying on the public health system; if she wants the benefits, she's got to take the drugs. If she doesn't, they take the kids!

And even people outside, even families outside the public health system, are threatened with loss of custody if they don't put their children on the drug. So, it's not just a matter for consenting adults, it's a matter of people not being given enough information to make informed choices, and children being forced to take these drugs.

The new protease inhibitors have been added to the chemotherapy regime, which uses various chemotherapy drugs to one protease inhibitor, plus a handful of various assorted antibiotics. These new protease inhibitor drugs are showing to be extremely toxic to the liver, causing liver damage, elevating lipid levels, to the degree where—I just read an article that said men who should otherwise not be having heart attacks are having heart attacks, sometimes fatal. It's causing physical deformities because it causes problems with the absorption and distribution of fat in the body. People are getting things called "buffalo humps", which are large fat deposits on the back of their necks, or "crick bellies", which come from one of the brand names, cricksidan, which is a huge, distended belly, while at the same time losing muscular tone and fat from the face, the arms, the legs, and the posterior—that's also known as "crick's butt"—and this is described, in the medical literature, sometimes, as having "stick-like limbs". And women are also experiencing huge, huge chests; the fat in their breasts increases. And those are just the "cosmetic", supposedly, effects of the drugs!

These drugs also lead to a lot of digestive problems and diarrhea, for many people; and insomnia; and for many people, many people begin suffering from episodes of psychosis; also diabetes. Some scientist said that these drugs may unmask opportunistic infections. And I'm probably leaving a few things out.

This is what we know after just a couple of years. These drugs were first brought into use in the last months of 1995. If you look in my book, there are charts which show that AIDS cases were already on the decline, and leveled off, actually, in about 1991. It increased once, in 1993, when that new definition of AIDS came in, which included people who were ill, and it's been declining ever since.

AIDS deaths were already declining when these new drugs were released, and it is often claimed that not enough people are taking them. Many reports will attribute the decline in AIDS deaths to the drugs, and at the same time, in the same article, they will often lament that not enough people are taking them.

One very well known AIDS expert, Dr. James Corran, who I think was the former head of the Centers for Disease Control, reported last year, I believe it was, on CNN, that less than 10% of HIV-positive Americans who need the drugs are on them. Yet, at the same time, he attributes the drugs to the decreases in death. Also, new reports are showing—and this is also from the UN and other sources—it is now widely cited that the drugs failed to work in half the people who take them, and another 10%-20% must quit due to the unmanageable side-effects.

So, when you talk about “wonder” drugs, you've really gotta wonder (laughter) how drugs that were released after the downturn began, that not enough people are taking, that a large percentage of people can't take, that another significant percent of the people have no benefit from taking—are affecting anything that is a current trend with downturns in AIDS!

And then, recent reports also show, I think it was December, in the New England Journal Of Medicine, an article that shows that these drugs actually shut-down functions of the immune system that are considered necessary for survival!

Martin: The real “wonder” is that people buy this stuff.

Maggiore: Well, when it's billed to you that this is the only hope for your survival, and even “I'm not going to work with you unless you're going to work with me.” You know, you get in a situation where people are taking these drugs because they're scared, they're scared!

Martin: Sure they're scared.

Maggiore: They're living in a constant state of panic and fear. They've been told that the presence of their virus can be measured with this new “viral load” test. When it's up, they need to take the drugs. When it's down, they should keep taking them anyway.

Martin: Can we talk more about the “viral load” test?

Maggiore: Well, I'd like to tell you one thing: when I took the viral load test in 1996, I had a viral load, the first time, of 330,000. At 10,000 it's considered pretty urgent that you start taking medicine. So, I was way beyond that. I should have been very, very ill and I was not.

About a month later I took another one, and it, inexplicably, dropped to 980, which is considered low, and I'm well. And right after that I got pregnant and went through a period of—what would be acknowledged by I think just about everyone—a natural time of immune suppression, when a woman is pregnant, without having ANY complications or symptoms of immune suppression. My HIV-negative cohort passed a typical problem, such as yeast infections. I mean, two women HIV negative got toxoplasmosis while pregnant, which is an AIDS defining illness, due to their lowered immunity. I had none of that.

Every time I tell you about myself, I want to make it very clear, I am not an exception to the rule. I am only an exception to the rule in that I speak out. There are just so many people like me, it is ridiculous that the media has expressed no interest in bringing our stories into the discussion. My book endeavored to do that with some of the stories. As I call it in my book, it's the tip of a very large, yet largely overlooked, iceberg that the media and the AIDS organizations either downplay or ignore.

Martin: One thing that may be a surprise to our readers, or it may not be: What is the number-one cause of immune deficiency diseases worldwide?

Maggiore: Malnutrition. It's been that way for many, many years. And one of the primary spokespersons acknowledging that, up until 1985, was Dr. Anthony Fauci, who is a very well-known AIDS expert, head of NIAD—National Institutes Of Allergies, etc. You have 3 million people who die, worldwide each year, from just poverty and diarrhea. And, in some 20 years, we've had a little over 2 million AIDS cases throughout the world, and a good percentage of those are among people who are still alive and well.

Oh, I used one of my bad words—still.

Martin: How has your reception been among the less informed groups that you've spoken with?

Maggiore: You know, when I can speak to somebody who does not have an investment in AIDS—and I don't mean just financial—

Drug Diseases Diganosed Before the AIDS Era in HIV-Free Drug Users <sup>222</sup>

| Disease  | Drug Used |        |          |              |
|--|-----------|--------|----------|--------------|
|  | Cocaine   | Heroin | Nitrites | Amphetamines |
| Immunodeficiency <sup>1c</sup>   | ✓         | ✓      | ✓        | ✓            |
| Kaposi's sarcoma <sup>2c</sup>   |           |        | ✓        |              |
| Candidiasis <sup>3c</sup>  | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Pneumonia <sup>4c</sup>  | ✓         | ✓      | ✓        |              |
| Lymphadenopathy <sup>5c</sup>  | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Tuberculosis <sup>6c</sup>   | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Weight loss <sup>7c</sup>  | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Dementia, encephalopathy <sup>8c</sup>   | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Diarrhea <sup>9c</sup>   | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Fever <sup>10c</sup>   | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Spontaneous abortion, premature birth, congenital abnormalities <sup>11c</sup> | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Night sweats <sup>12c</sup>  | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Impotence <sup>13c</sup>   | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Severe atherosclerosis <sup>14c</sup>  |           |        |          | ✓            |
| Tooth loss, cavities <sup>15c</sup>  | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Dermatitis <sup>16c</sup>  | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Hepatitis <sup>17c</sup>   | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Epileptic seizures <sup>18c</sup>  | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Endocarditis <sup>19c</sup>  | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |
| Bronchitis <sup>20c</sup>  | ✓         | ✓      |          |              |

because I think we all have an investment, to a certain degree, in what we've been told, because it's affected every single one of our lives. Our world-view has been shaped by this.

When I can talk to somebody who is not heavily invested in that world view, who perhaps hasn't had the devastating emotional experience of losing friends to what is called AIDS, who doesn't work in any kind of capacity related to HIV causing AIDS, who hasn't been 10-15 years prescribing AIDS drugs to people, believing with all their heart they're helping. When I can talk to somebody like that, it usually comes pretty easily.

The tough part is in reaching people who have the investment: emotional, financial, reputation, careers—then it gets tougher, but it's not impossible. And I have a pretty good rate of success, I think, because while I'm certainly not among the most well informed on this topic; I've had a direct personal experience that often can mean more than the scientific data. That's why I've included those personal stories from people in my book, because there's something about being able to touch the life of another person with your own that, often times, has greater value and meaning than all the other stuff.

Martin: Well, it's not abstract.

Maggiore: No, no. And having been through the ringer in so many ways—here, there, up, down, positive, negative. I speak from a wide range of experiences. (Laughter) I've had HIV. I've had it go away. I've had a tremendously high viral load. I've had a non-existent one, practically.

Just before I got pregnant in 1996, I had pneumonia, and that is considered an AIDS-defining illness when it occurs in somebody who is HIV positive. Loosely, any pneumonia, but specifically pneumocystis pneumonia, will be considered AIDS-defining in somebody who tests HIV positive. I did not go in for an analysis of specifically what pneumonia I had, but it was very clear I had pneumonia.

I used natural therapies and got better, and did so in 3 weeks—while my brother, who is HIV negative, 5 years younger, and a surfer, if you can imagine the lung-capacity that takes, it's tremendous—got the same pneumonia and was laid-up for 3 months, lost so much weight he looked like an AIDS victim. So, I've kind-of had the gamut of experiences here that I can share with people. And I think that helps me to be a spokesperson to urge people to consider new views and new information, and think about, with some degree of critical thinking, what they've been told.

Martin: You're like a lightning rod.

Maggiore: You could also call me Job. (Laughter)

Martin: Has there been any recurring theme or concern among audiences you've addressed, both AIDS organizations and the general public?

Maggiore: The general concern expressed by most organizations is—when they just want to shut down the discussion, they call this “dangerous information”. I've heard that so many times, I can't even tell you.

Martin: Really?!

Maggiore: Yeah. And for a while, I was calling our video-tape series of our meetings with guest speakers Dangerous Information: Volumes I, II, & III. But that's a common thing I hear, when people just want to exclude it.

Another thing I hear is “Well, what you're saying is that you're advocating that people practice unsafe sex.” And, at NO point, in any of my talks, the articles I write, my book, do I EVER advocate ANYTHING about sex because, frankly, it's none of my business.

Martin: If we can digress here for a minute. Previously, we've published information about the AIDS virus and that, just from a physical-size standpoint, they jump through prophylactics like basketball hoops.

Maggiore: There was something in Time magazine or Newsweek, I can't remember which, many years ago, when herpes was a big scare. They said that the only course of prevention was abstinence, because viruses are smaller than the pores in a condom.

Martin: That's right.

Maggiore: There's no way to protect yourself. Suddenly, with this, you've got a different rule. I don't understand that.

Martin: There's such a myth about “safe sex”. There's no such thing as safe sex, other than abstinence.

Maggiore: The thing is, it's “safer”, in a way, to kind-of back-peddle on

Keep in Mind These Helpful Facts About Testing HIV Positive:

- Viral antibodies alone do not cause or predict illness; in fact, they are an indication of a normal, healthy immune response and provide protection from disease. There is no evidence to indicate that HIV antibodies differ in any way from helpful, protective antibodies.
- Since HIV antigens cross-react with antibodies produced in response to numerous diseases and microbes commonly found in normal, healthy people, a positive HIV test result does not confirm past exposure to HIV.
- Since HIV antibody tests have never been calibrated against virus isolation, their true accuracy has never been established, which means that there is no substantiation for the claim that testing HIV positive indicates a present infection of HIV.
- People in AIDS risk groups are at high risk for testing false positive on HIV antibody tests. Injection drug users, hemophiliacs, blood transfusion recipients, people from areas of the world where malaria, hepatitis, tuberculosis, leprosy, and parasitic infections are endemic, and certain gay men have been exposed to many foreign antigens and infectious agents documented to give false positive results on HIV tests.
- Actual HIV is never directly detected in people who test positive on the antibody test.
- Viral load tests cannot diagnose illness, measure HIV infection, or determine state of health. Viral load tests do not detect actual viruses and are not approved by the FDA for diagnostic use. As the manufacturers' own literature states, the test “is not intended to be used to confirm the presence of HIV...”.
- No type of viral load test has ever been verified by virus isolation.
- In the only published study that compares viral load results against the finding of HIV by co-culture, more than half of the people with detectable levels of viral load had zero virus.<sup>230</sup>
- It is possible to receive an AIDS diagnosis even though you are not ill or suffering from any symptoms of immune suppression.

that.

Martin: It isn't, really.

Maggiore: The thing is, when you look at the chart in the book, it shows the difference between the rate of venereal disease infections, truly sexually transmitted infections—

Martin: Right. Well, it does cut that down.

Maggiore: —and what is called a “sexually transmitted disease”. You see that there ARE reasons that one would want to consider practicing what's known as safer sex, certainly.

Martin: Right, right.

Maggiore: But, as one doctor who I respect very much, Dr. Peter Duesberg, who's a professor of molecular and cell biology at U.C. Berkeley, who is the man who introduced me to this information, says: “It doesn't help much to tell people to wear a gas mask to protect themselves from machine-gun fire.”

If you're wearing a condom to try to protect yourself from immune suppression, while at the same time you're not eating properly, you're using intravenous drugs, staying up all night, and having all sorts of infections, that's like wearing a gas mask to protect yourself from machine-gun fire. It's not going to work.

Martin: Right. So, again, common concerns among general audiences have been?

Maggiore: Usually it just falls into two categories: (1) we can't talk about it because it's dangerous information; if you tell this you'll undo all the years of AIDS education and safe-sex campaigns; that's usually what I get. And then some people throw out: (2) “Oh, you're a homophobe.”

Martin: In your book you also mention “Incorrect information about HIV-AIDS costs lives.” Can you explain what you mean by that?

Maggiore: Test HIV positive, and believe that you're infected with a virus, and all sorts of terrible things can happen to you. If you accept the idea that testing positive on an HIV-antibody test means that you are infected with a lethal virus, then it can do much damage—if you accept that as true, and begin living as if that were true, and essentially begin living as if you are dying.

In Western society we tend to downplay the damaging effects, and sometimes even the positive affects, of what we hold to be true. Yet all medicines—in responsible testing—are tested against placebos. Placebos are inert substances given to people, without them knowing they're inert substances, because we know that the power of expectation can cure people.

There's one study that I cited in the book in which patients who adhered to their placebo regime, while others taking the same placebo did not, the ones who adhered to their placebo medicine, what they believed would help them, actually lived longer than the ones who didn't regularly take their placebo. That's how powerful is what we believe, and that's acknowledged right in the medical literature. So, if that alone can cost a life, then taking powerful, powerful chemotherapy drugs, spending years on non-specific antibiotics, taking experimental protease inhibitor drugs, that can cost your life.

Another kind of damage may be in deciding not to have a child. I can give you many examples of women who, during prenatal screening, came up positive, and who then decided to abort the child. One case, in Canada, did not involve an abortion, but a woman who was told that she was HIV positive, and when she was in the hospital delivering her baby, she gave the baby up for adoption, and had surgery so she could never have children again.

It was later discovered that she was not HIV positive; the test was wrong. And so, she's sterile, without the child because of that. This affects lives on a very deep level!

When you have to do what a woman who called me on New Year's Day does, she had to check herself out of a hospital “against medical advice”, take her son, and flee the state because she wound up in the hospital, they found out she was HIV positive, and that she was nursing because she had to pump her breast milk. And they made motions to take her son away from her, and declare her “incompetent”, mentally incompetent.

They gave her one of those psychological evaluations where they asked her if she'd rather be a race-car driver or a florist. (Laughter) I mean, really dumb stuff like that, and determined she was incompetent. She was placing her son's life in danger because she'd never had an HIV test done. That affects somebody's life. She had to leave the state, on New Year's Day, or as soon as she could get out of the hospital, and she can't go back.

It costs lives in Africa, where people with malaria are not given malaria treatment if they also test HIV positive because there's not enough medicine to go around. And if you test HIV positive, well, you're going to die anyway, so you don't get the malaria treatment.

This is not really an intellectual discussion or semantics about categories and illness. Every single day somebody's life is affected by this in profound and irrevocable ways. And everyone should have access to ALL the facts about this.

That's why the organization that I run does not take any contributions from the pharmaceutical industry, any level of government, or any entity that limits our access to information about HIV, AIDS, and health.

Martin: That's also one of my next questions. Let's talk about your own foundation.

Maggiore: We're here to provide information. This is not about a “belief system” or a “philosophy”, or “you always hang-out with us, you'll always be healthy”. This is about providing people with information so they can make important decisions about their lives and health—and emphasize: make up their own minds.

We're here to help people avoid these sorts of situations that the woman found herself in on New Year's Day. We're here to help people out of those sorts of situations—to recommend, whenever and wherever we can, empathetic and enlightened health practitioners who regard them as individuals, rather than impending statistics.

And we're also raising money to conduct many of the scientific and medical studies that should have been conducted years ago. We talked about one at the beginning of this interview, which is verifying if a positive HIV-antibody test, how often, if ever, that correlates with the presence of the actual virus. We are also raising money to do that.

And we hope, this year, to verify or refute a few of the popular assumptions about these diagnostic tests, including T-cells and viral load. So we work on a lot of different fronts, and we're constantly trying to create awareness among health persons, critical thinkers, health activists, other advocates of compassion and social change, trying to introduce them into this discussion, and bring them the information that they probably haven't had a chance to look at or consider. We also do that, too.

And we provide, at a local level, free public meetings, community events, classes, support groups called “Not Another Support Group” for people who test HIV positive and want to ask questions that go outside the confines of mainstream AIDS thinking.

And we also have groups that we support who advocate, and make possible, informed choice. We support them with our resources, and that includes our materials and our monetary forces, throughout the country and Canada, and also we have a couple of groups in Africa, now. Each group works under its own name. We don't ask people to adopt our name.

Martin: Where in Africa?

Maggiore: We have one in South Africa, Cape Town; there are a couple of people in Kenya, Zambia, and Tanzania. These are people who come to us. We don't go out recruiting, generally speaking, because we don't have time.

Martin: This is an aside. Have you heard anything about the so-called “Indigo Children”, some of whom have been born HIV positive, only to later test negative for any disease?

Maggiore: Well, 35% of the time a child born testing HIV positive will go on to test HIV negative, without any medical intervention. And that's because the child discards the antibodies passed on from the

[Continued on page 14]

The American Foundation for AIDS Alternatives

Many experts now contend that AIDS is not a fatal, incurable condition caused by HIV, and that the symptoms associated with AIDS are treatable using nontoxic, immune-enhancing therapies that have restored the health of people diagnosed with AIDS and have allowed those at risk to remain well.

The American Foundation for AIDS Alternatives questions the HIV=AIDS=Death paradigm based on a growing body of scientific, medical, and epidemiological data and promotes awareness of life-affirming facts to HIV-positive diagnosed persons and concerned citizens worldwide. We are a 501(c)3 nonprofit corporation founded by HIV positives who have learned to live in wellness without AIDS drugs and without fear of AIDS.

In addition to sponsoring medical research into practical, health-enhancing approaches to resolving AIDS and funding scientific studies that objectively examine the HIV hypothesis, we work locally by providing a yearly calendar of free community events and classes, and work globally by sharing our resources with other groups and associations throughout the world that promote informed choices for people affected by HIV and AIDS.

Christine Maggiore

The American Foundation for AIDS Alternatives is one of the only AIDS organizations anywhere that does not solicit or accept funding from the pharmaceutical industry, the US government, or any entity that may limit public access to factual information about HIV, AIDS, and health.

The American Foundation For AIDS Alternatives
11684 Ventura Boulevard
Studio City, CA 91604
(877) 92-ALIVE
Email: AFAA@aliveandwell.org

Please send me _____ book(s) for $10.95 plus $2.00 postage per book.

Enclosed is a check or money order       Please bill my Visa or Mastercard

Cardholder Name _____

Account # _____ Expiration Date _____

Signature _____

I want to support your efforts by including a tax-deductible donation:

$25     $50     $100     $250     $500     $1000     $ _____

Please send me a copy of your information catalog.

Please add me to your national mailing list.

Name: _____

Address: _____

City: _____ State: _____ Zip: _____

The American Foundation For AIDS Alternatives
11684 Ventura Boulevard
Studio City, CA 91604

"Christine Maggiore writes clearly for any reader, the simple truth about AIDS."
 — Kary Mullis, PhD 1993 Nobel Laureate

What if everything you thought you knew about AIDS WAS WRONG?

The book that will change your view
 of HIV and AIDS...
 and possibly change your life.

CHRISTINE MAGGIORE

mother as they develop their own immune system. So, I could introduce you to a lot of Indigo Children, (laughter) many, many Indigo Children.

Martin: Are you familiar with the term?

Maggiore: No, I haven't heard that, actually.

Martin: There's a book called The Indigo Children, which is about the new "super kids" who are being born now around the world, just super bright, intuitive, extremely talented, and really, basically, a handful.

Maggiore: Hey! That describes my son! (Laughter)

Martin: Yes, I kind-of figured it did. The book is called The Indigo Children, by Jan Tober and Lee Carroll. It's really a very cool book, and that is my next interview, with that author. I will send you that interview when it's done.

Maggiore: I'd love to see that. My son, at 18 months, had a vocabulary that exceeded 200 properly used words. He's just amazing, and quite a handful, bless him.

Martin: If you had to distill it down and make some closing remarks to our readers, who, by the way, are extremely thoughtful people, what ideas would you like to leave them with? In what ways can they be helpful, in this general subject?

Maggiore: How they can be helpful is to become informed. First of all, the first step to becoming informed is to give this a chance. And I know, for a lot of people who are compassionate and well-informed, this may come as a great surprise, even a shock, perhaps even seem at first glance like this just couldn't possibly be true. How could so many people be wrong? That's another one of those questions.

Martin: I'm sure that question comes up.

Maggiore: Yeah, but you know, consensus was never meant—just because people agree on an idea doesn't make it true or good. I would ask people to consider that. And just because somebody has never heard of something, doesn't mean that something is wrong or incorrect.

I think that most good people, given a chance, most thinking people given a chance, will examine this information and feel moved, will understand that things are not as they have been told. And I think what they can do is become informed themselves, then become a source of information for others, and then do what I once heard a character in a film say:

"Touch the lives of people whose paths you cross"—that is, if they don't feel like getting involved on a larger scale.

My book is inexpensive and brief enough where anybody could get an extra copy and donate it to a public library, send it to a friend, a doctor, a church official, a politician, just spread the word. When enough people are aware of this, then things will change.

And until that time, unfortunately, the small—I admit, it's a small number of people who test HIV positive in this country and are affected by this—but they are people and they are people like me with feelings and children and lives. It's really hard to live with everybody's bad ideas and prejudices in the public health policies, and even laws, constructed around this bad idea.

I still—and I guess until my son is 18, perhaps—live with the fear of the knock on the door in the middle of the afternoon, somebody coming to tell me that I'm an irresponsible parent, and taking my son from me. That's not right. That's not the way it should be.

Martin: Is that where you'd like to end it?

Maggiore: Sure, yes.

Martin: Thank you for a great interview!

PREPAREDNESS EXPO 2000

The Cal Expo – Pavilion, Sacramento, California

February 18, 19 & 20

For interested readers, SPECTRUM will have a booth at the upcoming Preparedness 2000 Expo in Sacramento. Rick and Gail will be present to answer questions and accept subscriptions and book orders.

Speakers include:

- ▶ Dr. Len Horowitz    ▶ Bo Gritz    ▶ Jack McLamb    ▶ Joyce Riley    ▶ Brice Taylor
  - ▶ Dr. Tsu-Tsair    ▶ Herbalist David Christopher    ▶ Former Sheriff Richard Mack
- And Many Others

Additional Expos will be:

Dallas – April 8, 9 & 10
Seattle – July 28, 29 & 30

Atlanta – June 2, 3 & 4
Minneapolis – September 8, 9 & 10
Denver – December 1, 2 & 3

Finding Your Natural State Of Inner Energy Balance

1/28/00 SOLTEC

Good afternoon, my friend. It is I, Ceres Anthonious “Toniose” Soltec, come in service to The One Light—Creator Source. Be at peace.

Allow for the changes in your environment to unfold as they will. There are many, many variables at this time impacting and molding the physical condition of your planet. Not the least of these is the mental and emotional states of you who are directly experiencing in and upon your orb.

As a scientist and as Geophysical Commander with the Intergalactic Federation Fleet monitoring and guiding the transition of your planet at this critical time of cleansing and upward frequency shifting, I am often challenged to find compassion about what I witness being attempted by the ignorant and arrogant scientists directing ever more destructive experiments utilizing their secret technologies.

Pay close attention, for example, to the storms that are getting more and more unusual (such as the recent 8-pound, and larger, hail balls falling in parts of Europe) and KNOW that Mother Earth is not simply accepting of what is being done to her without regard for her desire for cleansing, balance, and harmony. Please send her your Light and Love and know that these are the strongest forces which govern the entirety of the Omniverse.

All life can be viewed in terms of quanta of energy. All energy can be traced back to its origin—back to Creator Source. All change comes about due to shifts in energy flow. The emotional energy “feelings” of joy are experienced when there is achieved, within one’s own perceptual space of experience, a harmonious balance between seemingly opposed energy extremes. Hence, we of the Lighted Realms of Creation often offer the advice that the best route towards survival and growth is balance. SEEK FIRST BALANCE WITHIN, PRIOR TO MAKING ANY MAJOR DECISION.

We have also told you ones, time and time again, that if you can’t do a thing with love in your heart, then it is better to not do it until you can. Love and appreciation are natural byproducts when TRUE balance is achieved between the heart and the head (the emotional and the mental).

It is a most worthy endeavor to seek and find balance on any subject that causes you difficulty. In doing so, you will be, in essence, on a journey of deliberate self-discovery. The primary purpose of the physical environment is that of a schoolroom. Each of you are both a student and a teacher—with something to learn and something to give to others. That “something” is always related to the greater understanding of who you (the immortal soul-you) are. With understanding will also be the need to balance the responsibility that comes along with this knowledge.

All life can be viewed in terms of quanta of energy. All energy can be traced back to its origin—back to Creator Source. All change comes about due to shifts in energy flow. The emotional energy “feelings” of joy are experienced when there is achieved, within one’s own perceptual space of experience, a harmonious balance between seemingly opposed energy extremes. Hence, we of the Lighted Realms of Creation often offer the advice that the best route towards survival and growth is balance. SEEK FIRST BALANCE WITHIN, PRIOR TO MAKING ANY MAJOR DECISION.

Many of you ones have experienced that you can direct your energies toward others and effect change. Most ones do this through compassion, faith, and prayer, wherein direct responsibility for the energies set into motion can be attributed to their deity of choice. Some of you have learned that visualization nicely focuses energy to effect desired change, and are willing to accept responsibility for your energy flows.

Most are not consciously aware of the nature of the energy they put forth. Again, all energy can trace its origin back to Creator Source. This energy has INFINITE potential when it is deliberately focused by the mind and heart of a truly balanced entity.

One of the most overlooked, but very observable, conditions in place in your current physical environment is the Law of Return. This has been called many things, such as the Law of Cause and Effect or the Law of Karma. In essence—that energy which you send forth will go out to the far reaches of the Creation, become amplified, and be reflected directly back to YOU. In other words, if you dwell upon a state of balance and peacefulness, and you send this energy out to the world and universes beyond, this energy will be reflected back to you, amplified, and the result will be greater perceptual ability to find, maintain, and achieve balance, and its natural byproduct, peace.

There are entities who thrive upon usurping another’s energy. One of the most successful tactic used by these ones is that of DISTRACTION. Seemingly small distractions can keep one preoccupied, and thus focused in such a way as to miss the point of view that will allow the answer to come forth for the given challenge with which one is faced in the moment. It can be in the form of the annoying fly that seems to keep pestering you. Or the troublesome thought that keeps you from falling into restful sleep. Or any number of other distractions.

Unfortunately, we observe that most of you see not the subtle techniques of these ones who constantly try to manipulate any and all who may be susceptible to same. Often those who do recognize this subtle game of manipulation are not directly affected by it—but rather, those around them are constantly stirring up confusion, anger, frustration, and such.

The natural state for ALL of God’s creations is one of balance and peace, for all are born of infinite Love. Those who choose or have chosen to deliberately focus energy in such a manner as to disrupt this natural balance will quickly become restless and agitated as they naturally would prefer balance and will, in some cases, thrash about seeking to find what they have seemingly lost—all the while leaving confusion and “hard feelings” in their wake.

Personal balance always comes from within. You may very well perceive that you are somehow the victim of another’s actions. I say that, if you study the situation closely, you will ALWAYS find that your experience is a direct result of YOUR energy flows that are being reflected back to you—ones that you have originated anywhere from recently to long past.

For example, if you excessively worry about being attacked, and you are constantly allowing your imagination to mock-up scenarios of being attacked, you are in essence creating the necessary circumstances that will result in your “worst nightmare”. Likewise, a positive focus on what you hold in your heart to be good, balanced, and peaceful, will result in more of the same.

Do you EXPECT balance in your life? I say to you ones that it is the NATURAL state of your true self!

Each of you have very real challenges to face. Each challenge is well within your ability to handle. Allow for the Creative Energies to flow to you, and through you, at all times, and you will find that there is truly nothing that you cannot handle or face.

Fear is the result of disconnecting self from the balancing and nurturing energy of Creator Source. The natural state is that of connectedness to All That Is. In the moment that a distraction becomes impacting enough for you to “forget” to stay connected, you have greatly diminished your ability to tap into the Creative Energy that would naturally allow for the balanced solution to present itself.

Ah! But such is the nature of the challenges of the 3rd-dimensional schoolroom environment called Earth. You are given free will to choose as you will, and yet so quickly we see ones distracted by the “shocking” news, the distorted “gossip”, the annoying fly buzzing around the ear. Be quick to recognize even the smallest of distractions for what they are. Even extremely good news can serve as a distraction if you are not careful! Again, seek to achieve and maintain BALANCE in all your experiences.

Do not worry about the past distractions that you have “fallen” for; they are gone and provided experiential data from which to draw upon. Look for those experiences around you wherein you begin to feel yourself shifting toward less-than-balanced thoughts. Are there ones who deliberately and constantly try to impress you with “shocking” news or gossip? If so, what is your FEELING response? Do you recognize the very subtle downward frequency shifts that occur within you? How about while you are watching the evening news? Are these shifts truly worth the “price” of allowing yourself to be distracted from more productive endeavors?

I am not saying: “Don’t watch the evening news.” I am, however, trying to point out to you the relative ease with which many of you allow yourselves to become distracted, and lose your focus and goals.

Learn to observe your own reactions to external stimulation. Learn to interpret the meaning of your reactionary feelings. Do you habitually go back for more “shock therapy”, say from a gossipy neighbor or every evening when the television news comes back on? We have stated, many times past, that your current mass media sources do not have your best interests in mind!

It is possible to watch your televisions without becoming influenced by what you are observing, but it is indeed very difficult to do so. Many ones are quite susceptible to the overt impact upon your conscious mind—let alone the MANY covert subliminal messages being programmed directly into your mind without being examined at the conscious level.

[Editors note: See the eye-opening News Desk articles elsewhere in this issue of The SPECTRUM about the children’s Pokémon cartoon program if you want a good example of what Soltec speaks about here. This kind of subliminal mind-control is routinely taken to quite sophisticated levels (though rarely admitted) in both print and broadcast media advertising, with the justification for such sneaky avenues of impact being the expense of, say, even a short Super Bowl spot.]

Just as important are those with whom you are interacting on a regular basis who do not even begin to suspect that they are being used as pawns of manipulation. Often these ones may very well be within your own family circle.

Many of you who are drawn to the type of information like you are now reading, from we of the Higher Realms, have been “persecuted” to some extent by friends and family for having such “ridiculous” beliefs. Can you look upon these ridiculing ones with compassion, and see that their fears are generated and exploited by the programming from the dark ones who do not wish to have their games of control and manipulation come to an end?

In almost all cases, the ones who are awake enough to attack you—because you think and believe differently than the so-called “norm”—are the very ones who you have most come to assist. If you have participated in emotional debates with loved ones who have pronounced you a “duped fool” or a member of a “cult”, please know that these criticizing ones are responding to you as they have been programmed to do—usually from an early age.

Most often these very judgmental proclamations will come as a result of you destabilizing their mental conditioning. Their only recourse of action will seem to be to attack, in a reactionary emotional episode of anger, ridicule, taunting or such.

A person who is truly beyond the manipulation of the adversarial forces will never stoop to ridicule, taunting, anger, etc. A truly balanced person will always find a way to stay connected, and compassion will always be offered as a response. Driving wedges of anger between people only serves to divide, and thus separate, in most cases, the student and the teacher. Be quick to spot these subtle games and be as compassionate as you can with those who do not see or understand the nature of the games being played.

The planetary transformation WILL occur—regardless of who does or does not choose to accept the natural evolutionary energy shifts. Our mission—as Guides and Teachers, and in association with the Intergalactic Federation Fleet supervising your current planetary transformation—is to offer, to all who will hear, the information that will help them to understand what exactly is taking place at this time on your orb.

Never underestimate the enormous potential you each possess. Never count another “out” for there are still great “surprises” yet to unfold that will make your current experience quite grand as the spontaneity of Life and Living are continually molded and modified.

Remember that you each are contributors to the “perceptual reality play” in progress all around you. That play is forever changing, while constantly shifting upward in frequency in response to the high-frequency energies bathing your planet at this time with greater and greater intensity. With the higher energy shifts come a faster and faster turnaround time in the completion of the cycles of the “Law of Return”. It would be wise to keep this in mind as incentive for seeking balance in all that you do!

Learn, please, to appreciate all of the experiences you have as being SELF-generated. If you do not care for what you are now experiencing, then perhaps it is time to move away from the old “habits of thought” and re-write the programming. This is much easier said than done. However, anything truly worth accomplishing will naturally present itself as a challenge.

Compassion, Love, and Forgiveness are perhaps the greatest tools at your command which will transmute any negativity into truly helpful experiences for all involved. Compassion, Love, and Forgiveness will dissolve any “wedge of anger” between ones, and help to fortify the natural connection between you and all of God’s creations.

We are ALL energy manifestations of Creator’s Desire. Within this Desire we are all ONE!

I am Ceres Anthonious “Toniose” Soltec, come forth in the Radiance of The One Light of Creator Source. I am Friend, Guide, and Teacher, in Service that those who desire these messages of inspirational guidance may have the “tools” in order to find the inner balance and peace they seek. May the Energy (Love) behind these written words help you to find this natural state of balance.

In Light and Love—Salu.

A person who is truly beyond the manipulation of the adversarial forces will never stoop to ridicule, taunting, anger, etc. A truly balanced person will always find a way to stay connected, and compassion will always be offered as a response.

Colloidal Silver: Exploring A Great Healing Legacy

Editor's note: If you've been paying attention to the news lately, emergency rooms in many locations are filled to overflowing with people suffering from "resistant strains of super-bugs" which conventional antibiotic treatments "won't even touch" according to the candid admissions of the panicky physicians themselves. Even people who normally "never get sick" are coming down with, especially, upper respiratory (and sometimes cardiac) problems of a quite severe or persistent nature. Some people are simply "run down" and don't know why they have no energy. Others say they just have "the flu" as a way to dismiss a vague array of aches and pains and fevers and other discomforting symptoms.

Our immune systems are trying to do their best in a very hostile environment compounded over the past year and a half by mysterious aerial chemical/pathogenic "contrail" or "chemtrail" sprayings going on. That hostile environment in which our immune systems are expected to still function has long included: diminished nutritional content of food (through demineralized soil, irradiation, genetic manipulations, and the generally deplorable methods of modern agribusiness), chemical additives, artificial sweeteners, nasty air and water pollutions, purposeful (secret) electronic bombardments denying many people a good night's sleep, and a generally more intense pace of living (due to those who control our economy) that sees more and more people under increasing amounts of job and home stress with little time to unwind and enjoy life.

Along with vitamins, trace minerals have long been known to play a critical role in maintaining good health. Food products—particularly fruits and vegetables—once supplied all of the trace minerals and other trace elements in easily assimilated forms. But not anymore. How can they when so many fruits and veggies are themselves "starving" due to the artificial and aggressive farming methods of modern agribusiness?

If you could dig out the research on any vegetable's food-value analysis for the years of, say, 1910-1940-1970-1999, you would be alarmed at how "empty" our foods have gradually become since the turn of the century—and especially since modern agribusiness has replaced "old-fashioned" farming techniques. Thus, there is an ever increasing need for supplements in order to achieve and maintain nutritional balance from which our bodies can further synthesize its wide range of specific needs.

A subset of these trace minerals or elements have long been known and used (before antibiotics were forced onto the scene by the large pharmaceutical companies) to combat illnesses and infections of many kinds. Elemental silver is the most well known and outstanding among this category and deserves a closer examination—especially as those emergency rooms fill up and the doctors wring their hands and shake their heads in bewildered panic.

After all, most modern physicians have been well trained (or better yet, mind controlled) by the pharmaceutical companies to follow a specific path which heavily utilizes their expensive products—and heaven help the doctors if they stray from that path of Big Medicine. No wonder so many people are taking health matters back into their own hands and are searching for alternatives to the conventional "wisdom" of "Dr. Drugs". Go back and read Dr. Richard Schulze's comments in our December 1999 issue of The SPECTRUM for excellent background on this subject of alternative healing modalities and the true miracles which can often be achieved through that route. Or as Dr. Schulze put it: "There's no cure for so many diseases today. Medicine has been a big failure." Oops!

We are sharing the following information with you as a "do it yourself" refuge should you have a need for such. Or even if you simply have a curiosity concerning this subject. After all, it is a most practical avenue of healing which seems to have been purposely hidden from public awareness many decades ago as part of a larger, darkly motivated agenda having little to do with promoting good health and much to do with making money while indirectly decreasing the population—as has been one of the New World Order gang's goals, stated all the way back in their secret Club of Rome reports from the early 1950s.

1/15/00 NOREY LATONA

Many of you regular readers will recall, maybe with a feeling of some alarm or anger, the short article Dr. Overholt ran in his News Desk column in the September 1999 issue of The SPECTRUM (page 9) regarding the Food & Drug Administration's "crackdown" on colloidal silver. After several years of begrudging tolerance, the FDA has taken steps to classify colloidal silver as a drug. This—in conjunction with other devious tactics—will, in all likelihood, lead to making colloidal silver very difficult to obtain and the price going up through the roof. This seems to be an ongoing goal of the FDA—ever since colloidal silver was rediscovered in recent years and has become steadily more popular.

For the complete report, go to the Federal Register Online via GPO Access (http://www.access.gpo.gov/su\_docs/aces/aces140.html) and search the words "colloidal silver" in the 1999 records. Open the text document titled "fr17au99R, Over-the-Counter Drug Products Containing Colloidal Silver". Federal Register: August 17, 1999 (Volume 64, Number 158); Rules and Regulations, Page 44653-44658.

Keep in mind that the following information on colloidal silver is being offered as educational material only. Neither The SPECTRUM newspaper nor myself make any claims or accept any liability regarding one's personal choice to make or use colloidal products. The reader may want to consult with professional medical advice prior to taking any health-related product.

Before we get into the specific details of making your own colloidal silver, let me set the stage of introducing this subject by offering the following good article. Other articles are available on the Internet (mostly being used by ones selling colloidal silver) and can be found by searching "colloidal silver". This article provides a short but detailed and well-documented (with references included) history of usage of colloidal silver. I am sharing this important background information for those of you who may not be familiar with colloidal silver or its many remarkable attributes.

[QUOTING:]

Report On Colloidal Silver

by Dr. Dellyn Hansen of Orem, Utah

Silver is a powerful, natural prophylactic/antibiotic, used for thousands of years, with no side effects. It is a catalyst, disabling the particular enzyme that all one-celled bacteria, fungi, and viruses use for their oxygen metabolism; they suffocate.

Yet it is of no harm to human enzymes or any part of the human body chemistry. And it kills all disease-causing organisms, in six minutes or less, upon contact—even those pleomorphic, no matter how they mutate. Resistant strains fail to develop, and the body doesn't develop a tolerance.

Colloidal silver is both a remedy and a prevention of infections of any kind. Having sufficient colloidal silver in your body is to have a superior, second immune system.

It was in common use until 1938. Great grandma put a silver dollar in the milk to keep it fresh at room temperature. (Ref: 1,9)

ESTABLISHED USAGE

Oral Formula (4-oz. bottle): After taking one teaspoon daily for four days, take one half-teaspoon daily, as adults (and proportional, by body weight, for children), or apply directly to cuts, scrapes, and open sores, or put a few drops on a small Band-Aid and wear over warts, cuts, abrasions, or any open sore, or dab directly onto eczema or such itchy areas, or acne, mosquito bites, or any skin problem.

Water is purified by adding one half-teaspoon per gallon, shake well, wait six minutes, and shake again, wait six minutes, and drink. Mix it this way (it's tasteless) and drink two quarts, over a day's time, especially with meals, as a great digestive aid, because it eliminates fermentation.

It is the ideal food preservative, because it is also good for you. Use in canning at one-quarter teaspoon per quart.

Those already using colloidal silver report that they catch milder, and fewer if any, colds or flu. The emphasis is on the prevention of all infections.

There are never any side effects. It never does any harm to the liver, kidneys, any other organ, system, or any part of the body.

No one has ever overdosed, regardless of the amount, as it is not at all an allopathic poison.

The Intravenous Formula (1/2-oz. bottle/adult, proportional) is often preferred as it is more long-lasting and, for some people, works better. Syringes are available from veterinary suppliers, like IFA. (Ref: 1,7,9)

RECOGNIZED REMEDIES

The following is a partial list of the more than 650 diseases that colloidal silver has been used successfully against: acne, acne rosacea, AIDS (Ref: 2), allergies, appendicitis, arthritis, athlete's foot, tuberculosis, bladder inflammation, blood parasites (cause gray hair), blood poisoning, boils, bubonic plague, burns, cancer (Ref: 7,8), candida, chilblains, cholera, colitis, conjunctivitis, cystitis, diabetes (Ref: 1), dysentery, eczema, fibrositis, gastritis, gonorrhea, hay fever, herpes, impetigo, indigestion, keratitis, leprosy, leukemia, lupus, lymphangitis, lyme disease, malaria, meningitis, neurasthenia, parasitic infections (both viral and fungal), pneumonia, pleurisy, prostate, pruritus ani, psoriasis, purulent ophthalmia, rhinitis, rheumatism, ringworm, scarlet fever, septic conditions of the eyes, ears, mouth, and throat, seborrhea, septicemia, shingles, skin cancer, staph infections, strep infections, syphilis, thyroid, tonsillitis, toxemia, trachoma, trenchfoot, dermatitis, all forms of virus, warts, whooping cough, yeast infections, stomach ulcers, and also canine parvovirus and other veterinary uses. Also in all bacterial, fungal, and viral attacks on plants. Simply spray diluted silver on the leaves and add to soil water. (Ref: 1,2,3,4,7,8).

ADDITIONALLY

There has never been a drug interaction with any other medication. Colloidal silver has been found to be both a remedy and a prevention for all colds, all flu, all infections, and all fermentation due to any bacteria, fungus, or virus, especially staph and strep, which are found present in every disease condition.

Through simple high school biology studies we learn that all living things exist in the colloidal form. The body can more readily use medications already in the colloidal form, as opposed to crystalline. Colloidal silver is the most useable form of the most effective disease fighter there is. The body actually needs colloidal silver to fight disease-causing organisms, and to aid healing.

The adult RDA for silver is 400 milligrams. Taken orally each day, it's like having a second immune system. Older folks feel younger because their body energies are used for something other than fighting disease, and digestion is better.

Medical research has proven that silver promotes rapid healing, with less scar tissue, even in the case of severe burns. Silver aids the developing fetus in growth, health, and eases the delivery and recovery. Fantastic successes have been reported in many cases previously given up by establishment doctors. Colloidal silver is tasteless and won't sting, even baby's eyes, and won't upset the stomach.

It is produced today by a modernized original process, at a tiny fraction of the pre-1938 cost, and is more concentrated. The product contains no free radicals, as the silver acts only as a catalyst, and is stabilized. This is not a chemical compound containing silver, but pure metallic silver of submicroscopic clusters of just a few atoms, held in suspension, in pure water, by the tiny electric charge on each atom.

It is absolutely non-toxic (except to some one-celled plants and animals) and non-addicting. Colloidal silver is the remedy for all infections, even the non-apparent, low-grade general body infections most people have. Parasites are also killed, as they have an egg-stage in their reproductive cycle which is one-celled and therefore killed in six minutes or less).

It is a good idea to keep colloids from freezing, and in a cool, dark place. (Ref: 1,2,9)

Ref. 1: Use Of Colloids In Health And Disease. Colloidal silver is proven particularly effective in cases of intestinal troubles. Dr. Henry Crooks found that silver in the colloidal state is highly germicidal, quite harmless to humans, and absolutely non-toxic. Rather than in chemical compounds, the silver in the colloidal state may be applied in a much more concentrated form, with correspondingly better results. All fungus, virus, bacterium, streptococcus, staphylococcus, and other pathogenic organisms are killed in three or four minutes; in fact, there is no microbe known that is not killed by colloidal silver in six minutes or less, at a dilution of as weak as 5 parts per million, though there are no side effects whatsoever from high concentrations.

Ref. 2: Provo Herald, 13 Feb. 92, pg. D1: "Colloidal Silver As A Cure For AIDS".

Ref. 3: American Drug Index, the section on Inorganic Pharmaceutical Chemistry recognized silver for its germicidal action, calling a stabilized form "mild silver protein". There are several forms of mild silver protein.

Ref. 4: The Condensed Chemical Dictionary, 6th Edition: mild silver protein is listed for medical use (the "protein" is the trace used as a stabilizer).

Ref. 5: The FDA has stated that because colloidal silver is (by fifty years) a pre-1938 drug, it may continue to be marketed. A 13 Sept. 1991 letter received from consumer safety officer Harold Davis, U.S. Food & Drug Administration. Moreover, the FDA has no jurisdiction regarding a pure, mineral element.

Ref. 6: The Environmental Protection Agency's Poison Control Center reports no toxicity listing for colloidal silver, considering it harmless in any concentration.

Ref. 7: Dr. Robert Becker, author of The Body Electric, recognized a correlation between low silver levels and sickness. He said the silver deficiency was responsible for the improper functioning of the immune system. Dr. Becker's experiments conclude that silver works on the full spectrum of pathogens without any side effects or damage to any cells of the body. He also states that the silver was doing something more than killing disease-causing organisms. It was also causing major growth stimulation of injured tissues. Burn patients and even elderly patients noticed more rapid healing. And he discovered that all cancer cells change back to normal cells. All strains of pathogens resistant to other antibiotics are killed by silver. Yet at that time he couldn't find a silver supplement on the market.

Ref. 8: Dr. Bjorn Nordstrom, of the Karolinska Institute, Sweden, has used silver in his cancer cure method for many years. He says the whole thing is quite simple. This brought rapid remission in patients given up by other doctors.

Ref. 9: "Silver, Our Mightiest Germ Fighter", Science Digest, March 1978. As an antibiotic, silver kills over 650 disease-causing organisms; resistant strains fail to develop. Silver is absolutely non-toxic. Silver is the best all around germ-fighter we have. Doctors are reporting that, taken internally, it works against syphilis, cholera and malaria, diabetes, and severe burns. Richard L. Davies, executive director of the Silver Institute, which monitors silver technology in 37 countries, reports: "In four years we've described 87 important new medical uses for silver."

Ref. 10: "Colloidal Preparations Of Silver In Pharmacy", British Medical Journal, Feb. 1923. Pure silver is entirely non-irritant. In tests, at very high dilution rates, exceeding two-hundred to one, it has been shown repeatedly that the rapidly exerted disinfectant action is of considerable therapeutic value.

A very important note: There are some manufacturers who have come out with a colloidal silver product of greater concentration in an attempt to improve it's effectiveness. They are operating under a false premise; the reverse is true. It is less effective and, in some cases, can even lead to toxicity. Please don't be fooled by claims of the benefits of greater concentration.

DISCLAIMER: This article on colloidal silver has been written and presented strictly for informational and educational purposes only. The information conveyed herein is based on pharmacological and other records, both ancient and modern.

Neither producer nor seller make any claims whatsoever as to any specific benefits accruing from the use of colloidal silver. Testimonials from enthusiastic users are for your information only and are not meant to imply that you will experience similar benefits or results. The value of, and the benefits and results derived from, the use of colloidal silver are subjective due to variable individual health factors and metabolic differences which tend to make the formula more or less adaptogenic.

[END QUOTING]

While the above is just one of many, many articles available on the subject of colloidal silver, it is representative of the general attributes being reported.

Another article from the Internet (<http://www.eurekaweb.com/col-s.htm>) includes more background research about colloidal silver, including what the U.S. Navy and the FDA (yes, the same FDA now going after colloidal silver) had to say about the subject years ago. It will be interesting to see how the crooks trying to take colloidal silver away from the public are going to contend with the already available scientific information praising silver. Here are some excerpts from that article.

[QUOTING:]

Suppressed Health Remedy Re-Discovered

Silver has been used in healing as far back in recorded time as 4000 BC. Persian records mention the practice of keeping water in silver vessels. The ancient Babylonian and Greek civilizations were aware of silver's ability to disinfect. Colloidal silver was used as a remedy as far back as ancient Egypt. It continued to be used in the Middle Ages to treat wounds.

The Romans reported the use of silver compounds for medical treatment. Before the days of refrigeration, silverware or a silver coin was kept in the drinking water and the milk to retard spoilage. Silverware became prized for the preparation, serving, and storage of foods because it was recognized that food processed in silver vessels stored longer and was less likely to cause illness.

According to the 1991 Grolier encyclopedia: "The element silver exhibits bactericidal properties not fully understood, although these are thought to be a result of its ability to absorb oxygen. Colloidal silver is used as an antiseptic, germicide, astringent, caustic, and for water sterilization and to arrest hemorrhaging by coagulating the blood. Astringents act by shrinking tissues and reducing the permeability (passage of gas or liquid) of membranes. They may be used internally to diminish mucous secretion in a sore throat, check diarrhea, or reduce stomach acid secretion. Externally, they are used for conditions such as cold sores, poison ivy, or hemorrhoids and as antiseptic deodorizers eliminating odor-causing microorganisms."

A sol is a colloidal system consisting of a solid dispersed in a liquid. If the dispersing medium is water, it may be called a hydrosol.

The colloidal state is a condition in which one substance is dispersed in another.

Colloids are distinguished from suspensions essentially by the small size of the dispersed particles: colloidal particulate size is approximately 0.5 to 0.001 microns. Colloidal particles do not settle and cannot be filtered by ordinary techniques (as is the case with suspensions). Because of their size, colloid particles diffuse slowly. Between suspensions and solutions lies the colloidal state; no clear distinction can be made between fine suspensions and systems of colloid particles that are close to the upper limit of the colloid range.

The Handbook Of The Hospital Corps of the United States Navy, 1953, published by the Bureau Of Medicine And Surgery under the authority of the Secretary of the Navy, NavMed P-5004, United States Government Printing Office, page 417, stated:

"Silver compounds have a wide variety of uses as caustics, astringents, antiseptics, and germicides. Their activity resides in the silver ion, which is a protein precipitant. It is toxic to bacteria by precipitating the protein in the bacteria protoplasm. Colloidal silver preparations, in which the silver does not exist to any large extent as free ions, act by the milder and sustained antiseptic effect brought about by the formation of a protein silver compound which slowly liberates small amounts of ionic silver. Colloidal silver compounds contain very little ionizable silver. Use of any silver preparation over a long period may cause permanent blue discoloration of the skin and mucous membrane, known as Argyria. The colloidal silver preparations contain high concentrations of silver, largely in non-ionized form. Their antiseptic value depends on the activity of the free silver ions and not on their content. They do not precipitate protein but penetrate the tissues. Those mentioned here are silver proteins and silver halides.

"Colloidal silver preparations are used as antiseptics, particularly for application to the mucous membranes of the eye, nose, throat, urethra, bladder, and colon. They are commonly used for infections of the upper respiratory tract. They are also effective as prophylaxis against gonorrhoea, in urethral irrigations about 1 hour after exposure. They are prepared in the form of solutions, ointments, swabs, suppositories, and tampons."

It is known that prior to 1938 colloidal silver was administered in just about every way that modern drugs are used today. These uses included intravenously, orally, and topically, i.e. throat gargle, eye drops, douche, open wounds, and burns—for which it is particularly effective due to its combined disinfectant and astringent properties. It protects the highly susceptible burn tissue from infection while promoting rapid healing.

A partial list of documented, pre-1938 uses

Medicinal Applications Of Colloidal Silver*

|                          |                      |  |
|--------------------------|----------------------|--|
| Acne                     | Encephalitis         | Purulent Ophthalmia                                  |
| AIDS                     | Fibrositis           | Rhinitis   |
| Allergies                | Gastritis            | Ringworm   |
| Appendicitis             | Gonorrhea            | Scarlet Fever  |
| Athlete's Foot           | Hay Fever            | Seborrhea  |
| Bladder infection        | Herpes               | Septic conditions of eyes,ears, mouth and throat |
| Blood parasites          | Impetigo             | Septicemia   |
| Blood poisoning          | Indigestion          | Shingles   |
| Boils                    | Keratitis            | Skin cancer  |
| Bubonic Plague           | Leprosy              | Staph infections                                     |
| Burns                    | Leukemia             | Stomach flu  |
| Cancer                   | Lupus                | Strep infections                                     |
| Candida, yeast infection | Lyme Disease         | Syphilis   |
| Chilblains               | Lymphangitis         | Thrush, yeast infection                              |
| Cholera                  | Malaria              | Thyroid  |
| Colitis                  | Meningitis           | Tonsillitis  |
| Conjunctivitis           | Neurasthenia         | Toxemia  |
| Cystitis                 | Parasitic infections | Tuberculosis   |
| Dandruff                 | Pleurisy             | Ulcerated stomach                                    |
| Dermatitis               | Pneumonia            | Virus, all forms                                     |
| Diabetes                 | Prostate             | Warts  |
| Dysentery                | Pruritus Ani         | Whooping Cough                                       |
| Eczema                   | Psoriasis            | Yeast infection, feminine                            |

(* This list is reprinted from Colloidal Silver And You, pages 10-19, published by the Silver Education Coalition, Salt Lake City, Utah.)

of colloidal silver include: acne, athlete's foot, burns, cancer (Dr. Bjorn Nordstrom of the Karolinska Institute, Sweden, has used silver in his cancer cure method for many years. Dr. Robert O. Becker MD, in extensive research and experiments with silver, discovered that all cancer cells changed back to normal.), conjunctivitis, diphtheria, diabetes, ear "affections", eczema, gastritis, impetigo, intestinal ailments, leprosy, lymphangitis, menier's symptoms, neurasthenia, canine parvo virus, pleurisy, pruritus ani, ringworm, scarlet fever, septicemia, shingles, staph infections, syphilis, tonsillitis, trachoma, ulcers, whooping cough, arthritis, bladder inflammation, blood poisoning, cholera, cystitis, dermatitis, dysentery, fibrositis, gonorrhea, herpes, influenza, keratitis, lupus, malaria, meningitis, pneumonia, prostate problems, rheumatism, rhinitis, seborrhea, skin cancer, soft sores, strep infections, tuberculosis, toxemia, trench foot, viral warts, yeast infections (i.e. candida), and many others.

Though there is no known (to this author) data regarding A.I.D.S. (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome), Dr. Gary Smith, a medical researcher, suggests that silver may be linked to the proper functioning of the immune system. While analyzing hair samples, Dr. Robert Becker noticed a correlation between low silver levels and sickness. He believed that a silver deficiency was the reason for the improper functioning of the immune system. Dr. Becker's experiments concluded that silver works on a wide range of bacteria without any adverse side effects and without damage to the cells of the body.

Dr. Becker also states that, in the presence of the silver ion, cancer cells change back to normal cells, regardless of their location in the body.

The March 1978 issue of Science Digest had an article called "Silver, Our Mightiest Germ Fighter" in which they stated that more than half of the world's airlines use silver-treated water as the method of choice for protecting passengers from water-borne diseases." Additionally, the article quoted Dr. Harry Margraf, St. Louis Missouri, as saying "Thanks to eye opening research, silver is emerging as a wonder of modern medicine. An antibiotic kills perhaps half a dozen different disease organisms, but silver kills some 650. Resistant strains fail to develop...silver is the best all around germ fighter we have."

Indeed no known bacteria have developed an immunity to silver. The comeback of silver in medicine began in the 1970s. The late Dr. Carl Moyer, chairman of Washington University's department of surgery, received a grant to develop better treatment for burn victims. He and Dr. Margraf sought an antiseptic strong enough, yet safe enough, to use over large areas of the body without reacting violently with body tissues. As a result of their efforts, many important new medical uses for silver were discovered.

Colloidal silver has been used successfully against 650 diseases. Colloidal silver can be applied to cuts, scrapes, bug bites, and skin conditions such as acne and eczema, and is so safe that it is a common practice in American hospitals for doctors to put a few drops in the eyes of newborn babies to kill bacteria that can cause blindness.

Bacteria are developing immunities to modern specialized antibiotics at an alarming rate. The medical community has acknowledged this publicly for years. The Los Angeles Times reported, in an article titled "Arsenal Of Antibiotics Failing As Resistant Bacteria Develop" for October 23, 1994: "But in the last decade, a broad resistance to antibiotics has begun to emerge. And because bacteria can transfer genes among themselves, experts only expect the resistance to grow. The potential nightmare is an Andromeda Strain, a super-microbe immune to all antibiotics that could wreak havoc." UCLA Medical Center has reported that "colloidal silver...killed every virus that was tested in the lab."

Colloidal silver is considered by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to be a pre-1938 drug. As stated in a September 13, 1991 letter by Food and Drug Administration consumer safety officer Harold Davies, the FDA has no jurisdiction regarding a pure, mineral element.

Contemporary medical tests indicate no known adverse effects, including Argyria, from the use of properly prepared colloidal silver. Argyria is the only known side effect of prolonged ingestion of large particles of silver, such as was experienced by workers in the mining and photography industry. Argyria is a cosmetic condition resulting in the permanent blue discoloration of the mucous membranes. There are no known adverse health effects of Argyria.

[Editor's note: Just to keep things accurate, a typical medical dictionary definition of Argyria is: "Deposition of silver salts in the skin from excessive oral intake. Signs: permanent blue to bronze discoloration of the skin and mucosa that is darker in regions exposed to light."]

There has never been a recorded case of drug interaction or reaction with any other medication. Colloidal silver successfully reduces the length and severity of infectious disorders. This is of immense importance in view of recent reports that infectious disease is the third largest killer on the planet.

Silver occurs naturally in the soil as a trace mineral and is one of the essential elements required by plants, animals, and man. In the past we obtained silver and other necessary minerals from the food we ate. This is no longer the case. With most of our crops grown on highly depleted, chemically fertilized soils, these minerals are no longer readily available to us except through the use of mineral supplements.

Colloidal silver consists of molecules of pure silver suspended electrically in clean drinking water. Today it is made by driving electricity into fine silver. This process tears the silver molecules apart and deposits them with a high electrical charge into the water. The highest grade colloidal silver is made from 0.999 silver in 99% distilled water.

[Editor's note: Don't be confused by the mixed terminology used here, where one parameter is specified in parts-per-thousand and the other is in percent. The 0.999 silver is what is called in the industry "fine" and translates into 99.9% pure silver.]

Colloidal silver destroys bacteria and simple infections, viruses, yeast, fungi, and parasites (in their egg stage), while protecting the natural enzymes of the body.

It is accepted fact that the best (and usually the most expensive) water treatment system filters contain silver. Recent advancements in water treatment systems for the booming home spa and pool industry incorporate silver in the filter element in the intake, as well as a device which utilizes a floating solar photovoltaic cell which energizes silver elements to make colloidal silver continuously while exposed to the Sun's rays. While both of these methods dramatically reduce the cost of pool upkeep, they are unsuitable for our purposes, due to the use of ALLOY elements.

Today, with advances in technology, the manufacture of colloidal silver is far advanced and superior to the antiquated "grind" method that was most popular pre-1938. The ONLY form of silver that can be used safely as a dietary supplement is colloidal silver. The most advantageous and highest quality colloidal silver is a result of the electro-colloidal non-chemical procedure using the electric current technique. This method allows for the concentration of colloidal silver to be measured in parts per million (PPM). The best way to ascertain if a product is a true colloidal silver is by reviewing the ingredients. Additives or stabilizers may make the product unsuitable. Refrigeration may indicate that there is an ingredient (additive) that might spoil at room temperature. Longterm stability is an important aspect of colloidal silver.

Trying to impress the public, some companies go for a higher concentration (thousands of parts per million) of the silver, but then necessity requires that they use stabilizers or a protein to bond the silver. The major problem with the use of stabilizers and proteins is that they reduce the antimicrobial benefits by bonding to the silver, and so therefore require higher levels of silver to compensate for this reduced effectiveness. This is where great caution should be taken. Consuming hundreds of times the recommended amount of stabilized silver may result in Argyria, a cosmetic condition with no known ill-health effects.

There are no known documented cases of Argyria from the use of pure (no stabilizers or additives) electro-colloidal silver. Of special note: there is an inherent electrical charge in the hydro-carbon molecule of plastic containers. This draws the silver out of solution, binding it to the walls of the container, though this effect is slow. Plastic containers are suitable for short term storage of high potency colloidal silver. It is also sensitive to light and heat. Therefore storage of colloidal silver should be in colored glass, in a cool, dark place, but not necessarily in the refrigerator. Our preliminary tests indicate amber glass or other dark glass containers to be the most suitable.

Colloidal silver is not "germ specific" like the prescription antibiotics available today. It has a long shelf life (as long as it is stored properly), and possibly the best thing about colloidal silver is that it is available without a visit to your doctor!

[END QUOTING]

That last point in the above article probably has a lot to do with the FDA's renewed attack on colloidal silver. Meanwhile, the following article is excerpted from the http://www.fordsmtm.com/why\_use\_colloidal\_silver.htm website. It addresses several commonly asked questions, provides some useful tips for using colloidal silver, and at the end, relates a most dramatic example of silver's effectiveness in tackling nasty challenges.

[QUOTING:]

Colloidal Silver: The Rediscovery Of A Super Antibiotic

Why use silver as opposed to other antibiotics?

Pain! In the burn ward of any hospital, the number-one priority is fighting infection. Because other disinfectants are too painful when applied to large areas, and because of silver's long-lasting properties, silver sulfadiazine is the most used disinfectant for treating burns in hospitals.

Alcohol, iodine, and hydrogen peroxide are other substances used to disinfect wounds. All of them have one distinct disadvantage as a disinfectant when compared to silver: they STING!

Imagine you have fallen on pavement while bicycling or running, and the skin on the palm of both hands as well as your knees is completely raw to the point that the wounds throb with your pulse. Now imagine how much worse it would feel to pour iodine or alcohol over your tender flesh! Colloidal silver will spare you the extra agony!

In addition, a fairly large percentage of people are allergic to iodine, although they may not have become aware of it yet. Alcohol is useful for sterilizing objects, but it is just plain poisonous to humans and germs alike! By comparison, silver is toxic to microbes but actually beneficial to humans.

Silver is completely nonirritating and without side-effects.

Why is colloidal silver so popular?

Interest in colloidal silver has increased recently because illness-causing organisms do not build up a resistance to colloidal silver the way they do to antibiotics. Antibiotics are becoming less effective as pathogenic organisms develop increasing resistance to them. Because of something called "phage" transfer of antibiotic resistance, reported more than 20 years ago, researchers expect this trend of pathogens' resistance to antibiotics to continue to grow.

Fortunately, the timely re-emergence of colloidal silver due to new technology and greatly reduced costs of production, may prove to be one of the best developments in modern medicine.

Why silver?

Dr. Robert Becker noticed a correlation between low silver levels and sickness. People who had low levels of silver were frequently sick, had innumerable colds, flu, fevers, and other maladies. He believes a silver deficiency is the reason for the improper functioning of the immune system.

[Editor's note: This statement is widely quoted by those promoting colloidal silver products, and it may well be exactly what Dr. Becker believes. However, a more comprehensive hypothesis would be that, with silver present in the body to help with the control of invading "bugs", there is less of a load upon the immune system's machinery, and thus the immune system can get around to dealing with healing/repair projects that otherwise have to sit on the "back burner" while it fights invading bugs. Therefore, silver may help the immune system, not by acting as some sort of "vitamins" to charge-up the immune system, but by taking-on some of the load that the immune system would otherwise have to deal with.]

Silver has benefited mankind's health for literally thousands of years. In ancient Greece and Rome, people used silver to keep liquids fresh. American settlers traveling across the West put a silver dollar in milk to delay its spoiling. A silver compound, silver sulfadiazine (Silvadene®), is used in all major burn centers in the United States.

Colloidal silver is non-toxic, non-addictive, and has no known side effects. The body develops no tolerance and one cannot overdose. Colloidal silver cannot cause harm to the liver, kidneys, or any other organ in the body.

It is safe for pregnant and nursing women and even aids the developing fetus in growth and health, as well as easing the mother's delivery and recovery. Colloidal silver is odorless, tasteless, non-stinging, harmless to the eyes, contains no free radicals, is harmless to human enzymes, and has no reaction with traditional medications.

Colloidal silver improves digestion, aids in the regeneration of damaged cells and tissues, and helps prevent colds, flu, and other diseases caused by pathogenic organisms.

What does colloidal silver NOT do?

Silver does not interact with other medications. It does not upset the stomach, but rather is a digestive aid. Ulcers have been shown to be caused in many cases by a bacteria, which would be destroyed by colloidal silver.

Medical journal reports of documented studies spanning more than 100 years indicate no known side effects from oral or intravenous administration of colloidal silver in animal or human testing. Colloidal silver has been used with good results in the most demanding of healthcare circumstances.

If silver is so effective as a germ fighter, why hasn't it been used before now?

Wrapping wounds in silver foil was a common treatment around the turn of the century. Doctors and scientists have long been aware of the germ-fighting properties of silver compounds. Most of these compounds are known as "silver salts" or silver combined with another chemical that gives it a positive charge. Silver salts can be irritating and bring various side effects, such as staining the skin. Pure colloidal silver attacks germs in the same fashion that silver salts do, but without the side effects.

Much of the attention that silver received as an antibiotic was diverted with the advent of a penicillin-type drug, coupled with the fact that the process of making colloidal silver used to be very expensive.

PRODUCT QUALITY

Many brands of colloidal silver are inferior. The highest grade is produced by the electro-colloidal/non-chemical method where the silver particles and water have been colloidized, i.e., dispersed within and bound to each other by an electric current. The super-fine silver particles are suspended indefinitely in demineralized water.

The ideal color of colloidal silver is a golden yellow. Darker colors indicate larger silver particles, which tend to collect at the bottom of the container and are not true colloids. If a product contains a stabilizer or lists trace elements other than silver, or if it needs to be shaken, it is inferior. If a product requires refrigeration, some other ingredient is present that could spoil. The container and dropper must be glass, as plastic cannot preserve the silver in liquid suspension for any length of time. Some brands are actually unsafe. High concentrations of silver do not kill disease germs more effectively than the safe range of 3 to 5 parts per million (ppm).

INGESTING COLLOIDAL SILVER

Taken orally, the silver solution is absorbed from the mouth into the bloodstream, then transported quickly to the body cells. Swishing the solution under the tongue briefly before swallowing ensures fast absorption. In three to four days the silver will have accumulated in the tissues sufficiently for benefits to begin. Since colloidal silver is eliminated by the kidneys, lymph system, and bowel after three weeks, a regular daily intake is recommended as a protection against dangerous pathogens.

In cases of minor burns, an accumulation of colloidal silver can hasten healing, reducing scar tissue and infection. The lives of millions of people susceptible to chronic low-grade infections can be enhanced by this powerful preventative health measure.

CHRONIC OR SERIOUS CONDITIONS

Take double or triple the recommended amount for 30 to 45 days, then drop to the maintenance dose. If your body is extremely ill or toxic, do not be in a hurry to clear up everything at once. If pathogens are killed off too quickly, the body's five eliminatory channels, i.e., the liver, kidneys, skin, lungs, and bowel, may be temporarily overloaded, causing flu-like conditions, headache, extreme fatigue, dizziness, nausea, or aching muscles. Ease-off on the colloidal silver to the maintenance amount and increase your distilled water intake. Regular bowel movements are a must in order to relieve the discomforts of detoxification. Resolve to reduce sugar and saturated fats from the diet, and exercise more. Given the opportunity, the body's natural ability to heal will amaze you.

TOLERANCE TO DISEASE ORGANISMS

It is impossible for single-celled germs to mutate into silver-resistant forms, as happens with conventional antibiotics. Therefore, no tolerance to colloidal silver ever develops. Also, colloidal silver cannot interact or interfere with other medicine being taken. Inside the body, silver forms no toxic compounds, nor reacts with anything other than a germ's oxygen-metabolizing enzyme. Colloidal silver is truly a safe, natural remedy for many of mankind's ills.

SATISFIED USERS

Satisfied users have taken one tablespoon daily, for four days, to establish a level, then one teaspoon daily for maintenance (proportional to body weight for children). Also, colloidal silver can be applied directly to cuts, scrapes, and open sores, or on a bandage for warts. It can be applied on eczema, itches, acne, or bug bites.

To purify water, add one tablespoon per gallon, shake well, and wait six minutes. Mixed this way, it's tasteless. It is not an allopathic poison.

COLLOIDAL SILVER IN ADVANCE OF ILLNESS

When taken orally each day, and applied topically when there is a skin problem, it's like having a second immune system. Older folks

Order SPECTRUM now!
See page 2 for complete ordering instructions.
Tell your friends...Neighbors...
 Countrymen!
Let them hear THE TRUTH!

feel younger because their body energies are used for other than fighting disease, and digestion is better. Medical research has shown that silver promotes rapid healing, with less scar tissue, even in the case of severe burns. Fantastic successes have been reported in many cases previously given up by established doctors. Colloidal silver is tasteless and won't sting even a baby's eyes, and won't upset your stomach. It is produced today by a modernized, original process, at a tiny fraction of the pre-1938 cost, and is more concentrated. The silver acts only as a catalyst and is stabilized. It is absolutely non-toxic, except to one-cell plants and animals, and is non-addicting. It also kills parasites because they have a one-cell egg stage in their reproductive cycle.

COLLOIDAL SILVER:
THE REDISCOVERY OF A SUPER ANTIBIOTIC, KILLS BACTERIA, VIRUSES, AND FUNGI

Since the 1940s the human immune system has been gradually breaking down. A good immune system should be able to withstand common ailments of a cold, flu, or candidiasis. Even the more serious illnesses of cancer, chronic fatigue syndrome, and AIDS could be deterred if the human immune system were strong and vital.

The modern immune system is overtaxed daily with the constant bombardment of chemical pollutants in the air, water, and even our food. Before 1940, most of our food was grown using organic, natural fertilizer. The soil and natural fertilizer contained many trace chemicals necessary to the human body which supported its natural defense system.

Today, the soil itself is far less vital and the fertilizers are synthetic, chemical versions which have none of the trace elements found in organic fertilizer. One of those elements which has been disappearing from our food supply is silver.

A cancer researcher named Dr. Gary Smith stated, in an unpublished paper: "While analyzing hair samples and questioning the parties involved, I noticed the correlation between low silver levels and sickness. People who showed low silver levels in their hair analyses were frequently sick. They seemed to have innumerable colds, flu, fevers, and various other sickness. I believe that a silver deficiency may be the key to the improper function of the immune system."

[Editor's note: If Dr. Smith's paper on this subject is STILL unpublished in the medical research literature, one can assume there is an interesting story behind its denial into print!

In the late 1970s, while an inmate at the Stanford University asylum, I (E.Y.) had submitted a scientific paper to the top science journal in the world for new phenomena, NATURE, describing a device I had invented. It was something like a Geiger Counter, which actually was responsive as a detector of MENTAL energies, especially those associated with healing. It evolved from original work with Kirlian Photography. The data was overwhelmingly and astonishingly convincing, else I would not have even submitted the paper. Its publication was denied, and the reason for denying publication was—get this: "Clearly what you state is not possible, therefore you must have done something wrong." And the Earth is flat, don't you know?!

I learned an important lesson at that time about the "religion" of science—especially when the TRUE agenda (of keeping important discoveries suppressed) is controlled from behind the scenes—just as in the case of all the other "churches" both within and without the arena of so-called "higher" education.]

So, over time, our immune systems have been getting weaker. At the same time that our bodies' natural defense system has weakened, the destructive, illness-causing microbes have been getting stronger due to the overuse of prescribed antibiotics.

An antibiotic kills the harmful bacteria. However, some of the bacteria survive to breed stronger cells, which then become resistant to the antibiotic. There are now strains of super-microbes that are unkillable by any known prescribed antibiotic.

[Editor's note: The above is true and fine and scary enough—as far as it goes as an explanation. But regular readers of this newspaper will be quick to point out how much the assault situation has been helped along by "superbugs" purposely engineered to be unleashed at this time upon a mostly unsuspecting world populace.

After all, population control and a massive depopulation of the planet have long been agenda items of the so-called "elite" New World Order gang. The trick is to accomplish this goal without waking up too many of the sleeping public to a state of actually taking action against these crooks in high places. Remember the frog in the pot of nice, warm water who doesn't know he is being boiled into soup because the temperature is being turned-up ever so slowly!]

Obviously, there is a crisis brewing in the condition of the human body. We no longer have a strong enough internal immune system to fight off disease, and the external support we've relied upon for decades is now realized to be doing more harm than good. The drugs we've been treating ourselves with have actually created stronger strains of bacteria that are resistant to common antibiotic treatment.

There is a solution to both problems—known as liquid colloidal silver. Silver is one of the 92 natural, chemically-pure elements. It was a medical remedy used in both Britain and the US until the late 1930s. In articles published in the prestigious medical journals of the time, silver was found to be effective against many different infectious diseases. It was toxic to all species of bacteria, fungi, protozoa, parasites, and many viruses. However, it was not found to be toxic to the human body.

A letter from the University of California, Los Angeles Medical Center, written in 1988, outlined their findings on colloidal silver research. Dr. Larry Ford stated:

"With regards to the silver solutions that you sent me, I tested them without dilutions, using standard antimicrobial tests for disinfectants. The silver solutions were antibacterial, for concentrations of ten to the fifth; that's one hundred thousand organisms per milliliter of streptococcus, pyogenese, staphylococcus aureus, neosorheae gonorrhoea, gardnerilla, vaginalis, salmonella, and other enteric pathinogens and fungicidals for Candida albicans and Candida globata." Because of its wide-spread effectiveness, silver could be looked upon as a secondary immune system.

SOME TIPS FOR USING
COLLOIDAL SILVER

1. Take a daily dose of colloidal silver in 8 oz. of water for prevention against all types of infections. One half to one teaspoon a day is a good long-term preventative dose.

2. When applying to a wart, cut, etc., moisten a bandage with colloidal silver and apply to the desired surface. This will make the effects of the silver longer lasting.

3. Take colloidal silver on camping trips to treat drinking water. Allow several minutes after adding the silver before drinking.

4. Put colloidal silver in emergency storage water to prevent the growth of algae and bacteria.

5. Use colloidal silver in home canning or freezing as a food preservative. This will vastly improve the shelf life and freshness of the food.

THE "HEALING CRISIS"
VERY IMPORTANT!

After using colloidal silver, many people experience what is called the "healing crisis". The healing crisis is from the result of your body detoxifying. You may experience rashes or similar things of this nature.

Your personal symptoms may seem like they are getting worse, but this is not the case. Your body is actually clearing up that problem and it will usually only last for a short time. Example: Eczema sufferers experience their rash getting worse, but then clearing up for good. Expect your body to cleanse from taking this product.

COLLOIDAL SILVER GENERATOR

Parts needed to make this unit: Four 9-volt battery connection terminals, four 9-volt batteries (not shown), 5 crimp-type connectors (note: wires can be soldered or simply twisted together and taped), two alligator clips, approximately 1-2 feet of wire (18 gauge or larger), 8-ounce (or larger) clear and clean glass container, approximately one foot of 99.9% silver wire (makes one set of 6-inch electrodes), and an optional piece of cardboard or plastic used for mechanical support and electrode spacing (approximately 2 inches apart). Note: see near end of article for ordering information on silver wire and commercially-produced colloidal-silver generator kits.

HERE'S A DRAMATIC EXAMPLE OF WHAT SILVER CAN DO

In a demonstration that took place in Nebraska in 1978, fifty gallons of raw sewage was pumped into a swimming pool that contained no disinfectant. A bacteria count was taken, measuring 7000 E. Coli cells per milliliter of water. Swallowing any amount of this water would have resulted in severe illness resembling food poisoning. The water was then flushed through silver plates that carried a small electrical charge. Within three hours, the water was completely free of E. Coli bacteria!

[END QUOTING]

Needless to say, colloidal silver seems to have a much more commendable track record than any of the expensive so-called “wonder drugs” we have been coerced into utilizing for the last half century. Doesn't this make you wonder why the FDA is trying to make colloidal silver (among other natural remedies) hard to get?! And that leads into the next matter—how to make your own colloidal silver.

The following article addresses the manufacture of colloidal silver and the various details which are essential to making a consistently good product. By the end of this article you will have enough information to be able to make your own colloidal silver, costing just a few pennies per ounce.

This following article is likewise from the Internet (the <http://www.elixa.com/silver/lindmn.htm> website). More scientific in nature than the previous material, this article is commendable for its depth of understanding and explanation—for you really inquiring minds!

[QUOTING:]

A Closer Look At Colloidal Silver

by Peter A. Lindemann

[Editor's note: Lindemann is the developer of the CS-300C and CS-300D colloidal silver generators—commercially available. Please see near the end of this article for ordering information.]

During the last two years, a number of books and articles have appeared in public on the subject of colloidal silver. Some of these include: the Bio-Tech News Special Report “Hi-Yo Silver”; Colloidal Silver, The Natural Antibiotic Alternative by Zane Baranowski; Colloidal Silver by Tonita d'Raye; and Banishing Disease With Three Nine-Volt Batteries, Parts I & II, by Mark Metcalf. Literally hundreds of other newsletters and small publications have repeated the information in these articles without checking the content for accuracy.

The appearance of these materials two years ago was the first wave of public education concerning colloidal silver. Today, most health food stores carry and sell several brands of colloidal silver, scores of companies have colloidal silver products in their lines, and prices are starting to drop. While it is still possible to spend as much as $10/oz for colloidal silver in health food stores, prices can be as low as $5/oz. Some mail order catalogs sell it for as little as $2.50/oz, and I have seen small classified ads selling it for under $1/oz. The trend is definitely toward a lower price.

One of the phenomena driving the price down is the appearance of the devices that allow people to make their own colloidal silver. At this time (spring of 1997) the cottage industry of colloidal silver generators is starting to penetrate the larger market. This is starting to cause alarm in high places. One major commercial manufacturer of colloidal silver has recently issued a warning statement to its customers, alerting them to the dangers of the “inferior quality” of colloidal silver made by these devices. CNN and other major media have also tried to scare the public away from colloidal silver by showing a blue-skinned person who “suffers” from Argyria, a cosmetic condition caused by the build-up of silver compounds under the skin. Even JAMA (the Journal Of The American Medical Association) has run articles warning of Argyria and the toxicities associated with “colloidal silver proteins”.

On January 16, 1997, new labeling guidelines concerning colloidal silver went into effect, issued by the FDA. Other FDA rulings on “safety and effectiveness” are still pending. With all of these developments, it doesn't take a rocket scientist to see that the whole situation around colloidal silver is heating up!

The purpose of this article is to raise the level of public knowledge to a higher degree of accuracy. Knowledge is power, and the public needs to know the truth about colloidal silver.

The first thing people need to know is that there are at least FOUR different products on the market being called "colloidal silver".

The first type of product is the classic, original kind, usually called "electro-colloidal silver". This product is made either by the "electro-arc" method in deionized water, or by the "low-voltage electrolysis" method in distilled water. This product is usually found in concentrations between 3-5 ppm (parts per million), but sometimes as high as 100 ppm. Properly made, this product consists of microscopic particles of pure, elemental silver suspended in water, with no other elements present. Each particle of silver carries a positive electrical charge. Colloidal silver made this way appears either transparent-clear or transparent-light yellow.

[Editor's note: Assuming you just have silver in the water, and not also impurities of one or several varieties, the color depends upon the size and density or concentration of the particles. The color goes from clear to light yellow as the concentration increases. Some people claim the yellow color is primarily due to the silver oxidizing. This may be true as it would be hard to imagine the silver remaining inert in the presence of the dissolved oxygen in the water.]

Incidentally, for you more technical readers inclined to pursue the matter out of curiosity, the subject of how such suspended particles produce colors is a fascinating—if scientifically involved—story which includes the answer to why the sky is blue. How's that for a teaser?!

The second is called "mild silver protein". This product chemically binds microscopic particles of silver to a protein molecule. It is usually found in concentrations between 20-40 ppm. Its appearance may be transparent-clear or amber.

The third are "silver salts". These products can be made either chemically or electro-chemically and usually create a form of silver that DISSOLVES in the water. Concentrations range between 50-500 ppm. Its appearance is transparent-clear. The silver particles do carry a POSITIVE electrical charge, but almost invariably these products contain elements or compounds other than silver.

The fourth is sometimes referred to as "powdered silver". This product was developed by the Russians and is made when a pure silver wire is rapidly disintegrated by a high-voltage electrical discharge, similar to an old photographic flash bulb. The microscopic silver dust is collected, and either dissolved in water or added to salves and creams for topical use. Concentrations range from 100-500 ppm.

All of these products work, to one degree or another, as a broad-spectrum germicide, because they all contain microscopic particles of silver. That said, it is important to understand a number of things:

1) all of these products are not “colloidal suspensions” of silver,

2) these products DO NOT all behave the same in the body or in laboratory tests,

3) effectiveness and dosage varies from product to product,

4) quality varies from product to product and from batch to batch with the same product, and

5) they are NOT all uniformly safe and non-toxic.

There are no industry standards that manufacturers voluntarily follow to assure quality control, and there is no governmental regulation of the industry.

On the other hand, there are millions and millions of satisfied colloidal silver users who would like to have continued, free access to the product, and a growing number of manufacturers entering the market with a wide variety of new products.

The critical factors that make a “good” colloidal silver product are particle size, purity, concentration, and cost. The only way to authoritatively determine the first three is by laboratory analysis. The best way to determine particle size is by electron microscope photograph. The best way to determine purity is by mass spectroscopy or by x-ray diffraction analysis. The best way to determine concentration is by chemical analysis of total dissolved solids. The cost of the product should be calculated in reference to the total quantity of silver present, such as: $5.00/oz of 100 ppm is equal to 25¢/oz of 5 ppm (the first has 20 times more silver by volume and costs 20 times more by volume).

MAKING YOUR OWN

The simplest way to control these factors is to make the colloidal silver yourself. By doing this, you will not know exactly what is there unless you do laboratory testing, but you will have a pretty good idea. (Even with laboratory testing of commercial products, you don't know much more where they are concerned, either, because the quality control from batch to batch is loose with most brands.) Also, by making it yourself, you will end up with genuine “colloidal” silver, which is the product referred to in most of the literature.

If you are already making your own colloidal silver, please pay special attention to this section because much of the information you now have may be incorrect.

The simplest way to make real colloidal silver at home is by the “low-voltage electrolysis” method. A few batteries may be connected to some silver electrodes and placed in a glass of water. This process will cause small particles of silver to be sintered off the electrodes and enter the water. This deceptively simple method is very easy to do WRONG, and most people who are making colloidal silver at home are making an inferior product.

IT'S IN THE WATER

When you do this yourself, it is very important to control the purity of the water, [emphasis added] because the purity of the water is one of the factors that controls how small the particles of silver will be. Only high quality DISTILLED water should be used. You cannot use purified or filtered water because it still has too many dissolved minerals in it. You cannot use deionized water because it doesn't conduct electricity well enough to start the reaction. Distilled water is just perfect to start the reaction, slowly, and let it proceed properly.

Another variable that influences particle size is the water temperature. The warmer the water, the faster the reaction will take place, and the smaller the particles will be.

PLEASE PASS THE SALT

Regardless of what anyone has said to the contrary, silver chloride will ALWAYS form if any amount of salt is present. Never add anything to the water that will make the water conduct electricity better. Never add salt, sea salt, or Celtic sea salt to the distilled water because the salt puts chloride ions in the water that react with the silver to form silver chloride.

Another serious problem arises when making colloidal silver with salt in the water. The presence of salt increases the electrical conductivity of the water and this dramatically speeds up the reaction. As the reaction speeds up under these circumstances, it produces larger particles [not desirable—smaller is better]. The product so produced is invariably cloudy-white in appearance. Actual electron-microscope photographs of this material show silver particles in the range of 0.05 to 0.15 microns. These particles are TOO LARGE to form a colloidal suspension, and the proof is that the material will settle to the bottom of the container in a very short period of time. Therefore, this home-brewed “colloidal silver” product may be dangerous to consume internally for two reasons: the presence of silver chloride and the production of large particles.

THE BEST IS YET TO COME

The very best voltage for the reaction is about 30 volts, because the electrodes run the cleanest at this voltage. If you have a small power supply, set it for 30 volts. If you are running on batteries, it is best to start at 36 volts (three 12-volt batteries or four 9-volt batteries) and let the batteries drain down from there. Holding the silver electrodes at a uniform distance away from each other yields a better product. [Editor's note: See the diagram accompanying this article for a good picture of how to put your own colloidal silver generator together. Also see the photo of a quickly assembled version of the diagram's apparatus which was used to make a batch of about 12 oz. of product in less than an hour.]

When 30 volts is applied across silver electrodes held uniformly apart in distilled water, a totally different event happens. First, the reaction proceeds very slowly. Often, for the first 15 minutes, nothing seems to be happening. [Emphasis added—be patient!] Then, finally, a faint yellow mist will begin to form. Within a few minutes, the reaction will speed up, but the particles produced will be a golden-yellow as viewed with a flashlight. Using this method, 8 ounces of distilled water at room temperature can be made into a 3-5 ppm colloidal silver preparation in 20-25 minutes.

Made this way, colloidal silver can cost under 10¢/oz. Electron microscope photographs of this product show a silver particle size in the range 0.001 to 0.004 microns. During manufacturing, the particle cloud is a golden yellow. These particles will hang in the water at the level they are produced, and for the most part, will not fall to the bottom of the glass. This is what a “colloidal” preparation of silver looks like.

After the particles disperse, the water will look clear again, but may turn a light yellow if the concentration is high enough and after the particles have become evenly dispersed.

THE YELLOW COLOR

There has been a fair amount of controversy in the public literature concerning the appearance of the “yellow” color. A lot of well meaning people have told me that “yellow is bad”, “silver isn't yellow”, “yellow is sulfur contamination”, “yellow is iron contamination”, and lots of other things. I finally found what I believe to be the answer to this question in a book titled Practical Colloid Chemistry, published in London in 1926. In the section on the “Colours of Colloidal Metals”, subsection on the “Polychromism Of Silver Solutions” on page 69, I found the following statements: “The continuous change in colour from yellow to blue corresponds to a change in the absorption maximum of the shorter to longer wavelengths with a decreasing degree of dispersion. This is a general phenomenon in colloid chemistry illustrating the relation between colour and degree of dispersion.”

[Editor's note: The above statement is correct and complete in describing the main phenomena involved in causing the colors that are noted. However, as I (E.Y.) commented in an earlier note about this matter (and what makes the sky blue), the underlying subject is quite complicated to deal with from a theoretical point of derivation from first principles and depends upon a number of factors not easily measured.]

This section goes on to describe the colors that show up in a wide variety of colloidal metal solutions. Interestingly, they ALL have a yellow phase. For true “electro-colloidal” silver, the particle size range that can appear yellow is 0.01 to 0.001 microns (10 to 100 angstroms) because that is the size of silver particle that best absorbs the indigo light, leaving only its inverse color, yellow, to be observed. The final transparent-yellow appearance only shows up after the particles have become evenly dispersed.

[Editor’s note: Just to help you picture the small units of measurement being utilized above, visible light has a wavelength between 4000 angstroms (at the blue end) and 8000 angstroms (at the longer-wavelength red end of the spectrum). And a water molecule has a diameter of approximately 25 angstroms. Thus the size of these silver particles suspended among the water molecules is on the same order as the water molecules themselves if the colloidal product has been made properly.]

THE BROWN GLASS BOTTLE

Once you have gone to the trouble of making colloidal silver particles as small as 0.001 microns, it is important to protect them. The particles stay away from each other in suspension because they each have a positive electrical charge (+) and these “like charges” repel each other. Anything that can strip this charge off the particles will degrade the quality of the colloidal silver by a process called re-coagulation, where the particles clump together again to form larger aggregates. Ultraviolet light from the Sun, and many plastics can cause this process to occur. Therefore, colloidal silver is best stored in dark glass containers. The two kinds of glass container that are suitable for this are the dark amber and the cobalt blue.

[Editor’s note: This is a little “far out” from the subject under discussion here, but—if you can find cobalt blue (dark blue) bottles, they would be more desirable than amber because of the higher-frequency vibration of “etheric charge” imprinted upon the water due to their color. This is not something you are going to find in current physics books—but then, neither are you going to find the actual “tuning fork” frequency mechanism of operation of the silver which causes it to be germicidal!

Some people claim amber is better than blue for the color of the dark bottles because the blue is supposed to make the silver “fall out” of suspension. Looks like it’s time for some experimentation!]

THE SAME DIFFERENCE

The biggest “secret” about the manufacture of high quality colloidal silver is that it is nearly impossible to standardize the product. Silver is apparently reactive to a number of natural forces that have yet to be identified. Even when the voltage, the water, and the water temperature are identical, different batches will proceed at different rates on different days. The speed of the reaction can vary by over 100% depending on the day. On “normal” days, the reaction is proceeding well after 15 minutes, with a visible cloud of particles. On “slow days” it may take 30 minutes before any visible production of yellow particles begins [emphasis added—again, be patient]. Because of this variation, it is always wise to observe the reaction with a flashlight shining through the liquid so you can see how quickly the reaction is happening. Once the yellow cloud starts forming, time the batch for 5 more minutes. This is the best way to standardize your home-brewed colloidal silver.

COLLOIDAL OR IONIC?

Another big controversy surrounds the question of whether this method produces “colloidal” silver or “ionic” silver. Most people have been told that colloidal silver is “good” and ionic silver is “bad”. Once again, the truth might be unpopular.

The word “colloidal” refers to a condition where, in this case, a solid particle is SUSPENDED in a liquid (silver in water). The solid particles are too large to be considered DISSOLVED, but are too small to be filtered out.

This colloidal condition is most easily detected by what is called the “Tyndall effect”, where a narrow beam of light is shined through the liquid to produce a cone-shaped dispersion of the light. The particles so illuminated also exhibit a random, zig-zag activity called “Brownian motion” when observed under a microscope. When something is completely dissolved, both the Brownian and Tyndall effects disappear.

The word “ionic” refers to a condition where a particle has an electric charge. In the case of “electro-colloidal” silver, this electric charge is ALWAYS positive. Silver will not form a negatively charged ion. So, the truth is that electro-colloidal silver is BOTH colloidal and ionic. It is considered colloidal because of the particle SIZE, and it is considered ionic because of the particle CHARGE.

In fact, most of the biological studies suggest it is colloidal silver’s ionic characteristics that make it such a good germicide. It is also interesting to note that the old chemistry books make no distinction between the colloidal and ionic states of the electro-colloidal metals.

PURITY OF SILVER

The quality of your finished product depends entirely on the purity of the water you start with, and the purity of the silver you start with. Most of the current literature suggests that only 99.9999% pure silver can be used. Most home-brew systems use 99.9% pure silver. So, what is the difference?

To find out, I contacted Academy Metals, a company in Albuquerque, New Mexico, that produces commercial silver. The total allowable impurities in 99.9% (.999 fine) silver is 1000 ppm or 1 part in 1000. These impurities and their maximums are: (1) copper, 800 ppm; (2) lead, 250 ppm; (3) iron, 200 ppm; and (4) bismuth, 10 ppm. This product is readily available in wire form and costs about $3.00 above the market (spot) price of silver.

[Editor’s note: See near end of article for useful ordering information concerning silver wire.]

When this product is used to make electro-colloidal silver at a concentration of 5 ppm, the total impurities from the silver drop to 4 ppb (parts per billion) copper, 1.25 ppb lead, 1 ppb iron, 0.05 ppb bismuth. With all allowable impurities at these low levels, there is a reasonable argument for not being concerned.

Still, sometimes small things make a big difference. 99.99% silver (.9999 fine) has total allowable impurities of 100 ppm of the same metals in the same ratios, and costs (in wire form) between $50-$90 above the spot price of silver. 99.999% silver (.99999 fine) has total allowable impurities of 10 ppm, and in wire form costs about $250 above the spot price. 99.9999% silver, in wire form, costs more than gold, and is very difficult to find commercially.

In one sample of 10 ppm colloidal silver which we sent out for total analysis (made with 99.9% silver electrodes), the primary impurities found were: (1) sodium, 470 ppb; (2) calcium, 260 ppb; (3) manganese, 70 ppb; (4) potassium, 50 ppb; and (5) magnesium, 24 ppb. Since none of these impurities could have come from the silver, it suggests that the purity of the water should be of greater concern to the person making their own colloidal silver, than spending extra money on purer silver.

CONCENTRATION

The concentration of silver in the water is usually measured in parts per million, or ppm. While this is the standard convention, ppm is a “ratio” and not an indicator of quantity.

When a laboratory tests colloidal silver for concentration, they report the findings in milligrams per liter (mg/L). Milligrams per liter is an actual measurement of weight per volume, and therefore is a real quantity measurement. In the metric system, one liter of water weighs 1000 grams, and one milligram is one thousandth (1/1000) of a gram, so 1 mg/L is the same as 1 ppm, as long as we are talking about water. Silver weighs a little more than water, but the equivalence is very close, and the terms are often used interchangeably. With this in mind, we can calculate that one teaspoon of 5 ppm colloidal silver has about 25 mcg (micrograms) of silver in it.

DOSAGE

In 1940, R. A. Kehoe reported that, under normal circumstances, the average daily intake of fruits and vegetables would provide between 50-100 mcg of silver as a trace element. Since that time, the commercial farm soils of this country have become extremely deficient in trace minerals. Although I do not have authoritative figures for silver, according to the Earth Summit Report, issued in 1992, the levels of soil-based minerals in North America have dropped over 85% in the last 100 years.

[Editors note: Rather alarming, isn't it?! A whole other article could be written regarding these last couple of sentences. And it would be extremely naive to come to the superficial conclusion that the soil depletion problem is merely a byproduct of modern, intensive agribusiness. How convenient for the power-and-control agenda of the so-called "elite" that we-the-people are slowly starving to death without realizing it. What does that do to our bodies and minds? Who makes money from our resulting illnesses? Consider, again, the analogy of the frogs in water where the temperature is being turned-up ever so slowly; those frogs never notice they're the prime ingredient in the soup pot!]

Assuming that our ancestors' diet used to contain trace silver, and that our diet probably has greatly reduced levels, there is a reasonable argument for supplementing with colloidal silver. Two teaspoons of 5 ppm colloidal silver provides about 50 mcg of silver and could be considered a "nutritional" amount, if taken on a daily basis. Any amount above four teaspoons a day (or 100 mcg) should be considered a "therapeutic" amount.

That said, it should not be assumed that electro-colloidal silver is equivalent to, or has the same metabolic effect as, receiving trace silver from dietary plant sources. But since there are very few plant sources of trace silver available today, colloidal silver is probably the best substitute. If you want to experiment with taking colloidal silver for an extended period of time, stay within the amounts considered to be nutritional. If you want to experiment with larger doses, do so with caution, and only for a day or two at a time.

SAFETY AND TOXICITY

Silver can act as a heavy-metal poison in the body. It can also act as a trace mineral nutrient. The difference is in the particle size, NOT the concentration. Colloidal silver with a particle size of 0.001 microns has particles 100 times smaller than a preparation of silver with a particle size of 0.1 microns.

The smaller the particle, the less likely it will behave as a toxin. Typically, the worst toxic reaction from metallic silver, cited in the medical literature, is a condition called Argyria. Argyria is primarily a cosmetic condition characterized by a permanent, bluish discoloration of the skin. Argyria causes no physical discomfort, and does not have any other known side effects. Your skin just looks bluish-gray.

In fact, the term "blue bloods" in reference to the royal families of Europe, probably refers to a mild, argyrial condition caused by the constant eating of food from silver plate settings. It is interesting to note, however, that there has never been a case of Argyria reported from the use of electro-colloidal silver, free of salts or other impurities.

Argyria, while not being a deadly condition, certainly is undesirable. It is usually caused by the massive intake of silver salts, such as silver nitrate, silver sulfate, and silver chloride.

To determine just how toxic these substances are, I contacted the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry through their on-line information service (at <http://atsdr1.atsdr.cdc.gov:8080/ToxProfiles>). All of these silver salts are talked about as toxins, but the only consequence of even high exposure in humans that is listed is Argyria.

The EPA issues a "control code" for each toxic substance it tracks that can cause human illness. Silver nitrate and silver sulfate have control codes, but silver chloride does not. I received essentially the same information when I spoke with Dr. Eidson at the Department of Epidemiology in Santa Fe, New Mexico. Apparently, the government thinks silver and silver compounds are toxins that essentially have no significant toxic effects other than the ability to discolor your skin.

EFFECTIVENESS

In a study done, in part, by the Institute of Microbiology in Rome, Italy, and published in Applied And Environmental Microbiology, in December 1992, various forms of silver were tested for their ability to kill micro-organisms. Pure electro-colloidal silver out performed silver nitrate, silver chloride, and silver sulfadiazine as a broad-spectrum germicide. For all classes of bacterial, fungus, and mold samples tested, pure electro-colloidal silver worked better, and at much lower concentrations. They concluded that any additives reduced the effectiveness of the pure silver ion, the silver salts being as much as 100 times less effective.

Electro-colloidal silver's effectiveness as a broad-spectrum germicide is directly related to the number and size of the particles. The same volume of space taken up by one silver particle 0.1 microns in size, will hold about 10,000 silver particles 0.001 microns in size. This reduction in particle size not only allows for a greater distribution of the silver, but it also greatly increases the total surface area of silver available for interacting with the environment. These, plus the stability of the electrical charge, are the most important factors when considering the effectiveness of colloidal silver.

[Editor's note: Moreover, if one were to look upon each of the little silver particles as a tiny "tuning fork" which emits frequencies which irritate the life out of a vast array of low-frequency critters such as are reported are incapacitated by silver, then it becomes much easier to picture (and understand) why a lot of smaller silver particles are more effective than one larger clump.]

THE REGULATORS

While silver has been shown to be a very effective germicide—killing gram-negative bacteria, gram-positive bacteria, yeasts, molds, and viruses in laboratory experiments—this does not mean that it will invariably cure disease conditions in the body caused by these organisms. Colloidal silver is a fantastic adjunct to the home, but it is by no means a "cure-all".

The biggest obstacle to using colloidal silver as a "home remedy" is the lack of information in the public domain on how to use it effectively in any given situation. The FDA has tested colloidal silver extensively and found that different micro-organisms succumb to its action at a wide variety of concentrations and exposure times. If any of this information entered the public domain, the FDA would consider their own research "unsubstantiated medical claims" and reason enough to classify colloidal silver as a "new drug". The "new drug" classification would be "required" because "new use protocols" had been developed that did not exist before 1938.

Here is an example of the problem. It is now estimated that one in four women will develop breast cancer in their lifetime. I have spoken to two women who claim to have cured themselves of breast cancer with colloidal silver. They were both diagnosed by biopsy. After the diagnosis, they took 2 teaspoons of colloidal silver a day, until their surgery. One took a home-made product, the other took a silver protein product. In both cases, the biopsy of the removed breast tissue and lymph nodes was cancer free.

The question is, will colloidal silver work this well for all cases of breast cancer?

Probably not, but in the current legal and political environment, we may never know. No pharmaceutical company can control or monopolize ownership of colloidal silver, so none of them will ever fund the testing, which currently costs over $10 million and takes 10 years.

FDA says that if you claim colloidal silver cures breast cancer, that would classify it as a new drug, and the public cannot be given access to new drugs without proper testing. Using the FDA model, it could cost the public $1 billion to "prove" to the FDA what the FDA already knows about colloidal silver. Politics has definitely entered this picture.

FDA does not want to be exposed as an enforcer for the drug companies, or be seen as an agency clearly not acting in the public's best interest. While these ideas are not new to some of us, it would be a startling revelation if a large portion of the population began thinking this way. FDA would certainly like to avoid this "public relations" embarrassment.

Ordering Information For A Commercial Colloidal Silver Generator

Elixia, Ltd.
1805 Kriss NE
Albuquerque, NM 87112

toll-free: 800.766.4544
voice: 505.293.4648
fax: 505.293.7569

E-mail: info@elixa.com Website:
<http://www.elixa.com/silver/index.html>

CS-300C $99

Now with 2 extra battery sets, 1 set electrodes, 2 amber bottles, and free Priority Mail Shipping (US and Canada).

The CS-300C produces colloidal silver solutions equal to or better than the finest available on the market. We have improved the design without increasing the cost. It takes about 15 minutes to make premium, ultra-fine yellow solutions, with particle size in the range considered optimal (0.005 - 0.015 microns in diameter). The CS-300C comes complete with 3 sets of batteries, 1 set of .999 silver electrodes, and instructions that tell you everything you need to know to start making colloidal silver at home. All you need to add is water (distilled works best, available at most markets for approx. $1/gal).

If you calculate the cost of batteries and electrodes and water, you should arrive at a cost per ounce of $0.08 for the finest solution money can buy. And you can make it fresh, on demand, wherever you are!

BATTERY LIFE:

The CS-300C can make up to 15 eight-ounce batches of 3-5 ppm (.005 micron particle size range) before you will need to change the batteries. Replacement 12-volt batteries are available at Wal-Mart and Target stores for about $1 each and you will need 3. Radio Shack carries similar batteries for about $2.50 each.

ELECTRODE LIFE:

The electrodes ($10 replacement cost) should make around 100 (20 minute) batches of 8 oz. of 3-5 ppm (particle size in the .005 micron range). These solutions will be yellow in color if you use proper distilled water.

CS-300D $149

Includes 9-volt battery, 1 electrode set, 2 amber bottles, AC Adapter, and free Priority Mail Shipping (US and Canada).

The new Model D, the upgrade to the popular CS-300C colloidal silver generator used by thousands of happy and healthy people around the world for over 3 years, makes the same super-small silver particles as the Model C, but with several advantages: it uses a standard or rechargeable 9-volt battery; consistent results batch-to-batch due to constant voltage internal regulator circuit (steady 30 volt output); usable with any available power source including sunlight or car cigarette lighter!

NEW Low Power Indicator Light

Red light shows when to replace battery or when more light is needed on the solar panel.

NEW Sophisticated Electronic Circuitry

Automatic controls hold proper conditions on the electrodes with any input voltage from 6-14 volts DC.

NEW Updated Instruction Booklet

The most advanced methods for making and using colloidal silver.

- Same pocket size as the Model C (2 3/8" x 3 3/4" x 1")
- Same plug-in electrodes as the Model C.
- Same ease of use.
- Same unconditional customer satisfaction and 1 year warranty.

NEW Control Panel has the following features:

1. On/Off Switch
2. Green Light—indicates that the "Power is On."

3. Yellow Light—indicates colloidal silver is being made.

4. Red Light—indicates a "Low Power" condition. If running on 9-volt battery, the red light means "time to change the battery". If running on the solar panel, the red light means "more light is needed on the panel".

5. DC power jack—for plugging in any of the optional power supplies, including a solar panel, a wall transformer, or a cable plugged into an automobile cigarette lighter.

Survival Kit Special Offer:

- 1 CS-300D (includes 9-volt battery and 1 electrode set)
- 1 solar panel
- 1 AC transformer for 110-volt operation
- 1 Car lighter adapter for 12-volt operation
- 5 extra electrode sets
- 2 amber bottles (for product storage)

Regular Retail: $279, plus $10 S&H to US and Canada = $289.

Special Price = $259, including Priority Insured Mail in US, Air Mail to Canada.

Replacement electrode set: $10. (.999 silver)

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE: During the first 30 days of owning the CS-300C or D, if you do not feel that it meets your expectations, simply return it to Elixia, Ltd. for a full refund of the purchase price.

The fact is, FDA has never spent our tax dollars discovering something important, and then published their findings for the benefit of the public-at-large, especially when it involved something that was powerful, safe, and inexpensive for the public to make for themselves. Obviously, empowering the population to be self-reliant and frugal in relation to their own healthcare is not the FDA's responsibility.

Colloidal silver clearly has some extraordinary capabilities and hundreds of legitimate uses. But without standardization, quality control, and extensive medical testing, the public will never know how best to use colloidal silver in a given situation.

FDA may yet try to restrict public access to colloidal silver, claiming it is unsafe, even though they know how "safe and effective" it CAN BE when used properly.

[Editor's note: This article was obviously written prior to the actions taken by the FDA on August 17, 1999 to attempt to restrict the sale and use of colloidal silver. Go back and re-read the important News Desk item on page 9 of the September 1999 issue of The SPECTRUM for the details on the sleazy maneuver pulled by the FDA. Now is certainly a good time to have a private means to maintain a stock of this very useful item!]

In the absence of the release of this authoritative testing data, the public is left just experimenting and groping for the answers. A big fight over the public's access to colloidal silver may be looming because the cost of healthcare in this country is out of control, and the public is looking for inexpensive solutions that work. In that sense, colloidal silver could be "just what the doctor ordered".

DIGESTIVE INTERACTIONS

Colloidal silver is apparently able to kill nearly all micro-organisms, including the "friendly flora" your digestive system needs for proper function. I have spoken with hundreds of people who have taken colloidal silver on a daily basis and have noticed no digestive upset, even after prolonged use. I have also spoken to two individuals who reported digestive upset after taking colloidal silver one time. So, in my experience, the die-off of friendly flora is possible, but rare.

There are a number of strategies that can reduce the probability of digestive interactions. The simplest one is to swish the colloidal silver around in your mouth for 30 seconds before swallowing. This promotes an absorption of the colloidal silver into the body, away from the intestinal tract. Another strategy is to take smaller doses, multiple times per day, or with meals. Either way, if you do experience a die-off of friendly flora, they can be re-populated by taking any of the acidophilus products on the market.

[Editor's note: A little bit of well-made yogurt product will also accomplish the same goal of re-populating your intestinal tract with the good critters it needs, if you find yourself experiencing some digestive disorders—usually from an overdose of poorly made colloidal silver. Just look at the ingredients label on the yogurt culture packages in the dairy section of your grocery store. For example, the Continental brand of yogurt products has long been an excellent choice due to the wide range of "good stuff" in their culturing medium.]

SEPTIC TANKS

Septic tanks are like your home's intestinal tract. They only work when populated with friendly flora. If you live in a rural area with your house on a septic system, and you are making your own colloidal silver, make sure you don't throw a lot of it down the sink, or your septic system may stop working properly. This problem can be handled by using a product like RID-X periodically, which is a good idea anyway.

CONCLUSIONS

Colloidal silver is an extraordinary product. It can enhance your health and the health of your family in hundreds of ways.

EVERYONE SHOULD LEARN HOW TO MAKE HIGH-QUALITY COLLOIDAL SILVER, AND HAVE THAT CAPABILITY IN THEIR HOME, IN CASE THE REGULATORS RESTRICT ITS AVAILABILITY AT SOME POINT IN THE FUTURE. THIS COULD BE THE BEST "HEALTH INSURANCE" POLICY YOU EVER IMPLEMENTED!

[Editor's note: The SPECTRUM couldn't agree more—and that is the reason both for the emphasis added above, and for the sharing of this important information article with you at this time.]

If you buy one of the colloidal silver makers on the market, make sure it can make the "yellow" particles. When you make it yourself, make sure you are making the "yellow" particles. If you have any doubts about the quality of the product you are making or buying, you can send samples to any of the following laboratories for definitive testing.

For particle-size testing with an electron microscope, contact:

EMS Laboratories, 117 West Bellevue Drive, Pasadena, CA 91105; (818) 568-4065. Price will be under $200 per sample.

For a concentration test (mg/L) of total dissolved solids, contact: Associated Laboratories, 806 North Batavia Avenue, Orange, CA 92668; (714) 771-6900. Call for prices.

For elemental analysis, including "Tyndall effect" and "precipitation" test, contact: Kimball Laboratories, 600 East 11800 South, Draper, UT 84020; (801) 571-3695. Call for prices.

These companies are busy professionals who have no idea I am listing them in this article. Please don't waste their time unless you plan to submit samples for testing with payment.

REFERENCES

Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry, on-line information service: <http://atsdr1.atsdr.cdc.gov:8080/ToxProfiles> website.

Kehoe, R. A. et al, 1940. J. Nutr. 19:579.

Michaelis, L. The Effects Of Ions In Colloidal Systems, Williams & Williams Co. Baltimore, MD, 1925.

Ostwald, W. Practical Colloid Chemistry, Methuen & Co. Ltd. London, UK, 1926.

Simonetti, N. et al, "Electrochemical Ag+ For Preservative Use". Applied And Environmental Microbiology. American Society for Microbiology: Washington, 1992, Vol. 58, No. 12, pp 3834-3836.

The Association For Advanced Colloid Research, 232 NE Lincoln St. Ste. "G", Hillsboro, OR 97124, private conversations.

Borderland Sciences Research Foundation, PO Box 220, Bayside, CA 95442. Special thanks to Michael Theroux for valuable research and private consultation.

[END QUOTING]

The above is one of several very well done general documents regarding colloidal silver that can be found on the Internet by ones wishing more information of this type. Note how often the research materials cited in the references are from early in the 1900s, before the pharmaceutical companies "redirected" our attention in the direction of their expensive antibiotic products.

Since a picture is worth a thousand words, I have included herein both a diagram based on the description in this last article and a photo of a system I quickly put together from the diagram in order to illustrate the simplicity of a typical colloidal generator. All parts (except the silver electrodes) are readily available at your local Radio Shack or other electronics supply store for under $30, including the four 9-volt batteries. If you are not sure exactly what these basic parts are, then take the diagram with you to your nearest Radio Shack or electronics supply store and ask them to help you. Even the larger hardware stores usually carry these basic parts.

(There is an additional cost for the pure silver wire electrode material. Please see the box near the end of this article for suggestions of sources for 99.9% pure silver wire, as well as for already-built colloidal silver generator units available from commercial vendors.)

The diagram depicts a simple, inexpensive, and very useful method of building a colloidal generator. A large drinking glass, clear glass Pyrex measuring cup, or even a glass coffee pot make very convenient containers. The latter two have a handle and pour spout, so that you can easily transfer the finished liquid product into storage bottles after it is made. Glass is a must since you will need to see the reaction. Plastic and metal containers are to be avoided as they may cause undesirable silver compounds to be formed. Wash the container prior to each use as you would any food preparation utensils. Rinse it with a little distilled water just prior to use.

A NOTE ABOUT VOLTAGES

The preceding article states that 30 volts is a nominal voltage that keeps the electrodes running clean. However, both lower voltages and higher voltages can be used. If you run at lower voltages, it will take longer to get the reaction started and the batch completed. Higher voltages will likely result in larger particle size (not good) along with reduced process times. Many articles recommend three 9-volt batteries in series (27 volts), rather than four (36 volts), and this too is acceptable and will work.

A caution to be aware of—for you experimentalists who are inclined to try the route of “more power!”—is that if you want to scale-up the reaction container size or push the reaction too fast with high-amperage DC current (generated, say, by automobile batteries or a DC arc welder's power supply) you will likely cause the formation of larger, less useful (and more wasteful) silver particles, and also run the risk of dissociating water molecules into their primary elements—oxygen and hydrogen.

This is NOT good, and can be very dangerous! In a confined area the released hydrogen could cause fire or explosion. It is safer to just use 3 or 4 of the small transistor radio batteries, in the voltage range or 27-36 volts, as the diagram illustrates. And for the sake of the batteries, try to keep the silver wire electrodes from touching each other and shorting-out the battery power. Small 9-volt transistor radio batteries can take some of this kind of abuse, but it only runs them down prematurely.

ORDERING INFORMATION FOR SILVER WIRE, GOLD WIRE, AND OTHER PRECIOUS METALS

Silver Wire:

Two 3" lengths #10 gauge (very thick) .999 fine (99.999% pure) Silver Wire
$15.00 + $3.00 Shipping

Mail orders: Wayne Green
PO Box 416
Hancock, NH 03449
Phone orders: 603-525-4747
Fax orders: 603-588-3205 -MC/Visa
E-Mail orders: W2NSD@aol.com
Website: www.waynegreen.com

Bulk Silver Wire (5 Feet Minimum Order—Deduct 10% for 10+ Feet)

CS PRO Systems

Rt. 7, Box 510GG
San Antonio, TX 78264-9419

Business Hours: 10:00 AM - 8:00 PM, CST

To ORDER, call toll-free: 888-710-2773
For Information, call: (210) 626-2546

18 Ga.Round, Fine .999 Silver Wire - Priced Per Foot: $3.40
16 Ga.Round, Fine .999 Silver Wire - Priced Per Foot: $5.40
14 Ga.Round, Fine .999 Silver Wire - Priced Per Foot: $8.65
12 Ga.Round, Fine .999 Silver Wire - Priced Per Foot: $13.70
1/8" x 0.22" Flat, Fine .999 Silver Bezel - Priced Per Foot: $12.20

E-mail: info@csprosystems.com
Web site: www.csprosystems.com

PURE GOLD WIRE

Scientific Instrument Services
1027 Old York Rd., Ringoes, NJ 08551

Phone: (908) 788-5550
Fax: (908) 806-6631
E-Mail: sis@sisweb.com
Website: http://www.sisweb.com

Pure gold wire (32K, 99.99% pure) for use in gold gasket fabrication, sputter coaters, or other scientific applications.

| Part No. | Gold Wire Diameter | Price Ea./ft. |
|----------|--------------------|---------------|
| W351     | 0.020 in. diameter | $49.00       |
| W352     | 0.025 in. diameter | $63.80       |
| W353     | 0.031 in. diameter | $99.00       |
| W354     | 0.040 in. diameter | $151.80      |

Indicate Quantity in Feet

Precious Metals Dealer

Kitco Inc.

USA:

178 West Service Rd.
Champlain, New York 12919
Toll Free 1-877-775-4826
Fax (518) 298-3457

CANADA:

620 Cathcart #900
Montreal, Canada H3B 1M1
Toll Free 1-800-363-7053
Fax (514) 875-6484

Web site: http://www.kitco.com

Note: prices for Gold, Silver & Platinum vary from day-to-day.
Only consider .999 fine (99.9%) or purer metals for colloidal use.

ANOTHER NOTE ABOUT WATER

Find a good brand of distilled water, as all are not equivalent. The lower the conductivity, the cleaner the water is, though many of you are not in a position to measure this parameter. The ARROWHEAD brand of distilled water is the best among the various brands readily available in our particular local area grocery stores. Or, if you have a good water distiller at home, use that water.

Let me emphasize again: Never use regular "drinking" or "spring" water to make your colloidal silver, as there are generally dissolved minerals and mineral compounds in drinking water that will cause silver salt compounds to be formed which will reduce the effectiveness of your colloidal silver liquid.

Deionized water should NOT be considered either, as this water is the least conductive due to the removal of ionic charges; it will be very difficult to start the colloidal reaction in this water.

The bottom line: Use only a good quality of DISTILLED water to make your colloidal silver.

EXPANDING YOUR COLLOID CHOICES

You can expand your supply beyond just colloidal silver. Colloidal gold, copper, titanium, and platinum can be generated just as easily with the appropriate electrode substitutions.

[Editor's note: While it is beyond the scope of this article to outlay reasons WHY these other metallic colloids may be useful, it can be suggested that the "tuning fork" frequency of some of these—say titanium and platinum—may well be effective in combating superbugs which have been purposely engineered to withstand silver's frequency. In the case of gold and copper, there is already some research literature available describing their observed benefits.]

The overall problem here is that so-called "modern" medicine does not yet recognize the "tuning fork" frequency picture of subtle energy interactions, and thus, to use an analogy, we are stuck with attempting to explain how walkie-talkie radios work when "modern science" only knows about tin cans & string communication devices. Of course there have been those, like Rife many years ago, who have discovered The Truth—but one way or another they have found that they must proceed very quietly with their work or incur the wrath of the FDA and AMA watchdogs.]

The purest source of gold readily available to the general public (gold wire is hard to find) has been the Canadian Gold Maple Leaf coin, which can be purchased at any reputable coin dealer. Since gold is expensive, you could buy one coin and cut it in half. But keep in mind that the larger the surface area of the electrodes, the quicker will be the reaction rate of the colloidalizing process. Moreover, gold coins are a relatively sound investment so, if you have the necessary financial resources, buy two (or more) Canadian Gold Maple Leaf coins. They are one ounce each and can always be sold back to a coin dealer at a later time (if they have not been cut or damaged).

As far as PURE titanium and platinum, the sources are quite limited. Scientific equipment suppliers are a good direction in which to look. (If anyone knows any better sources for these metals than I have listed, please write to me in care of The SPECTRUM or send e-mail to me in care of: thespectrum@tminet.com and we will share the information in a future issue.)

Now, to make things even more interesting, I am aware of a "finishing" technique where, after a batch of colloidal silver is made and the silver electrodes are removed, two gold electrodes (such as gold coin halves) are momentarily inserted into the solution with current applied to the electrodes for about 10-15 seconds for a 16-ounce batch. It is believed by some that the addition of the small amount of gold to the silver increases the frequency of the entire solution and thus enhances its effectiveness.

FINAL THOUGHTS

If you do not feel comfortable building your own apparatus, then I recommend you find a friend or relative to assist you, or that you purchase a commercially-built unit. Some units are well made and offered for a fair price, while others are underbuilt and overpriced.

And you can always simply purchase your colloidal products from the marketplace. One source of reasonably-priced good-quality colloidal products is a company called HomeCure, Inc. (P.O. Box 13927, Scottsdale, AZ 85267; 1-800-559-2873; or see www.homecure.com website).

There are many differing opinions, ideas, and theories as to how to make the "best" colloidal products. You will quickly observe this if you shop the marketplace.

The method offered here for making your own colloids is simple and economical for the average person. You may find that your own creations of colloidal silver vary in quality from batch to batch. There will always be some variability in the product due to variations in battery voltage, electrode material, water quality, and a lot of other variables.

There are devices being sold that cost several hundred dollars, employing various exotic techniques which the manufacturers promote with great gusto. Some may be good, others are no better than the simple process discussed here. The choice is yours as to the route you wish to pursue in order to insure having colloidal silver (and other colloids) available for your use.

Again, this information is offered as EDUCATIONAL material ONLY. What you do with this information is entirely up to you. Neither I nor this publication assume any liability or responsibility concerning your own choice to make or use your own colloids.

While there is no way to predict if the FDA will get away with this latest gestapo maneuver, without the public rising up in protest (like has happened with some past shenanigans of theirs), it may be a source of comfort to you and your family to know how easily you can produce all that you want of a product the FDA is trying so hard to "protect" you from having!

"What do you expect, since 90% of all the scientists who ever lived are alive today?"

BIG BROTHER INTERNET: Nameless & Faceless In Cyberspace

Editor's note: On Tuesday evening, January 18, 2000, Dr. Nick Begich was the featured guest on Art Bell's late-night talk-radio program. Many readers of this newspaper will recognize Nick as the author of the superb book Angels Don't Play This HAARP which warns about the very large antenna system quietly built and "hidden" in Alaska that is pumping out huge megawatt signals of a very dubious nature. (See Nick's great www.earthpulse.com website.)

Art's program was getting rather "dangerous" as to the kinds of information and accusations Nick was discussing—not what you'd hear on the evening news through the controlled media prostitutes. And then the program just went dead.

For over a half hour the signal feed from Art's home studio to the broadcasting destination was interrupted. Art implied, when commenting on the subject the next evening, that he did not believe the lame excuses offered by the technical people in response to his probing technical inquiries. (Remember Art is a longtime ham-radio operator and also knowledgeable about network linkages via satellites and related equipment.)

Was that incident an accident, as we are told? Or was it a matter of "editing"—since we don't use the politically incorrect "censorship by Big Brother" wording, else we are accused of irrational paranoia.

A more subtle form of the same kind of "editing" has been noted and reported for some time concerning the Internet. Few realize how vulnerable the Internet is to all kinds of tamperings and monitorings. Moreover, as the Internet continues to become more completely integrated into modern life, it is no big leap of the imagination (excuse me, paranoia) to speculate upon how sophisticated and complete may be the covert monitoring and "editing" of this communication medium.

Sherman Skolnick has recently written on this subject from personal experience and, it seems, from noting what happened to Art Bell recently—though Sherman does not name any names specifically.

The following provides some sobering food for thought for all of us, as well as some investigative directions to those who may feel inclined to pursue answers to some of the questions he has posed.

1/21/00 SHERMAN H. SKOLNICK

Many feel the Internet is a great blessing. Outspoken activists can set up their own homepage or website and mouth off, while muttering to themselves: "To hell with the news networks!" Electronic mail goes out and back like in a flash. (Or does it? Read on.)

Politically incorrect commentators, once kept in the shadows, can now be read worldwide. With "video streaming" on the Internet soon to blossom, they may be heard and SEEN worldwide.

Feel-good types chirp: "The genie is out of the bottle!" (Or is it?)

Cynics darkly sneer: "Don't you understand? America's bulb is getting brighter, just as it is about to blow out, Hitler-style!"

Are old-timers the only ones who remember the bad old days? During the civil rights and peace movements of the 1960s and 1970s, the FBI was in active opposition to them. Supposedly forbidden by statute to do domestic operations, the American CIA nevertheless had their domestic units doing dirty tricks on U.S. citizens.

The CIA's excuse? They did it upon the default or neglect of the incompetent FBI. Maybe the FBI, as America's secret political police, was just too busy framing labor activists and union organizers on charges of plotting bombings and other violence against corporate dictators.

In the 1970s, an official of the CIA admitted to a Congressional committee that the spy agency had, for many years, been screening U.S. mail and telegraph transmissions to overseas locations. Somehow, they never brought themselves to admit, even to Congress, that they had been spying as well on mail and other communications WITHIN THE U.S.

Now, if you post something really too hot about the secret police on your homepage or website, the FBI, WITHOUT A COURT ORDER, reserves the right to shut off your transmissions.

First Class mail, domestically, was supposedly, by regulation, sacrosanct. A top-level U.S. postal inspector once bent my ear with his off-the-record, candid complaint: "We believe dope is being sent into Chicago in First Class packages. By regulation, we cannot open First Class packages unless we have definite prior proof of illicit shipment."

He was talking to ME, not George Orwell, author of 1984, the epic book on the total police state. I could have countered the postal inspector by mentioning that major dope enters the U.S. with the blessings of the highly corrupt DEA, and for espionage purposes of the American CIA.

(On our cable TV show, we talked about the dope warehouse in Chicago where it is piled up like so many bags of produce. Every six weeks, we said, the dope comes in on a sizeable truck, escorted by corrupt local police. We decided not to give the exact address, for fear the place would be bombed and innocent people injured. A week after our cablecast, a similar warehouse, much smaller, was identified in the monopoly press.)

Who bothers to tell you that the one for years having the monopoly on domain registration for websites, Network Solutions, Inc., is a sinister creature of the intelligence agencies. I am probably not the only one who can finger them from personal experience.

All during the U.S. War against Serbia and their province of Kosovo, in the spring of 1999, Network Solutions blocked my website. Network Solutions' phone was constantly on busy signal. They failed to respond to my many complaints by e-mail (electronic mail, e-mail for short). They even failed to respond to my complaints sent to their headquarters by Registered Mail, Return Receipt Requested, via the U.S. Postal Service.

Did someone give Network Solutions a list of loudmouths to be censored? Were YOU on their list?

Some say the Internet is like fire-ants. Texans know, you can pour lighted fuel on fire-ants, yet they continue to march on. (At least that is what some Texans have told me.)

Most people have become so accustomed to e-mail that they even use it from their office for personal notes, on their company's machinery. Some have been fired for cause, based on company secrets and other inappropriate communications sent, accidentally or otherwise, as personal notes to pals. Retrieved from the system by an employer, the e-mail becomes a document of accusation. Many employees have long known the company phones are bugged by the boss. So why would anyone expect the e-mail was exempt?

Something seems to happen when you send e-mail about something REALLY HOT, politically or spy-wise. In July, 1999, following the death of John F. Kennedy, Jr., I sought to post what we understood was the FBI's secret preliminary report on the aircrash, showing an explosive device blew off the tail of the plane, making it a death warrant. (The how, when, and why is in our four-part series called What Happened To America's Golden Boy at the www.skolnicksreport.com website.)

My e-mail transmissions took four days on our REALLY HOT, four-part story. To be certain, I sent some twice. Friends told me both e-mails arrived at the same time—four days after the date I sent them!

I sent the same e-mails to myself. Same result. Sending the information via the U.S. Postal Service (called "snail mail" in current lingo) would most likely have arrived sooner, and supposedly not been screened or spy-tampered.

I once got on the phone with the Technical Support of my Internet Service Provider. The one answering was quite polite and seemed well-informed. They might give their first name, but rarely, if ever, their last name. So, whatever is said, they remain NAMELESS AND FACELESS, typical of the government bureaucracy, many large corporate offices, public utilities, and such. I outlined the problem of politically REALLY HOT e-mails of mine delayed for several days.

"As your server, we don't screen e-mail" she tried to assure me. But then she added: "On the other hand, OUR server, I believe, does screen." She outlined to me how her company, as my server, had THEIR own server.

She was not sure if THEY had a phone number where you could call them.

Just to perform my sarcastic test, I asked Directory Assistance for the 800-number of "Big Brother Internet". "One moment, sir." And then came the answer: "I show no listing".

I then asked Directory Assistance about the same name in Virginia. "Where in Virginia?" she asked. "McLean, Virginia" I answered: "You know, operator, under the listing (if any) for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency."

The office of Network Solutions, Inc., I smiled to myself, was not far away. (Do they want Directory Assistance operators to have a sense of humor or recognize sarcasm?)

America On Line (AOL) has plenty I think they do not tell you. They are NOT an Internet Service Provider (ISP), but an online service, sort of a middleman TO AN ISP. That technical or lawful difference reportedly justifies them having a screening or censorship committee—in other words, a NAMELESS, FACELESS CENSORSHIP BOARD.

Who are THEY? Under WHAT circumstances do THEY reserve the right or "authority" to block your postings and transmissions? What, if any, is your remedy or recourse? Are they—what is known in public utility and other law as—a Common Carrier, or are they a different animal?

Suppose the U.S. has a very serious decline, even a collapse, in the stock and other markets. And suppose, as well, that at such a time there is a run on the banks. Would the various Internet Service Providers and the Online Services function as before?

Or would they obey a secret government directive to silence loudmouths by blocking their e-mail and other transmissions? On the one hand, the Internet and the World Wide Web and e-mail seem to be a great blessing, countering censorship. On the other hand, great numbers of folks have become overly dependent on such electronic communication. Thus created is a dilemma.

With the phone company, you have a choice to be listed or unlisted. With the Internet, there are services that purport to be directory listings. Whether your website and such is listed there, is a matter of political consideration and quite arbitrary.

Under state regulations, you would have a remedy, of sorts, against the phone company for refusing to list your phone in their regular directory. What remedy or recourse do you have NOW against these other "directories" that somehow fail to list you? Can you actually reach a real PERSON at these electronic directories, to express your complaint at not being listed?

Some radio talk-shows [like Art Bell's show] are also available, by "audio streaming", on the Internet, either live or can be retrieved at any time later. AND, some radio talk shows, on the Internet, if they get on a REALLY HOT topic, suddenly are blanked out. By whom? Under what lawful regulations are they censored?

So, on the one hand, the Internet has been a blessing. On the other hand, it is also part of a NAMELESS, FACELESS BIG-BROTHER IN CYBERSPACE.

If this takes four days to get to you, or never arrives at all—well, it is just Big Brother Internet doing his thing. Stay tuned.

* * *

Since 1958, Mr. Skolnick has been a court reformer. Since 1963, founder/chairman, Citizen's Committee To Clean Up The Courts, disclosing certain instances of judicial and other bribery and political murders. Since 1991, a regular panelist, and since 1995, moderator/producer of Broadsides, a one-hour weekly public-access cable TV show, cablecast within Chicago to some 400,000 viewers. We regularly condemn the monopoly press, and on occasion, have identified media fakers as assets of the secret political police, the FBI, CIA, NSA, and such. For a heavy packet of our printed stories, send $5.00 (U.S. funds) and a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope (#10 envelope, 4-1/4 x 9-1/2) WITH THREE STAMPS ON IT, to: Citizen's Committee To Clean Up The Courts, Sherman H. Skolnick, Chairman, 9800 So. Oglesby Ave., Chicago IL 60617-4870. Office: 8 a.m. to midnight, 7 days: 773-375-5741. (PLEASE, no "just routine" telephone calls). Our website is www.skolnicksreport.com (note "s" after name in website) and skolnick@ameritech.net is our e-mail address. Call before sending a fax.

He who has no fire in himself cannot warm others.

Remember To Look At The View

Editor's note: We are not sure if we're starting some kind of a trend here.

In the January issue of The SPECTRUM we presented a Harvard Law School speech by renowned actor and activist Charlton Heston. His words created as much of a stir to action as it generated warm praise—for its uninhibited honesty and call for imparting values in our lives.

The following heartfelt words come from novelist Anna Quindlen's address given at Commencement (graduation) ceremonies at Villanova University last year. From a different point of view, Anna provokes a similar pause, as Heston did, to consider what is truly important in our lives. She also hints at the same thought about the inescapable lessons of "schoolroom Earth" that so many of the Master Teachers have expressed in these pages and collected in the two WISDOM OF THE RAYS books of spiritual messages.

We'll see, next month, if the trend continues with another such address. Enjoy!

6/19/99 ANNA QUINDLEN

It's a great honor for me to be the third member of my family to receive an honorary doctorate from this great university. It's an honor to follow my great-Uncle Jim, who was a gifted physician, and my Uncle Jack, who is a remarkable businessman. Both of them could have told you something important about their professions, about medicine or commerce.

I have no specialized field of interest or expertise, which puts me at a disadvantage, talking to you today. I'm a novelist. My work is human nature. Real life is all I know. Don't ever confuse the two—your life and your work. The second is only part of the first.

Don't ever forget what a friend once wrote Senator Paul Tsongas when the senator decided not to run for reelection because he'd been diagnosed with cancer: "No man ever said on his deathbed 'I wish I had spent more time in the office.'"

Don't ever forget the words my father sent me on a postcard last year: "If you win the rat race, you're still a rat."

Or what John Lennon wrote before he was gunned down in the driveway of the Dakota: "Life is what happens while you are busy making other plans."

You walk out of here this afternoon with only one thing that no one else has. There will be hundreds of people out there with your same degree; there will be thousands of people doing what you want to do for a living.

But you will be the only person alive who has sole custody of your life. Your particular life. Your entire life.

Not just your life at a desk, or your life on a bus, or in a car, or at the computer. Not just the life of your mind, but the life of your heart. Not just your bank account, but your soul.

So here's what I wanted to tell you today:

Get a life! A real life, not a manic pursuit of the next promotion, the bigger paycheck, the larger house.

Do you think you'd care so very much about those things if you blew an aneurysm one afternoon, or found a lump in your breast? Get a life in which you notice the smell of saltwater pushing itself on a breeze over Seaside Heights, a life in which you stop and watch the way a baby scowls with concentration when she tries to pick up a Cheerio with her thumb and first finger.

Get a life in which you are not alone. Find people you love, and who love you. And remember that love is not leisure, it is work.

Each time you look at your diploma, remember that you are still a student, still learning how to best treasure your connection to others. Pick up the phone. Send an e-mail. Write a letter. Kiss your Mom. Hug your Dad.

Get a life in which you are generous. Look around at the azaleas in the suburban neighborhood where you grew up; look at a full Moon hanging silver in a black, black sky on a cold night. And realize that LIFE is the best thing ever, and that you have no business taking it for granted. Care so deeply about its goodness that you want to spread it around.

All of you want to do well. But if you do not do good, too, then doing well will never be enough. It is so easy to waste our lives—to take for granted the color of the azaleas, the sheen of the limestone on Fifth Avenue, the color of our kids' eyes, the way the melody in a symphony rises and falls and disappears and rises again. It is so easy to exist instead of live.

Well, you can learn all those things, out there, if you get a real life, a full life, a professional life, yes—but another life, too, a life of love and laughs and a connection to other human beings.

Just keep your eyes and ears open. Here you could learn in the classroom. There the classroom is everywhere. The exam comes at the very end.

I found one of my best teachers on the boardwalk at Coney Island. It was December, and I was doing a story about how the homeless survive in the winter months.

He and I sat on the edge of the wooden supports, dangling our feet over the side, and he told me about his schedule—panhandling the boulevard when the summer crowds were gone, sleeping in a church when the temperature went below freezing, hiding from the police amidst the Tilt-a-Whirl and the Cyclone and some of the other seasonal rides.

Get a life in which you are generous. Look around at the azaleas in the suburban neighborhood where you grew up; look at a full Moon hanging silver in a black, black sky on a cold night. And realize that LIFE is the best thing ever, and that you have no business taking it for granted. Care so deeply about its goodness that you want to spread it around.

But he told me that most of the time he stayed on the boardwalk, facing the water, just the way we were sitting now, even when it got cold and he had to wear his newspapers after he read them.

And I asked him why. Why didn't he go to one of the shelters? Why didn't he check himself into the hospital for detox? And he just stared out at the ocean and said: "Look at the view, young lady. Look at the view."

And every day, in some little way, I try to do what he said. I try to look at the view.

And that's the last thing I have to tell you today—words of wisdom from a man with not a dime in his pocket, no place to go, nowhere to be.

Look at the view. You'll never be disappointed.△

— Part VIII Of A Series —

Native American Perspectives: Facing Our Destiny

1/23/00 RAY BILGER

Speaking Wind, a Pueblo Indian author, lecturer, and publisher, and friend of Robert Ghost Wolf, died suddenly of a “heart attack” on December 22, 1998. At the time, he was a healthy, middle-aged man who showed no signs of being susceptible to a heart attack.

He was, however, very outspoken about what is really happening in the world and who is orchestrating events, and he had just recently made an appearance on Art Bell’s late-night talk-radio program on December 9, 1998. Knowing the penchant of the dark, so-called “elite” World Controllers for silencing effective public speakers who share too much Truth, it doesn’t take a great deal of imagination to figure out what happened to Speaking Wind. (For more information, see his excellent <http://www.energymedicineassn.com/speakingwind/> Internet website.)

Speaking Wind and his two brothers, Cheeway and Nahe, were raised in the mountains of northern New Mexico. For almost twenty years, they were taught the ways of the spirit by Grandfather, Two Bears, and White Eagle. These teachings were to be put asleep for a time and were not to be remembered until the time was right. The time became right in 1993, and since then Speaking Wind has imparted a vast body of information that can help to provide insight and guidance for all of us.

Among his works, Speaking Wind wrote several manuscripts. These manuscripts “are based on events that have taken place. However, because character portrayals, site locations, and names have been changed, these manuscripts must be presented as fiction.”

The manuscripts are written in story form that makes very interesting reading, and they contain information that the One World Controllers, often known as the Illuminati, surely would rather we were not told. Let us take a look at some of this fascinating and compelling work. Here are some excerpts from Lumen.

[QUOTING]

Cheeway, and his party, were successful in activating the second ancient sacred site under Los Alamos Labs, New Mexico. They also found a way of keeping anyone from ever drilling into the sacred cave again, which if violated would cause a sleeping giant to rise into the world and bring destruction. However, the Illuminati developed another plan—one that would make the sleeping giant rise and spread his lava over most of the southwest lands.

Cheeway was told to activate twelve ancient sites in order for mankind to consciously leave the two-dimensional way of thinking and seeing—a two-dimensional process that had led so many to follow leaders telling them what to do, how to live, and how to die.... Unless all twelve stones were returned to these ancient sites that were built 40,000 years ago, there would be no hope for mankind to leave its world of illusion—the world of illusion that had been kept over them by the teachings from the Illuminati.

The very moment the twelfth stone was put in place, a worldwide grid would be activated and allow all humanity to see past the illusion that had been forced over them throughout history. But Father Sanchez and his brotherhood, the Illuminati, did not want this to happen. Their plans did not include the human race ever knowing there could be more to their life than what they presently have.

Because of what my brother Cheeway was attempting to do from ancient prophecy, the Illuminati, through their menacing representative, Father Sanchez, continued to peruse Cheeway and his party. Cheeway not only had to find the locations for all twelve ancient sites, but he had to stay one step ahead of Father Sanchez, who believed his brotherhood could only be saved by killing my brother.

Cheeway discovered the third ancient site. It was just to the southeast of Mexico City. However, he also discovered that the Illuminati were spreading rumors that vast amounts of oil were located a few miles below the surface in northern New Mexico. And many drilling companies were investigating the possibility of drilling in those lands the sleeping giant was placed to guard. If the sleeping giant was disturbed before his time, he would raise out of the Earth and spread his blood over the lands. His blood is the lava, and his reign is from Los Alamos in the north to White Sands Missile Range in the south of New Mexico.

Cheeway had discovered the location of the third ancient site, but in order to get to it, he had to find an entrance to the ancient passage. The ancient passage was a great underground river that connected North America, Central America,

South America, Asia, Africa, Europe, Australia, and Antarctica. However, the last passage had been blocked by a late 1800s earthquake, but parts of it were still usable.

When Cheeway and his party neared Mexico City, they met up with Xumal, one of Father Sanchez’s bodyguards who had befriended them, and the purpose of their mission. He told them the Illuminati were designing a drilling system that was supposed to tap into the heat from underground lava near Mexico City. He said they wanted to tap into the geothermal activity, then use it as an alternative energy source. But that was only what they were saying on the surface of things. Their real purpose was to destroy the second ancient site by causing the sleeping lava giant to cover the lands with fire, then wake the two twin volcanoes near Mexico City, Popocatepetl (Popo), and Iztaccihuatl (Izta), which would destroy the third ancient sacred site as well.

The Illuminati knew the prophecy of what would happen when the twin volcanoes would erupt simultaneously. They would wake the Grandmother volcano, which is directly under Mexico City. She would erupt and literally blow Mexico City into the air, and her trembling would cause the tail of the turtle, Central America [the Native American name for North America is Turtle Island], to fall into the ocean. Her eruptions would cause the Grandfather, Mt. Rainier, to erupt and release the western [tectonic] plates, which will create the anticipated earthquakes that cause the majority of California to fall into the ocean.

Once Mt. Rainier erupts, the great Fire Bird comes to life and ignites the Ring of Fire in the Pacific Ocean. The heat within the water kills all life, melts the ice cap at the North Pole, and the rotation imbalance causes the Earth to tilt 14 degrees [further than it is now, which is then more than enough to precipitate a major axis instability flip].

Xumal told Cheeway the Illuminati had already begun the design phase of the project and plan it to be operational by the 5th of May, 2000. [Note that this date is also significant as marking a major planetary alignment.] If they were successful in their plan, that date would mark the beginning of the end for life as we presently know it.

Cheeway and company begin their next adventure with three missions. To stop people from drilling for oil in northern New Mexico, to cause the Illuminati to stop drilling between the two twin volcanoes near Mexico City, and to locate the third ancient prophecy site and set the activation stone in place.

[END QUOTING]

The complete manuscripts are available through the website mentioned earlier, or contact The Energy Medicine Association, P.O. Box 5287, Kingwood, TX 77325; phone: 281-510-3972.

The above story, along with some apparent symbolism, brings into focus activities and events not normally seen or heard about by the average person. For example, the activation stone could be put in place, and humanity could begin to truly awaken, and it could all be done by the diligent work of people who must remain behind the scenes and live without public recognition.

Such is the nature of the multi-faceted, many-leveled play we call life on planet Earth. How many times in the past do you suppose that great things may have been accomplished in this manner?

When Speaking Wind appeared on Art Bell's program on December 9, 1998, he said that in September of 1998, five planets lined up with the Earth and the Sun, and "they opened up a big bunch of energy" that "set in motion a worldwide purge of all living things". He then said:

[QUOTING]

The nine brothers, or the planets, align themselves on the 5th of May, 2000, and from that date until the last day of the fourth world, which is December 22, 2012, everything will undergo a purge. And if we're not willing to let go of the illusion and the lies, they're going to be stripped away....

Neither the Earth, nor the life on it is going to end, but it's going to change. And it will be a change of such tremendous proportions [that] it's going to seem as if we're about to become extinct.

[END QUOTING]

Whether or not the changes begin in earnest on May 5, 2000, we'll have to wait and see. It would seem unwise to think that there will not be danger to watch out for, but we must remember that it is by being alive to danger that one may be able to avoid danger. If you can go within and listen to your heart, you may well get through these times and also be a guide to others who will be totally confused about what is happening all around them.

Our Mother Earth is centered within an electromagnetic energy field that is a part of this living, breathing, conscious planet. On the surface of Mother Earth this energy field crisscrosses the planet in grid lines creating energy vortices at the intersections of these energy lines. A vortex may be defined as a spinning energy wheel, but looking more like a funnel or tornado in three dimensions—such as the way water looks when you pull out a stopper and the water exits down your sink drain.

We are surrounded by these vortices, and our Milky Way galaxy is but one big example. Sedona, Arizona is one of the places with vortices that many people are aware of, but Mother Earth has many, many such locations, like Stonehenge in England, the Great Pyramid in Egypt, and Big Horn Medicine Wheel in north-central Wyoming, to name just a few.

The Illuminati would-be World Controllers know well many of these locations and, through a wide array of disguised projects, attempt to utilize them to influence Mother Earth toward their own selfish goals. They do much harm in these undertakings, partly from ignorance, but Mother Nature is teaching them a great lesson in strength—that, as the old margarine commercial used to say, "It's not nice to fool with Mother Nature!"

These natural vortices have long been recognized by Native peoples as "power points" and always regarded as sacred sites. The San Francisco Peaks, just north of Flagstaff, Arizona, compose a major vortex. The Hopi and the Navajo have always considered the Peaks as sacred. These mountains generate very powerful energy. In his book, American Genesis, published by Summit Books, Jeffrey Goodman comments upon the San Francisco Peaks.

[QUOTING]

The Hopi refer to these mountains as their traditional home. They have a number of shrines in these peaks. It is there that the Kachina people live, the spiritual beings who the Hopi say have helped them over the ages. In their ceremonies, the Hopi dress up in the costumes of the various Kachinas. Interestingly, these peaks contain geologic evidence for the destruction of three previous worlds as described in myth. The destruction of the past, or third, world by water could correspond to the flooding that occurred in the San Francisco range approximately 25,000 years ago. The destruction of the second world by ice could represent the glacial activity that took place in the peaks approximately 100,000 years ago. And the destruction of the first world by fire could represent the violent volcanic activity that erupted in the mountains approximately 250,000 years ago.

[END QUOTING]

This information may be helpful in verifying the Hopi's legends of past Earth changes, and thus provide some measure of confirmation that the current Earth-changes

The Untold History Of America

by Ray Bilger

This book shatters the image that has traditionally been portrayed as American History, by exposing the high-level corruption that passes for business as usual in the Halls of Congress, the White House and throughout our entire Judicial system.

The Untold History Of America* was written for the specific purpose of providing a high school textbook for all American schools that would educate students about the real nature of our national situation. With a clear understanding of things as they exist in reality, students will then be in a much better position to go on in life and do something to correct our current downhill course.

This book is for those who want to know why America is the way it is today, where we went wrong, who are the responsible parties, and what we can do to bring back the American Dream our forefathers and mothers fought so hard to establish and gave their very lives to defend.

Special emphasis is placed throughout the book on the original inhabitants of America, the Native Americans. They lived for thousands of years on this continent in complete harmony and balance with the Earth. With their help we may yet be able to turn things around so that our tomorrows will be something we will all be honored to pass on to the children who are our future generations.

★ The first 16 parts of Ray Bilger's ongoing research are ★ compiled into the book:

The Untold History Of America, Vol. I.

Available from Wisdom Books & Press

Please see order form on Back Page ★

prophecies are indeed accurate. It is also interesting to note that just about every comprehensive source of myth and legend contains an account of an ancient flood.

The Four Corners area is another powerful energy vortex location. This is where the states of Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, and Colorado meet. It is home to the Hopi and the Navajo, and it is the area where the Hopi have been continuously living for the past 4,000 years. This area is known as the "Heart Center" of Mother Earth, where the pulse of our Earth Mother is centered. There is a power generated there that helps Mother Earth regenerate herself. It is sadly ironic that this is also the area that the White man has chosen to exploit for its resources of oil, coal, uranium, etc.

As we look around us, it is not difficult to see that many (if not most) people have fallen into a false sense of security during their lives on this planet. In our modern world, where so many amenities are provided, the attitude of most Americans seems to be to take things for granted—to assume, for example, that the grocery stores will always have food in them, the water taps will always flow, and utilities will always provide gas, electricity, telephone service, etc. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Although we constantly see on the TV news where others are the victims of various natural or man-made disasters, if it does not affect us directly, then we generally tend to think it won't happen to us. "Civilized" humanity, by and large as a whole, simply cannot comprehend the sheer magnitude of what appears will soon come down all around us.

The Native prophecies tell us that we will return to the ancient ways and teachings and enter a time of great spiritual awareness and understanding, where all the four races of mankind will be guided by the Great Spirit to live and work together as brothers and sisters. But that time must first be preceded by the Great Purification—the time, it appears, we are about to enter in the very near future.

This is not doom and gloom; it is change, and change that leads to a better world for all of us. These events are going to happen (according to Speaking Wind), but it is our perception of, and reaction to, them that will either see them as healthy change, or as something bad.

Let us look at another of the manuscripts of Speaking Wind, written before Lumen. The following is from The Brotherhood.

[QUOTING]

Cheeway made a second expedition to the Yucatan Peninsula.... He had to find the map room in order to locate a second ancient site—a site where not only the last three commandments were recorded, but the final warning for what the ancient prophecies called mankind's approaching disaster. The warnings had been left so humanity would know what could be done to avert certain disaster to the planet they had been given to live on....

Father Sanchez, and his Brotherhood, have been called the Illuminati throughout history. They have been responsible for keeping truth hidden from humanity for just one reason—to keep everyone under their control by promoting fear-based governments around the world. However, what is contained in the original eleven commandments posed a threat to their control, and their way of life.

They had been searching for the undiscovered second version of the Bible for thousands of years. But now that we discovered the second ancient site where the last three commandments and final warning were recorded, the Brotherhood stepped up their efforts to kill everyone involved, before the information could be made public. But in the wake of the Illuminati's search, millions of people lay dead along their historical path. And to them, a few more would not be significant. [Was Speaking Wind—either unconsciously or knowingly—also writing about his own demise?]

Just before Cheeway discovered the location of the second ancient site, he heard it was about to be violated. If that happened, a great disaster would occur—one that would affect the entire planet. The Brotherhood directed Father Sanchez to stop Cheeway from reaching it, for they had other plans for its use. They wanted to create a contained global disaster that would obliterate thousands [or millions] of people. For them, this would be the first step in getting all world governments to unite under one authority—theirs....

Cheeway was not aware of their plan until he was about to enter The Ancient City Of Prophecy [in the Yucatan Peninsula of Mexico] for the second time. He was met by a man he knew earlier in Peru named Nauti, who informed Cheeway of the Brotherhood's plan.

But Nauti revealed a forgotten chapter in mankind's history and legacy. He spoke of speaking stones that came from what used to be a great wall. They were used, by the old ones, to access information. The wall would speak of things like the beginning of our creation, healing, how to change stone into metal, and water into food, and much more, but Nauti did not go further into it. He said there would be time for that later.

The stones were located in The Cave Of The Winds, and Nauti insisted Cheeway and his party accompany him to its secret location in Peru. Cheeway made the connection from what Nauti told him about the speaking stones, and what he had seen them do. When he shared this information with his party, Roberts disclosed a more conventional name for them—one that has been used by many cultures throughout history. He said this had to be the once great Philosopher's Stone—a great stone, perhaps as large as the wailing wall in Jerusalem, that held all the secrets of time. It was said to have broken into hundreds of separate pieces, thousands of years ago, when the last of its creators was killed by the greedy ones of this Earth.

The creators of the great Philosopher's Stone were called The Watchers From The Light, and the greedy ones who controlled others through fear and ignorance were called The Watchers From The Shadows. But when the ancient prophecy was fulfilled, and The Watchers From The Light returned, the separate pieces of the Philosopher's Stone would reunite into what they once were. And when they did, not only would all of the secrets of time be known, but a white powder would rise out of the Earth and assist mankind in remembering what needed to be done.

The white powder Nauti spoke of has been used, and recorded, by many ancient cultures throughout history. It was called White Gold Powder. They used it to transform themselves, then ascend, to leave this Earth with their body and no longer need to go through the birth or death process again.

Nauti informed us he achieved this over four thousand years ago. And now he, and many like him, return to assist others in need. But they only return when, as he said, events of biblical proportions are about to unfold. And when the White Gold Powder is seen coming up through the Earth, it will mark the beginning of events he spoke about. And it would mark mankind's last chance to save itself from a self-imposed disaster by understanding what they were doing to themselves and the world....

The White Gold Powder that Nauti spoke of was discovered coming out of the Earth in 1996, and has been commercially marketed for the past eighteen months. And there are accounts of individuals using it and raising their spiritual consciousness to levels unknown of before.

Nauti said, by using the White Gold Powder and reading the information we discovered, humanity will remember its destiny—one they may freely choose to follow, or ignore. But a destiny, nonetheless, that will show them what is needed so they may put their lives in balance, not only with the Earth, but with the One who gave them life.

[END QUOTING]

The phenomenon of living for thousands of years is well documented in a series of books titled Life And Teachings Of The Masters Of The Far East, by Baird T. Spalding, DeVorss Publications, P.O. Box 550, Marina del Rey, CA 90294.

It appears that at least a part of our destiny—those who have chosen to be here at this time—is to experience the Great Purification on a personal level, as well as experiencing it as a collective consciousness. Overnight we shall see around us, and experience within ourselves, profound changes that most of us have hitherto never dreamed of. It will be an experience that will be difficult to describe in words, and will actually have to be lived to fully appreciate and understand its infinite and eternal significance.

As you may have already realized, this is exactly why we have been lied to for so long about all of this—and we all had to be tested until our faith was strong enough for us to be able to get to this point without first giving up. The future we will all share together, beyond the Earth changes, will more than make up for what we are about to go through. But actually getting there is the real test.

We have not yet seen the worst of what is to come, so we must all be strong as the events of the immediate future unfold. We all made the conscious free-will choice to be here on Mother Earth at this time, because we know, somewhere inside ourselves, that we are about to learn the biggest lessons of our lives.

The future we have collectively created will be regarded as a terrifying experience by many people. However, we must remain confident in the ways of the Great Spirit and not give in to fear. Remember, the seeds of fear are the fastest growing seeds, taking but an instant to germinate in the consciousness. Once the fear begins inside of you, it can expand quickly and becomes difficult to shake off. Such fear cuts off our ability to go within for Guidance.

The Dark Brotherhood knows this and thus continually precipitates events which generate fear—and that is enough to confuse us as to what is real and what is not. We must face our destiny with a firm confidence in and reliance upon The Spirit That Moves All Things.

Let us conclude this segment with the wise and encouraging words of Rolling Thunder, who has been heard elsewhere in this series:

[QUOTING]

We know what we're doing, and we know what we're looking for. We know the trail we travel, and we hope that someday there will be many of you ready to travel with us. We travel many places nowadays and we move like the whirlwind when we travel to spread the message of the Great Spirit, and how it was in the beginning all around the world. We travel to find our brothers. We never overlook our people, who are all Great Spirit's people, whatever race they come from...

When we traveled across the Great Waters, we were welcomed wherever we went, and far more than some places in America even today. These people were hungry for the knowledge of their past, and it was like a breath of fresh air to bring it back to them. Discovering their original way of life and culture was taken seriously—such as getting back to more respect for the Mother Earth; learning about their native plants and animals; learning the meaning of the waters and the wind, and of the many things that are lost and not taught at all in modern civilization...

When you are among the Indians, you go by our customs. We respect non-Indian religions and customs whenever we travel among you. Everyone is tested when they go into an Indian camp, nowadays especially. One of the tests might be that a person is taken to where some feathers are hanging on the wall to see if the person will touch them before being invited. Most of the time people do not know when they are tested.

[END QUOTING]

Most people today do not realize we are all being tested by the Great Spirit, and by our own Higher Self, all the time. Just how well we do with our testing will determine what we do and where we go when we proceed along the path of our destiny beyond here. We'll continue with this thought in the next segment.

Letting Grow By Letting Go

1/28/00 HILARION

Good evening, old friend. It is I, Master Hilarion, come as a representative of the Emerald-Green Ray of The Creation. I come in, and I am of, The One Light of Creator God. Be still and find peace within your heart, for you know me well!

Your planet, along with all of its inhabitants, are in the Great Transformation process as we speak. The time is at hand for those who have earned same, through past and current practice, to graduate into the next level of learning.

This past Awakening Cycle has been to awaken the heart energy center within those experiencing on your planet. Many have successfully completed this work and are merely awaiting their next placement. Those who have not yet done so are, for the most part, the ones who are currently incarnate on your planet. This is so that those who have not yet done so may have the opportunity to awaken and understand the importance of balancing the energies associated with the heart energy center.

There is a great desire at this time by we of the Higher Realms to offer our support for those who continue to struggle with this “final exam” of sorts, wherein ones must demonstrate their understanding through ACTIONS taken, and not just through empty words and glibness of thought. In other words, the actions, along with the emotional energy content of same, are what will determine the future placement of many ones experiencing at this time.

Many are aware of the concepts stated above in terms of knowing what is the “right” thing to do, and yet still we see these very ones, who state that they “know” better, still acting according to the lower energies of the more primal, ego-centered, animalistic, survival-oriented focus.

This is not to be taken as an insult in any way. This is merely an observable phenomenon taking place on your planet.

The challenges associated with using the FINER energies is not in the least an “easy” task, nor is it a particularly difficult one. The biggest problem that we see ones encountering is related to the perception of time. By this I mean that for the most part ones want to see an “instant return” for their efforts, or they will quickly lose interest.

When operating in the more primal modes of animalistic experience, when you are hungry, you go and hunt food, and within a short time you are eating. When you are tired, you lay down and sleep, and so forth. It is a simple, “straight-line” path of desire and reactive behavior.

Those who have learned to balance the emotional (heart) energies will naturally begin to work on the higher levels of consciousness and will often be the ones who become the clairvoyants, seers, prophets and such. Many of those who have demonstrated their understanding through their actions are not in the physical so as to make room for those who have been reluctant students—so that as many as is possible will “graduate” with the rest of the class.

The higher, more intellectual evolutions of the third-density experience require the use of reason for survival, rather than reaction. This shift, for some, is a difficult one to make, as there is a struggle that naturally takes place as a species becomes self aware. The struggle is for freedom from the reactionary “mentality” and movement into one of reason. The struggle is a battle to tame the reactionary, ego-based energies that were at one time essential for the survival of the species, and balance those energies with reason, compassion, and understanding that comes with true awareness of self and the connection with others.

In your current environment this is indeed a difficult task. When the heart center is fully balanced and operating in optimal condition, there will naturally come the answers to the perplexing and seemingly contradictory events that you ones must eventually come to grips with. These include ideas like the fact that there are Greater Forces at work, that exist outside the physical senses, but which can be sensed consciously on a feeling (emotional wavelength) level. The heart is the gateway to opening the higher energy centers which will evolve more fully in the next level of learning and growth.

Those who have learned to balance the emotional (heart) energies will naturally begin to work on the higher levels of consciousness and will often be the ones who become the clairvoyants, seers, prophets and such. Many of those who have demonstrated their understanding through their actions are not in the physical so as to make room for those who have been reluctant students—so that as many as is possible will “graduate” with the rest of the class.

As we have spoken many times in past lessons, BALANCE is the key to mastering the challenges of the heart. Many of you ones “suffer” from a “broken heart”. The perception of suffering is merely an indicator that you have not yet learned to take responsibility for your thoughts, actions, and choices. The perception of emotional pain (“heartache”) is the magnificent bio-electric feedback mechanism of your internal guidance system doing its job to let you know that, when you dwell upon the subjects that result in the feeling of “heartache”, you are moving in a direction counterproductive to understanding and growth. In reality, this most painful experience is due to STAGNATION.

Your primary objective is the same as for all of Creator’s creations—go forth and experience newness and growth. Stagnation is in direct opposition to this primary, innate directive.

When ones incessantly dwell upon the past “mistakes” that resulted in pain, and insist upon living in the past where no real change can be effected, they are disconnecting from (ignoring) the yearnings of the heart to move forward. This stagnation is indeed painful and quite counterproductive to the soul’s desire for experiencing newness and growth.

How many times have we, of the Lighted Realms of Creation, suggested to you ones to “Let go of the past!”? We say these basic statements in an effort to help you to discover for yourselves the importance of doing so. It is for your personal well-being and happiness that we suggest these things, for we know that you, as a unique aspect of Creator, have a very real and purposeful contribution to make that will inevitably unfold and profoundly contribute to ALL aspects of The Creation!

[Editor’s note: Many past messages by these Master Teachers from the Higher Realms are collected together in the two WISDOM OF

THE RAYS volumes, with a third volume in production for publication later this year.]

We also know that within you lies part of us, and some of our eventual experiences of newness and growth are directly connected to yours. To assist you ones is truly to assist ourselves, and therein lies great value to all ones everywhere.

It is with great passion and compassion that we offer ideas that will help you to find answers that will eventually allow you to heal yourselves from past pains. The compassion comes from Knowing and Understanding, for we too have walked the path you are now on.

We know the healing power of Understanding—that it will help to realign energies in such a way as to allow your energies to flow uninhibited. The pain comes from unnatural energy pathways or severe constriction of the energy flows through you.

Many ones will rightfully explain how much more emotional pain hurts than does physical pain. If you can identify with this last statement, then know that there is truly no need to hold onto this sort of pain. It is, quite bluntly, a form of self-punishment and is quite counter-productive to what you are trying to accomplish there in the physical.

The key is to find understanding as to why these things are so difficult to let go of in the first place. For many, it is shame. Shame that you have hurt another. Shame that you weren't a better person. Shame that you could have been so ignorant as to not see what you were doing.

For those of you who believe you were the victim and did nothing wrong, and yet you were still "hurt" by another, I say to you that you need to look closely at what is truly "hurting". Most often the IDEA of having been judged (by another) as being somehow inadequate causes the greatest pain. Denial of your responsibility as a co-creator of any given experience will also add complications to an already unpleasant situation.

Please understand that the seeming bluntness of my statements is deemed appropriate at this time, as we see that many are simply choosing to ignore our offerings and denying that such have any relative importance to their situation. For a very few this may indeed be the case. However, this message is as much for the one who scribes it as it is for many of you ones who have come forth as Ground Crew. In general you ones are deeply caring beings who are very sensitive to the misuse of energy. Learn to forgive yourselves as you would naturally forgive others.

The greatest risk you ones take by coming into the physical as Ground Crew is that you may once again become part of the karmic condition (of the experiencing group of souls) that may need to be worked out in future incarnation cycles.

Embrace, if you will, the idea and knowing that you accepted this risk, knowing that it is well worth it. Please do not dwell upon past mistakes. Learn from them and move forward. The worst that can happen is that you will become part of a group karmic condition and have need to reincarnate with them at a future time—something that most of you would likely do anyway out of compassion and a desire to be of service to those in need. Let go of the past and learn to live in the now!

I am Master Hilarion. I represent the heart energy, the Emerald-Green Ray of Creator's Spectral Expression of Love. I come in Service to The One Light, Creator God, and as a member of the Brotherhood of Light, to assist those who desire such assistance.

In Love and Appreciation for ALL of God's unique creations—Salu.

The greatest risk you ones take by coming into the physical as Ground Crew is that you may once again become part of the karmic condition (of the experiencing group of souls) that may need to be worked out in future incarnation cycles.

Wisdom Of The Rays: The Masters Teach

The expansive yet compassionate nature of the messages delivered in WISDOM OF THE RAYS: The Masters Teach not only challenges those already firmly committed upon the spiritual path, but also provides a serious first step to help ones who are just awakening to (and inquiring about) the magnificent Spiritual Transformation now sensed by many to be in progress upon this planet.

Volume I & Volume II

Preface & Introduction by
Dr. Edwin M. Young
(400 pages + 4 color photos)

“Our Elder Brothers from the Higher Realms of Creation are attempting to communicate with ALL of us at this time. Why? Take a look around you. The old ways of doing things aren't working. Our planet is entering a time of massive, turbulent change and renewal. To put it bluntly: we NEED help! And that's where this book comes into the picture. Yes, eventually 'the Phoenix will arise from the ashes' after this Great Cleansing process, but the ride could be quite a bumpy one, especially for those ill-prepared for what is to happen.

“Just how we choose to deal with such change is THE question each of us must confront. Yet confusion swirls everywhere upon Earth at this time. And restless searchers cry out for that which may help them cope with these truly challenging times ahead. Thus these messages courtesy of our most loving Elder Brothers from the Higher Realms of Creation who are but further along the same spiritual path we all must eventually walk.”

(From the Back Cover of Wisdom of The Rays: The Masters Teach; Volume 1)

Lengthy Preface by
Dr. Edwin M. Young
(500 pages)

(See Back Page for ordering information)

When Disclosure Serves Secrecy

Editor's note: The following is a powerful open letter from emergency room physician, and the Founder and International Director of CSETI (the Center for the Study of ExtraTerrestrial Intelligence), Dr. Steven M. Greer. Dr. Greer's longtime persistence and dedication to this subject has opened a number of otherwise closed and confidential doors to him, but not without incurring the hazards of recent "unusual" bad health—both for him and for several other courageous ones around him. Some of you may have heard him speak on several occasions on Art Bell's late-night talk-radio program over the past several years. Within the bounds of good taste, he is refreshingly blunt and to-the-point.

Regular readers of this newspaper will find much in Dr. Greer's position that resonates with their feelings on this subject. He makes many excellent points in a very brief fashion and is not afraid to relate important aspects of this subject, entrusted to him confidentially, which the controlled so-called "UFO community" of researchers do not dare put forth—for both economic and "health" reasons.

Dr. Greer has amassed a large number of scientific colleagues who, under the right conditions of protection, stand ready to "spill the beans" on what they personally know about the longstanding UFO coverup. Much of Dr. Greer's work is focused upon reaching this goal.

The apparent access he has earned to "confidential" information is not to automatically imply that all of it is necessarily correct. After all, how better to disseminate disinformation than through credible sources all along the bucket-brigade path. However, when drawing upon your own Inner Guidance for discernment, it is likely that much of what Dr. Greer states herein will resonate as true. Remember that he is reporting a number of ongoing plans revealed to him, and often one immersed in such a sea of details is so close to all of the "trees" that the contours of the much larger, entire "forest"—the Big Picture—are harder to see, especially if other factors of that Big Picture are either not known by him or not recognized as being connected to the ongoing UFO coverup agenda which is his focus.

In other words, the fundamental, overall premise of utilizing all manner of fear tactics to lower people's frequency and thus disconnect them from Higher Guidance, from clear thinking and insight, and make them ripe for all manner of mind control, is central to the struggle going on in the world at this time. Only ONE facet of that fear agenda employs the UFO phenomena, but it is still an important mechanism nonetheless—yet potentially dangerous because, if the dark ones' negative spin on UFOs can be caused to backfire, then many people could quickly awaken to our true position in a universe teeming with life.

In slightly different words, Dr. Greer's final point is that God wins in the end. No argument there! The important call put out herein is for more good people who know The Truth to stand together in The Light and override what the dark so-called "elite" have planned in this UFO arena. And that, of course, is the testing now in progress on this schoolroom Earth: will good people do nothing out of fear, and allow evil to prevail, or will there come forth a renewed, concerted dedication to The Truth? We'll find out soon enough.

10/21/99 DR. STEVEN M. GREER

Ending the secrecy surrounding the UFO/ET subject is a laudable goal. It is long overdue. It would transform the world in ways both simple and profound.

And yet it is fraught with danger.

The covert projects which have been running UFO-related programs for nearly 60 years are not interested in a disclosure which upsets their apple cart. They want such a disclosure to transform their apple cart into a freight train. And they potentially have the power and connections to do it.

There are multiple scenarios attending the disclosure of the UFO subject—and not all of them have the best interests of humanity at heart. Elsewhere, in the new book Extraterrestrial Contact: The Evidence And Implications, I write about the kind of disclosure the world needs. An honest one. An open one. One which replaces secrecy with democracy. A disclosure which is peaceful, scientific and hopeful.

[Editor's note: Dr. Greer's excellent and comprehensive book is available on the Internet, at his website, or from: Granite Publishing, P.O. Box 1429, Columbus NC 28722; phone: 828-894-3088.]

But then there is the disclosure the Powers That Be would like to see:

Manipulated. Calculated to consolidate power and engender fear. Configured in such a way that chaos and a deepening need for Big Brother is carefully inculcated into the masses.

We have seen the plans and it is not a pretty picture.

I write this as a warning. A warning that the wolves in sheep clothes are very cunning indeed. And have almost limitless resources. Most who work with them do not even know they are wolves. Indeed, it is likely that many of the wolves have been convinced that they are sheep.

The UFO matter is not so much a mystery as a matter deliberately obfuscated and mystified. Confusion and a lack of clarity serves the larger covert goal of keeping it off the long-range radar of society while power and plans are consolidated quietly. And the one thing more dangerous to society than all this secrecy is a planned, contrived disclosure run by the keepers of the secrets.

For years such plans have been made—to be unfurled at just the right time. During a time of great expectation. Of social confusion. Perhaps of millennial madness?

I have personally met with a number of people who are very involved with such plans. I do not speculate here. Be aware: The disclosure of UFO reality is being planned very carefully. It will assiduously follow a scheme to spin the subject in just the right way—the only way which will further contribute to the glory and power of the secret-keepers. It will be a false disclosure—one born out of the age-old bane of human existence: selfishness and greed. Greed for power. Greed for control. Greed for domination.

We must be mature and informed on such matters. Only a vigilant and informed public can see through such deceit—and correct it should such a plan be unfurled. Every citizen needs to know that great good can come from the truth being known. But the mature citizen must also recognize how the "truth" can be spun and spun again—until the goals of those who crave secret and overt power are met.

Consider: One scenario for disclosure is that the UFO and Extraterrestrial subject is acknowledged in a way which is scientific and hopeful. Excessive secrecy which lacks executive branch and congressional oversight is ended. Humanity begins to entertain open contact with other civilizations, with peaceful engagement as the goal. Technologies which are currently suppressed are allowed to be disseminated: Pollution ends. An economy of abundance and social justice is firmly established. Global environmental destruction and mind-numbing world poverty become a faint memory. Zero-point-based energy devices transform the world. Electro-gravitic devices permit above-ground travel without paving over the world's precious fertile farm land. As an ET once told Colonel Philip Corso, "It's a new world, if you can take it...". This is the disclosure which we are working for.

[Editor's note: Dr. Greer is above referring to the very thought provoking book by Col. Philip J. Corso titled The Day After Roswell. Col. Corso met with an unexpected end to his life shortly after this book of astonishing revelations came out and very shortly after he was a guest on Art Bell's late-night talk-radio program. This book describes how a number of our modern "inventions", like the laser and transistor, came from elsewhere, from alien technology. In other words, a number of our modern inventions came into existence through routes other than the way we have been led to believe—as straightforward scientific and engineering progress.]

I (E.Y.) can personally vouch for the curious, "there's more here than meets the eye" history behind the evolution of the transistor. Not only was one of the Nobel Prize-winners for "inventing" the transistor a personal friend, but so too are/were others who have long and deep roots in the technologies which started Silicon Valley. There are just some very curious and unusual patterns in the transistor's evolutionary progress which I've noticed are all conveniently absent from both the general history books and the scientific literature. So, while there are plenty of planted, so-called "experts" around, mouthing-off about the lunacy of Corso's book, THE TRUTH of the matter is much more supportive of his astonishing assertions! There is likely some very interesting "truth behind the shadows" of this subject.]

But the disclosure envisioned above could have happened in 1950. It did not. Why?

Such a disclosure would lead to the total transformation of the status quo. Centralized energy systems would be obsolete. Oil would be useful only for lubricants and synthetics. The geo-political order of today would be a thing forgotten: Every country and people on Earth would have such a high degree of progress and advancement that all nations would have a seat at the global table. Power would need to be shared. Peaceful acknowledgment of life from elsewhere would make the Earth seem like the very small, organic homeland which it is. The vast trillion-dollar global military-industrial sector would be reigned in. And a universal spirituality might dawn.

But remember, there are hugely powerful interests who dread this scenario. For them, it is the end of the world as they know it. The end of centralized, elite power. The end of a controlled geo-political order which today leaves nearly 90% of the people of Earth barely one step out of the stone age. And they do not wish to share the power they wield.

Now, let me describe the "disclosure" which would make these covert control programs happy. This is the false or contrived "disclosure" which has only one clear goal: The further consolidation of their power and their paradigm. It has to do with fear, not love. With war, not peace. With division and conflict, not unity. It is the dominant paradigm—but it is slipping away slowly. And a carefully orchestrated disclosure of the "facts" of the UFO and ET subject could secure their power. This is the disclosure which is to be dreaded. This is the disclosure to watch out for. This is the disclosure which is already occurring.

My meetings over the past 9 years with covert operatives who have worked on UFO-related programs have introduced me to some characters right out of a spy novel—and then some. Whether in private high-tech industry, at the Pentagon, or at a midnight meeting in a private mansion, a theme has emerged. It is one of immense, though currently hidden, power. It transcends government as we know it. (At this point, the government of "we the people" has been made irrelevant on this issue.) And the theme has two main strands: the eventual covert militarization of the ET subject, and a weird covert religious strain which can only be viewed as bizarre.

Here we find some very strange bed-fellows indeed. War mongers and militarists in cahoots with industrialists who share a certain bizarre eschatological bent: A dark view of the future, featuring an extraterrestrial "Armageddon"—or at least the threat of it. Such a theme supports retrograde and fanatical religious causes, as well as deeply covert military-industrial plans to expand the arms race into space.

In fact, the big players in the so-called "civilian UFO community" are tied into such beliefs and agendas. It strains credulity, I admit, but here is what we have found by penetrating these operations.

From a military-industrial perspective, the disclosure of choice is one which frames the UFO/ET issue in a threatening manner. If a threat from space can be established (as President Reagan liked to say), then the entire world can be united around the need to fight such a threat. This would ensure trillion-dollar-plus military-industrial spending, well into the next century, and beyond. If you think the cold war was costly, wait until you see the price tag for this "protection" from the "threats" in space: The trillions spent on the cold war will look like a blue-light special [at K-mart].

Retrograde and fanatical religious groups, similarly, have great vested interests in fulfilling the promise of "Armageddon". An eschatological paradigm, well enshrined in the belief systems of those running covert UFO projects, is supported by the portrayal of a cosmic conflict in the heavens. Voila! We have the necessity of spinning the UFO/ET issue in the evil invading aliens (translates in religious terms as demons) direction. Indeed, this has already been accomplished, courtesy of the "civilian UFO community" and the tabloid media (which at this point is virtually all media).

Additionally, there is a subtext which can only be viewed as thinly veiled racism. You will note that part of the "new myth" regarding UFOs involves the "good ETs", which invariably are described as "Pleiadians" who are "handsome", White, blue-eyed Aryan-appearing types. Naturally, those "evil, bad ETs" are darker, shorter, look funny, and smell funny. Please. Such clap-trap would have us trade age-old human racism for an extraterrestrial variety. This nonsense and propaganda could only make Hitler proud.

[Editor's note: As many of you longtime readers of this publication will quickly notice, Dr. Greer's above point jumbles together many different matters into a much too simplistic vegetable soup. One can surely appreciate the frustration which pushed him into this overly simplified conclusion—and almost caused us to not share this otherwise excellent message with you.]

But—that same oversimplification will, as he suggests, likely be exploited as one feature of many (like Project Blue Beam holographic projections in the sky) in creating an overall orchestrated fake-alien-invasion "pageant" to help drive the general, uninformed public into a state of frequency-lowering fear and thereby make it easier for a vast array of mind-control techniques to keep the public under the so-called "elite's" control. After all, far too many ones are beginning to wake up, and something has to be done about this growing, dangerous uppity population which could act, in turn, as a catalyst for awakening a much larger percentage of the sleeping sheep.]

In one lengthy meeting with a multi-billionaire, I was told that he gave great support to UFO activities which propel the so-called "alien abduction" subject into public awareness because he wanted humanity to unite around fighting this "alien threat". Later, this very influential figure informed me that he believed these demonic ETs were the cause of every setback in human history since Adam and Eve. Sound familiar?

Military interests, which are heavily involved in covert projects which hoax ET events, such as human military-related abductions, have a shared goal of demonizing the UFO/ET phenomenon. Doing so lays the foundations for the fear and dread necessary for an organized opposition to all things ET. And this also serves the long-term need to provide a rationale for an expanding global military, even should world peace emerge. In fact, under this scenario, “world peace”—or strictly speaking, peace on Earth—could be secured by the world uniting, eventually, against the “threat from space” referred to by President Reagan. (By the way, personally I believe Reagan was the victim of disinformation specialists who surrounded him and who manipulated him into the statements he made on this subject.)

Under this scenario—currently being gamed and “disclosed” courtesy of the trial-balloon UFO “community”—we would get peace on Earth in exchange for inter-planetary conflict. One step forward, ten steps back. Wonderful.

Such a false and contrived “disclosure of the truth” regarding UFOs and ETs would, then, subserve agendas held by powerful covert interests in both the military-industrial sector, and those of a strange collection of religious fanatics, who pine for Armageddon—and the sooner the better.

[Editor’s note: For you readers who may not be aware of this, it is ALWAYS instructive to look carefully at the roots of these so-called fanatical religious cults. More often than not, following the hidden money trail will lead to covert, government-orchestrated mind-control creations put in place so as to be later utilized for just such “excuses” as Dr. Greer suggests above. Thus, usually this “strange collection of religious fanatics”, as Dr. Greer puts them, are not so really strange at all; they are as contrived and purposeful as are the rest of the players in such an engineered, large-scale pageant.]

Lest the reader think such a strange amalgam of militarists and cult-like religious interests are unlikely, remember the weird views of the Third Reich. Or more recently, the views of one US Department of the Interior cabinet secretary during the Reagan years named James Watt. It was he who, not knowing a microphone was still on and recording his comments, stated in the 1980s that we did not need to worry about all these environmental problems, since Armageddon was coming soon and the world would be destroyed anyway. This bizarre view, held by a man who shaped and applied policy for the Interior Department of the US Government, was later reported in the general media. At the time a comical footnote perhaps. But what does it say about the degree to which such beliefs may be shaping covert UFO policy—and specifically, disclosure plans? We have found that such views—bizarre as they may seem to most—are heavily represented in covert policy development on the UFO subject.

And most disconcerting of all: This strange mixture of military cosmic saber-rattling and bizarre religious beliefs are the dominant forces shaping both the “civilian UFO community” and the planned eventual “spin” on UFO disclosure. Let the buyer beware.

[Editor’s note: Remember that the actual, highest-level controllers need a lot of arms and legs to carry out their TRUE plans of complete world control. In that practical context, such a “strange” policy as Dr. Greer relates above no longer is so strange; it acts as a galvanizing cover to motivate without question many non-thinking, fanatical types—the ideal ones you would want to recruit as your arms and legs! Of course, money from a bottomless supply helps oil the machinery too.]

To the rational and intellectual, such views seem ridiculous. Why, you might ask, would anyone want a cosmic war in space, an Armageddon, and the destruction of the Earth? To comprehend this, you have to get inside the head of people who hold such beliefs—people like James Watt. In his case, why worry about a little bit of deforestation, air pollution, and areas of dead oceans, if the entire world is going to be destroyed in a couple of years anyway?

But the thinking goes further than this. Such fanatical thinking has within it the concept that, as a result of the Armageddon, we will see the return of Christ—and with it the good people’s salvation. Now, people are free to believe what they want. But what we have found is a deliberate influencing of covert policy on UFOs by such beliefs. Some of these people want Armageddon—and they want it ASAP.

Strictly speaking, the militarists and warmongers, itching to “kick some alien butt” as it was said in the movie Independence Day, may actually only want a pretext to justify their existence and get the world to eventually spend huge sums of money on a perceived (if contrived) threat from space.

But in some cases—high up on the food chain of the covert entity running UFO secrecy—the two views meet. A place where militarism and eschatology merge. Where Star Wars and Armageddon join.

In tracing the history of both the UFO civilian community and the covert policy-making group concerned with UFOs, we have found a growing penetration of the latter into the former. So much so that, at this point, there are projects which ostensibly are innocent civilian initiatives, but which in reality are totally controlled and financed by “cut-outs” from ultra-secret projects.

Moreover, our careful penetration of such projects yielded the disturbing finding that deep-cover black-project operatives are working closely with alleged civilian researchers, journalists, and UFO glitterati. CIA and military intelligence operatives are working with civilian “think tank” heads, alongside very wealthy business people who are eschatologists, and being advised by “civilian” technologists and scientists—who are themselves proponents of bizarre religious belief systems involving the end of the world and ETs.

Thus, the new “chosen ones” have been assembled. They are planning your disclosure on the UFO/ET subject. They are owned by the money whores and power brokers doing the bidding of the secret entity which runs UFO projects to begin with. And it all looks like a civilian initiative. So innocent. So well-intended. So “scientific”. And by the way, the sky is falling, courtesy of ETs, and we need your money and your souls to defend against it.

Do not be deceived. You need to be awake to the darker scenarios which some would like to thrust upon the world. And you need to know that there are alternatives. If a “disclosure” is unleashed on the world which is xenophobic, militaristic, and terrifying, know that it comes from the spinmeisters of secrecy—regardless of how respectable the person or group may appear to be.

And remember: Part of this disclosure plan involves the use of UFO look-alike devices made by humans in an attack on Earth or military assets of Earth. This would be a well-orchestrated use of advanced human technologies to hoax an ET attack—all for the purpose of disclosing “the truth” with the desired military-oriented spin. In such a scenario, most of humanity will be deceived into believing the threat from space has arrived—and that we must fight it at all costs. This is nothing more than long-term social security for the military-industrial complex. There must be people who can expose this fraud.

But why should we wait for these darker scenarios to be unleashed on an unsuspecting world?

Here is another idea: Why don’t we-the-people unite and launch a disclosure which resembles the first one described above? An honest one. One which leads to peace, not war. To a sustainable and beautiful world, free of pollution, and brimming with abundance of all types. One which reaches out into the unknown, instead of firing particle beam weapons into the darkness of space.

Additionally, we welcome those who can come forward with first-hand knowledge of the machinations referred to in this paper, and who wish to expose such madness, to contact us at the www.cseti.org website address. The one thing the darkness of secrecy cannot tolerate is a spotlight shining right on it. And the more of us holding The Light, the better.

Evil steps in when good people do nothing. This is a lesson taught through thousands of years of human history. We stand at the beginning of a new time, and a new world awaits us. But we must embrace it, and help create it. For if we are passive, others will have their way—at least in the short run.

The News Desk

1/29/00 DR. AL OVERHOLT

CLINTON ORDERS HUGE ANTI-IRAQ BUILDUP

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 1/24/00: [quoting]

Is Clinton building up the military in Kuwait to start another war in the Middle East? Is he trying to overcome a legacy plagued by "Monica syndrome"?

by Mike Blair

President Bill Clinton may be preparing U.S. military forces for another Middle East war, perhaps an all-out effort to topple Iraqi strongman Saddam Hussein, intelligence sources tell The SPOTLIGHT.

According to sources, the Air Force is dispatching men and equipment to Kuwait, where airfields and other military installations are being improved. In addition, a permanent brigade headquarters is being established in Kuwait to provide command and control for units sent there, the sources said.

KEY ROLE

According to sources, if any major war against Iraq is undertaken, Kuwait would play a key role in the action, particularly as a jumping-off point in an invasion of Iraq.

Clinton is aware of the fact that his predecessor, President George Bush, will long be remembered for his leadership during his lightning-quick victory over the forces of Saddam, even though the Iraqi leader survived the war and emerged a popular enemy of the United States.

"Clinton could be envisioning himself and his place in history if he could do what Bush failed to do—complete the task of pushing Iraq farther back into the Stone Age and getting rid of Saddam" a source told The SPOTLIGHT.

Kuwait was invaded and occupied by Iraq, triggering the 1991 Persian Gulf War against Iraq.

Other possibilities are major strikes at Algeria and Afghanistan. That may be triggered by any purported "Middle East terrorist attack" against American targets abroad or within the United States.

Clinton alerted the Pentagon just before Christmas that any terrorist act directed from the Middle East would be answered with prompt strikes against Algeria and Afghanistan, where anti-American terrorists are claimed to be taking refuge, a reliable source told The SPOTLIGHT.

Many observers believe that Clinton, whose legacy as president will likely be his impeachment and sexual misadventures, may be seeking something spectacular during his remaining days in office to bolster his standing in the history books.

"With Democrat Party members distancing themselves from him, critics writing of his failed policy in the Balkans and the recent defeat of his nuclear test ban treaty by the Senate, Bill Clinton is acting strange" Military magazine reported in its January issue.

The magazine has close ties, through an "ole boy network", with U.S. military intelligence.

"European writers are questioning his actions, like a recent lone session on a golf course, in the rain, slashing at the ball, as a man in deep depression who sees his legacy becoming one he never imagined," the magazine noted. "They fear he may start a war in the Middle East or some place in order to preside over a quick victory." [End quoting]

Don't forget the overheard quote that he made at a White House function when the comment was made that he could win reelection by getting World War III started even if it is now unconstitutional to be reelected for a third term—either that or more likely declare himself in control (becoming the dictator). Do you think he can be stopped under the recent conditions in this country???

LATEST Y2K OIL & GAS NEWS

From the INTERNET, "CJM" <CJM@dreamsoft.com>, 1/21/00: [quoting]

It's been awhile since I've checked the news and stuff. After about 2 weeks of not looking, I check-in to find that the Oil & Gas biz has been Very Active! Whatever the real "Reasons" for what is happening, there seems to be an undeniable shortage of world oil supply as indicated by the following report(s) from the International Energy Association (IEA) and others as repeated from <Yahoo.com/news>.

The last time prices of crude were this high was during the Gulf War, the time before that was during the '70s oil embargo. Why now, in the year 2000? Is there a war? An oil embargo? What? Could it be that there is a significant drop in world-wide oil capacity due to unreported Y2K disruptions in the oil and gas infrastructures? Who knows. But there is a drop nevertheless!

Check out these headlines of interest (all within the last couple of days or so):

IEA: Oil Shortage Looming—LONDON (AP)—Global demand for oil increased much faster than supplies at the end of last year, pinching inventories and driving up prices as buyers hoarded crude ahead of feared Y2K-related disruptions, a respected industry study said Thursday[1/20/00].

"The numbers show markets that are tight and getting tighter," said the monthly report by the International Energy Agency.

Signs that OPEC will extend its production cuts in output beyond March have added to upward pressure on oil prices. Prices for the benchmark oils of Europe and the United States rose by more than 4 percent in December and surged further this week. West Texas Intermediate crude in the U.S. was flirting with $30 a barrel, a level not seen since the January 1991 outbreak of the Gulf War. LINK: <http://dailynews.yahoo.com/h/ap/20000120/bs/world\_oil\_2.html>.

Oil Strengthens As Fears of Shortage Revive—LONDON (Reuters)—Buoyant oil prices pushed higher Monday amid expectations of supply shortages after OPEC signaled it would prolong curbs on exports beyond March. LINK: <http://dailynews.yahoo.com/h/nm/20000117/bs/markets\_oil\_18.html>.

Oil Prices Touch Post-Gulf War High—LONDON (AP)—Petroleum prices surged Wednesday to the highest levels seen since the Gulf War, raising concerns about worsening inflation and a possible threat to the economies of poor, oil-importing nations. LINK: <<http://>

ORDER
THE PAPER THAT • GIVES YOU
"THE OTHER SIDE OF THE NEWS"
• REPORTS ON EVENTS WHICH ARE VITAL TO YOUR WELFARE MAKE UP YOUR OWN MIND WHO IS BEING HONEST WITH YOU—
THE ESTABLISHMENT MEDIA OR THE SPOTLIGHT
(YOUR WEEKLY NEWSPAPER FROM WASHINGTON SINCE 1975)

TO SUBSCRIBE:
call 1 (800) 522-6292 toll free.

biz.yahoo.com/apf/000119/world_cost_2.html>.

Get ready to pay more at pump. OPEC squeezes crude oil prices to 9-year high. USA TODAY—Oil prices jumped to a nine-year high Tuesday on reports that major producers will not expand supplies and as a cold snap in the Northeast increased demand. LINK: <<http://www.usatoday.com/usatoday/20000119/1856339s.htm>>.

Oil at Nine-Year Highs in Asia—SINGAPORE (Reuters)—Crude prices in Asia traded at nine-year highs on Wednesday on expectations of tight supplies as producers looked set to extend their output curbs. LINK: <http://dailynews.yahoo.com/h/nm/20000119/bs/markets\_oil\_22.html>. [End quoting]

This doesn't bode well for us and especially when you tie this into how Clinton is reported to be building up troop capacity in the Middle East in preparation for something big but not yet announced.

SKYROCKETING FUEL PRICES— WILL IT BE PETROGATE 2000?

by Stuart H. Rodman
<www.stuarthrodman.com>

From the INTERNET, <<http://sightings.com/politics6/petro.htm>>, 1-25-2000: [quoting]

Remember that old expression? If it looks like a duck and it quacks like a duck, it's---well, you know.

Recent revelations about the oil and gas industry may be making that old expression especially meaningful for many. Since January 1, 2000 accidents or glitches in the industry may have suddenly nearly tripled in number when compared to the entire year of 1998! Based on a new analysis, unplanned plant shutdowns, fires, and explosions may be occurring now on an exponential curve.

No formal explanations have been offered yet for this sudden epidemic of mishaps, but many observers had expected to see such problems in an industry widely believed to have been unprepared to face the Y2K computer bug that has been officially declared "squished".

And, hey, brace for impact! What's suddenly happened to the price of crude oil?

Since January 1, 2000 it has skyrocketed to a near ten-year high, recently threatening the $30-a-barrel levels last seen during the Gulf War.

So far there has been no panic at the gas pumps, but then again, most retailers are still selling the relatively cheap gas they bought just a few weeks ago. Wait until they have to price-factor-in the latest news.

The refinery in Venezuela, which is the largest supplier of refined crude to the U.S., has broken down unexpectedly and may remain off-line until March. How come? They call it an "act of God"!

It might all just be a big, ugly coincidence, but trend-line projections for accident occurrences might be shattering on the desktops of statisticians all around the world as you read this.

Consider these numbers, though still perhaps tentative, as reported from other sources by Marcia L. Peters. The data reflect known incidents within the petroleum industry for factory, generating plant, pipeline explosions, and fires as displayed on her website <<http://nckodokan.com/charts/crude.html>>:

Summary:

1990 - 3 reports

1991 - 1 report

1992 - 1 report

1993 - 1 report

1994 - 1 report

1995 - 2 reports

1996 - 6 reports

1997 - 5 reports

1998 - 29 reports

1999 - 90 reports

2000 - As of TODAY there have been 64 reports since 1/1/2000!!!!!! [That would calculate out to an average of well over 800 reports for the entire year at the current rate!]

Did you think they are planning to call a news conference to tell us that they have been having problems with the automated systems that control these processes because they really are not, in fact, Y2K compliant?

Fat chance.

The sudden outbreak of unexplained equipment failures in the oil and gas industry might have nothing to do with Y2K. But even if it does, special Year-2000 laws enacted by Congress, like Public Law 105-271, all but assure that Y2K-related disclosures from huge corporations will never see the light of day.

Going public to admit a deficiency may defeat that same shield of liability protection that the special interests have lobbied so long and hard to obtain for themselves. With the Year 2000 finally upon us, we might instead expect to be hearing a lot more about "swamp gas".

Getting to the truth will not be an easy task. The newly enacted federal Year-2000 statutes make information about corporate Y2K disclosures to government agencies "non disclosable", even under the Freedom of Information Act!

Does it really matter?

Some think we may find ourselves with plenty of time to ponder that question while we wait in long lines to fill our gas tanks later this winter.

In the meantime, NY Governor Pataki has called for a federal investigation into rising fuel prices, and several Senators, including the co-chairman of the Senate Select Committee on the Year-2000

Technology Problem, Christopher Dodd, have called for a preemptive sale of oil from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

Rising demand for heating oil, brought on by the severe cold in the Northeast, is further complicating the problem, and spot shortages of refined products may not be far off.

Fire up that freeze dried food, and plan to set a spell.

Oh yeah! Don't forget that down-filled comforter though. Whatever the truth, it's going to come in handy. [End quoting]

This subject and related data is more tricky to analyze than it appears on the surface. Sure, there may be some true Y2K-related problems adding to the total number of accident reports. But if that were the only answer, then why such an increase in 1998 and especially in 1999?

What if "we" have been planning another serious war in the Middle East (or anywhere), and "they" did not want such to occur, and had the available technology (such as space-based charged-particle beam-weapons) to cripple fuel production facilities worldwide if need be? Advanced, secret technologies are utilized all the time for geopolitical reasons usually hidden from the public eye.

And the next item is likely another example of such "warfare". Wonder what chess game is going on that involves France?

300 MILLION TREES DOWNED IN FRENCH STORMS "A CATASTROPHE"

From the INTERNET, <<http://www.sightings.com>>, 1/4/00: [quoting]

The two storms which devastated France last week destroyed about 300 million trees, the National Forestry Office (ONF) said Tuesday. "It is a catastrophe without precedent" said the ONF's technical director Jacques Trouvilliez.

Across the country, vast swathes of woodland have been smashed or uprooted—from the orchards of Normandy to the great parks of Paris, to the vast plantations in the northeast.

NEWS AND ARTICLES

News articles and clippings can be submitted to:

Dr. Al Overholt
P.O. Box 1567
Tehachapi, Ca 93581
email: alo@tminet.com

As always, I appreciate the many contributions you readers make to this column. God Bless!

In the Vosges mountains, 35 percent of public forestry has been destroyed, and aerial pictures show huge areas of pine trees laid out like corn, a few bare trunks bearing witness to the vanished landscape.

In the grounds of the palace of Versailles, 10,000 trees have been uprooted, including two 200-year-old cedars, totally transforming the vista created by Louis XIV's gardener Le Notre.

And at the arboretum of the Natural History Museum outside Paris, the winds felled ten percent of the trees, which have been collected there over generations from all corners of the world. "It's back to square one; 40 years have been lost. Some of these trees we will never be able to replace" said Yves-Marie Allain, director of cultivation.

The impact for many is a highly emotional one, with the disappearance of a well-loved old oak or a line of poplars down a country road.

But for the half-a-million people in France whose jobs depend on the forestry business, the storms present a direct threat to their livelihood.

The immediate concern is a sudden fall in the price of wood, as the estimated 10 million cubic metres are sawed up. "If a tree has been uprooted, it is not so serious" explained Sylvie Benda Alvarez, of the ONF economy department. "The wood is undamaged and it can be stored for maybe a year in water.

"The real problem is where trees have been smashed, because the wood is unusable for building, and goes for pulp or wood fibre.

"A good oak will nominally get you 800 francs (120 euros, dollars) per square metre. If it is damaged, it will get perhaps 35 francs (5.5 euros, dollars)."

Agriculture Minister Jean Glavany visited the worst hit area, Lorraine in the northeast, on Monday and said an aid package would be announced.

The government will also co-ordinate with producers to make sure as much of possible of the wood is kept off the market, and released gradually to ensure price stability.

Forestry experts have said it will take up to 100 years to re-establish the destroyed woodland, and the emphasis will be where possible on letting forests regenerate naturally. "We know that, the more diverse a forest, the better it can withstand violent storms like last week's" said Benda Alvarez. "So unless a forest has been totally massacred, we won't replant—just let the various seeds germinate themselves."

The importance of diversity of forestry is one lesson being drawn. Another is that younger trees appear to be weaker than older ones.

Experts say trees are growing much more rapidly today than 100 years ago, thanks to greater quantities of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere, with the result that they are ganglier and weaker.

One side-benefit is that younger trees replacing the destroyed parts of the forest will consume more greenhouse gases, thus helping the fight against pollution.

The sheer scale of the disaster to France's woodland was spelt out by historian Emmanuel Le Roy Ladurie.

Looking back in the Figaro newspaper over official forestry records going back to the early 17th century, he said no similar catastrophe has ever been mentioned. "The forests were extremely closely inspected because of their importance for the navy, but...since 1660 there is no mention of a macro-phenomenon on this immense scale" he said. [End quoting]

We also saw what happened in France just a few days later, when they had the massive snow and cold.

In Venezuela, a few days before this, they had massive floods, and all around the world there are unprecedented types of disasters. No matter where you're located, it would be wise to be prepared to "weather" some kind of disaster.

SCIENTISTS GROW FROG EYES AND EARS, TECHNOLOGY THAT COULD BE USED TO GROW HUMAN ORGANS

From the INTERNET, <para-discuss@tje.net>, 1/4/00: [quoting]

Japanese researchers have grown frog eyes and ears in a lab using the animal's own embryo cells, technology a scientist said Monday could eventually help doctors replace lost or damaged human sensory organs using cells from the patients' bodies.

Makoto Asashima, a biologist at prestigious Tokyo University, said the process is an alternative to donor transplants.

The team cultivated thousands of embryo cells in a retinoic acid solution for five days to produce the organs, he said.

Varying the concentration of the retinoic acid somehow brings forth different genetic instructions in the cells, Asashima said. A lower concentration activates a set of genes producing eyes, while a higher concentration activates genes producing ears.

The researchers used embryonic stem cells, the ancestral cells that develop into the tissues and organs in the body.

The procedure is different from cloning, in which a single cell from an organism grows into a copy of the original, he said.

Asashima said his team is the first to produce the eyes or ears of an animal in a test tube.

In a similar, simpler procedure, the researcher said he previously grew frog kidneys and transplanted them into other frogs.

The recipient animals lived for more than a month, he said. The team did not test the survival rate of frogs with transplanted natural kidneys, he said.

Hideyuki Okano, a professor of neural development at Osaka University's Graduate School of Medicine, said Asashima's work was "extremely striking".

Okano, who has been following the research, said it could eventually help scientists reduce reliance on donors for rare organs.

Scientists are already able to grow human skin from patients' own cells, and such transplants are carried out in the United States, Europe, and Japan, Asashima said.

Asashima said he plans to submit his findings, which were first reported in Monday's Mainichi newspaper, to one of two Japanese scientific journals, Zoological Science or Developmental Growth And Differentiation. [End quoting]

The fact that these kinds of announcements are now being routinely made in the publicly visible media should be a big clue as to the TRUE, much more advanced state of such research "behind closed doors". What kinds of moral or ethical checks and balances do you suppose are governing such advanced, secret research? There's a thought to help you sleep peacefully at night!

FLU SHOTS DO THEY REALLY WORK?

From THE IDAHO OBSERVER, Oct. 2000: [quoting]

The answer to that question depends upon whom you rely upon for your information. If you believe public health professionals who rather blindly accept the assurances of flu vaccine manufacturers and who depend upon the flush flow of money for a living, then, yes, flu shots work. If, on the other hand, you believe that field experience, peer reviewed studies, and actual statistics published by the Morbidity And Mortality Weekly Report, as reported by entities such as the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, then the answer is no—flu shots don't work.

By Kristine A. Severyn, R.Ph., Ph.D.

Every autumn the elderly and other high-risk groups are encouraged to receive influenza vaccine (flu shots). Congress authorized Medicare funding for flu shots in 1993, believing that vaccination costs are less than hospitalization costs related to influenza complications. Was Congress misled when it authorized this $80 million per year Medicare flu shot entitlement? Have vaccine recipients been misled?

Although influenza is associated with more disease, hospitalization, and death in "at risk" populations, no adequate controlled studies exist which prove that influenza vaccine reduces the incidence of influenza in these groups.

CDC CRYSTAL BALL

Influenza virus strains mutate, necessitating a new vaccine each year. Technicians affiliated with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) collect influenza viruses from pigs and people in foreign lands, e.g., China. CDC personnel then attempt to predict which viruses will infect people in the U.S. the following year—the CDC crystal ball. These CDC-selected viruses are distributed to vaccine manufacturers early in the year for influenza vaccine production, for administration that autumn. [End quoting]

The controversy over flu shots seems to get more stirred-up each year, rather than being resolved. Many people report personal experiences which would suggest staying as far away from these shots as possible. Do you really know what is in them? Our Front Page story this issue ought to awaken many from the slumber of blind trust in the pronouncements of the medical community.

It is most important to call to mind the classic, well-researched 1988 book by Eustace Mullins called MURDER BY INJECTION: The Story Of The Medical Conspiracy Against America. (If you're interested in this gem, as well as other eye-opening research by Eustace Mullins, write to: Ezra Pound Institute Of Civilization, 126 Madison Place, Staunton, VA 24401 for a list of his currently available books and their prices.) Many antics of the medical arena come into a sharper (if harsher) focus in light of the documented foundation which Eustace provides.

PROBLEMS CONTINUE TO PLAGUE ANTHRAX VACCINATION PROGRAM FOR MILITARY PERSONNEL

From THE SPOTLIGHT, by William Carmichael, 1/3/00: [quoting]

Cost Overruns, Safety Concerns Plague Vaccination Program.

Good news for GIs: The government hasn't been able to force a controversial, unproven vaccination on all the nation's troops.

The government thinks it's bad news, but many people disagree.

Defense Secretary William Cohen's goal of inoculating all 2.4 million active-duty service members and reservists against anthrax remains a distant one. The Pentagon says 383,000 service members have now received anthrax vaccinations—far from the 100 percent goal announced by the Department of Defense a year ago.

David Oliver, deputy undersecretary of defense for acquisition, technology, and logistics said: "We underestimated how difficult this was going to be."

A number of servicemen have refused the injection, resulting in courts martial. The total number of "refuseniks" remains a Pentagon secret, however.

According to a report released Dec. 13, the Pentagon said that obtaining a reliable supply of the vaccine remains a problem. The lack of Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approval is one of the complaints of those service personnel refusing the inoculations.

MORE MONEY

Only one company is manufacturing the vaccine, BioPort Corp. of Lansing, Michigan. And it has been plagued with production problems and cost overruns.

Even though it has built a new plant in Lansing to produce the vaccine for the military, it has not yet obtained FDA approval to begin production there.

According to published reports, the Pentagon agreed in August to pay more per dose and to make an $18.7 million advance payment to BioPort to enable the company to pay off creditors. Now, an additional $7 million to $10 million from the federal government may be needed, Oliver said. [End quoting]

Not just a "problem" in the United States, military personnel in at least Canada, Britain, and Europe are likewise suspicious of the anthrax vaccine and refusing to be inoculated. If we have no way of really knowing what's been put in a flu shot, imagine the latitude that the military has in "customizing" their inoculations. One wonders just what the need is for these shots, all of a sudden, and many military personnel question what else may be the true motive for the injections—such as the possible inclusion of the latest versions of small electronic chips to "help" them be "better" soldiers.

UNCONTROLLABLE TREASURY

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 1/17/00: [quoting]
The Treasury Department is "clearly out of control" concluded a report by Alan Balaran, an investigator appointed by U.S. District Court Judge Royce Lamberth in Washington, D.C. Last January, Treasury lawyers failed to keep the agency from shredding 162 boxes of documents related to a lawsuit by American Indians, according to Balaran. He noted that the lawyers covered up the shredding for more than 14 weeks and misled Lamberth about it. A month later, then Treasury Sec. Robert Rubin and Interior Sec. Bruce Babbitt were cited by Lamberth for contempt of court. [End quoting]

Considering the international banking interests who have been in control of our U.S. Treasury ever since the late-night, sneaky passage of the Federal Reserve Act in 1913, one might look to the Italian Mafia for a more honestly run organization. So, just imagine the resistance to be met when there is being conducted a sincere investigation of the Treasury Department, and that investigation, furthermore, may have to do with matters concerning the Native Americans. It would be easier to probe the dark secrets at the Vatican!

To understand more about this subject, read another classic gem of a book by Eustace Mullins, called Secrets Of The Federal Reserve. (Write to: Ezra Pound Institute Of Civilization, 126 Madison Place, Staunton, VA 24401 for a list of currently available books by Eustace Mullins and their prices.)

QUESTIONS AND SPECULATIONS CONCERNING HARRISON STABBING

From the INTERNET, ©2000 NewsHawk® Inc. <hawkeye@saber.net>, dated 1/4/00: [quoting]

On December 30, less than two days before the beginning of the year 2000, former Beatles' member George Harrison was attacked and stabbed in his home outside London. Harrison would very likely have been killed if his wife Olivia hadn't smashed a lamp on the attacker's head.

Considering what happened to Harrison's former band-mate, John Lennon, on the streets of New York almost exactly 19 years before, and considering the Beatles' key, pivotal role in the mass social experimentation carried out by Britain's Tavistock Institute in conjunction with covert intelligence agencies like the CIA, NSA and Britain's MI-5/MI-6, we'd say there is a strong likelihood that Harrison, like Lennon, was NOT the victim of some random act of senseless violence.

In fact, Lennon was murdered shortly after he gave an interview to Playboy magazine in which he blew the lid off the fact that the Beatles were part of massive experimentation in social control/engineering unleashed by Tavistock and intelligence agencies, as was the deliberate introduction of drugs like LSD into the burgeoning "counterculture" scene during the 1960s and 1970s. The Playboy interview was published not long after Lennon's death.

We'd say it's a good possibility Harrison was targeted to be bumped off by some of the same forces responsible for rubbing out Lennon, using MK-Ultra/Manchurian Candidate-type mind-controlled assassin Mark David Chapman.

Perhaps Harrison had likewise done something to incur the wrath of his former "programmers" or perhaps it's just "company" procedure to terminate operatives of whatever designation at some point in time, lest they somehow become an unnecessary security risk.

Perhaps George Harrison had been designated as some sort of "sacrificial victim" by the demented, obsessed, criminally insane, ritualistically-oriented Illuminati power-brokers operating behind the scenes of so many events in the world. Perhaps there was some connection between this attempted "sacrifice" and the end of the 20th century/beginning of the new millennium (even though that REALLY begins next year).

The Beatles' movie HELP! kept coming to mind.

Right off the bat, we wondered if perhaps the near-fatal assault on Harrison was linked to elements of the covert government, and there were some indications this may have been the case.

Few pop bands had as much impact on the latter half of the 20th century as did the Beatles. How ironic, then, that less than 48 hours before what was generally considered the end of this century, Harrison was nearly killed in a rather ritualistic fashion—by a knife.

The number "33", a very significant number in Masonic symbology, seems to pop up with more than random frequency as having been a factor—somehow or other—in many events or incidents which have ritualistic, cult-like aspects. To name but one such recent event, there was a WEALTH of 33s which figured in the crash of Egyptair Flight 990 (33x3x10).

Sure enough, we find some 33s showing up in the Harrison stabbing incident.

The attacker, Michael Abram, is 33 years old.

And even more freaky, the attack was said to have occurred at THREE-THIRTY in the morning (London time).

The DATE of the attack was 12.30.99. In numerology, the numbers of this date tally up to SIX, which is THREE plus THREE.

Some similarities have emerged between the knife attack upon Harrison and the New York City street-shooting of Harrison's ex-bandmate John Lennon in December 1980.

As with Chapman (the mind-controlled assassin who killed John Lennon), the person who wielded a 7-inch knife against Harrison and his wife Olivia on Wednesday night in their home near London, a Michael Abram, is shaping up as some kind of fanatical lunatic who had only fairly recently become "obsessed" with the Beatles, according to Abram's mother, Lynda. She also said that her son "hates" the Beatles and believes them to be "witches."

What she describes about her son's "beliefs" regarding the Beatles sounds to us like Michael Abram was subjected to Manchurian Candidate/ MK-Ultra/Monarch/Montauk-style belief-system conditioning, inculcated in the target subject by such means as drug- or EM/RF-assisted hypnotic trance induction or the like, as part of an overall mind-control program.

There are other anomalous and peculiar aspects to the entire incident—some of which George Harrison has already commented upon publicly. Harrison said the man "was certainly not intent on burglary".

The attacker, in fact, seemed quite proficient at wielding a knife, stabbing Harrison four times—the most serious wound was only an inch from Harrison's heart.

For another example, one of the more inexplicable aspects is how the attacker, now charged with two counts of attempted murder, was able to penetrate what Harrison's neighbors describe as "Fort Knox"-like security at the Harrison residence. Police have repeatedly noted their amazement that Abram was able to penetrate the extensive, elaborate security in place around Harrison's house.

Obviously this was, in some way or other, an "inside" job.

And furthermore, we'd really like to know whether slasher Abram was carrying a copy of J. D. Salinger's Catcher In The Rye, as were both Lennon's murderer Chapman and would-be Reagan assassin John Hinckley—NOT to mention the MK-Ultra mind-controlled assassin "Jerry" played by Mel Gibson in the surprisingly revealing movie Conspiracy Theory.

Salinger, a quite accomplished and well-respected author whose book Catcher In The Rye is required reading for a great many high school students in the U.S., had extensive ties to the CIA throughout most of his adult and professional life, including his stint as a university professor.

We're very relieved to hear that neither of the Harrisons were seriously injured in the stabbing assault. [End quoting]

In order to truly appreciate the above information and speculation, it is helpful to have the important background information provided in, say, David Icke's books (see later in this News Desk) and Dr. John Coleman's outstanding CONSPIRATORS' HIERARCHY: The Story Of The Committee Of 300 (available from: Joseph Publishing, 2533 N. Carson Street, Carson City, NV 89706; 1-800-942-0821).

POKÉMON—SNATCHING A PEEK AT YOU

From the INTERNET, <para-discuss@tje.net>, David W. Hodges, <<http://www.txdirect.net/~dwhodges/pokemon.html>>, 1/21/00: [quoting]

What could be sinister about a cute animation which once sent hundreds of Japanese children into seizures with flashing lights, strobing from a character's eyes? It has been suggested that Pokémon may be a part of the quiet new frontier of electronic influence, the science of adjusting, or retuning, consciousness using light pulses and/or specific sound frequencies. If this is, in fact, a hidden truth of Pokémon, it only worsens the impact of the dirty little secret which rests within plain sight, a secret which anyone with a VCR can confirm. There is a pedophile undercurrent within the animated Pokémon series, and it all begins in each episode with a sneaky little Pikachu.

WHERE TO LOOK & STILL-FRAME WITH YOUR VCR

Within the middle of every episode's startup introduction, there is a sequence of character presentations which are not episode clippings. This particular sequence of the introduction begins with the main character, Ash Catchem, joined a second later by his companions, Misty and Brock. Next comes the image of the antagonistic team Rocket (Jessie & James), displaced immediately by their 3 Pokémon, centered upon the cat "Meowth". Then comes the image of Ash Catchem's arch-rival, Gary, followed by receding views of 3 different Pokémon in succession as the camera seems to pull backwards very rapidly.

Next, you see Ash standing in a road, bouncing a Pokéball in his hand, while in the background Pikachu is running towards the camera very fast.

Ash quickly fades back and out of view. He is replaced by a young girl standing, feet spread, wearing leg warmers, an extremely short green skirt, an orange blouse, and a really huge red bow at her collar. (This girl has no role in the show.) Suddenly Pikachu comes charging forward, running between her legs with its tail held high. Pikachu's tail lifts the little girl's skirt and displays her uncovered vaginal cleft for 3 brief frames. The remaining frames of the little girl show her looking downward, with her knees suddenly brought together and both hands holding down her skirt, all this while Pikachu completes a center screen leap into a light.

This pubic "peek-at-you" portion is immediately followed by a brief scene showing the 4 main authority figures, standing together, giving a single, synchronized nod to the viewer, as if they are condoning what the subconscious just saw. The introduction then proceeds into more clippings from various episodes. Gotta catch'em all! Gotta catch'em all! Who is really "them"—fictional Pokémon, or the children watching?

Once you clearly glimpse the intentional illustration of the little girl's vagina, Pikachu suddenly makes much more sense when you listen to the way the name sounds, which is "Peek-at-you".

As soon as I am able to purchase the necessary hardware or gain someone's assistance, I will post the "peek-at-you" video frames on this website, but until then, you will have to rely upon a VCR and frame-by-frame advance, if it has that feature. If it does not, I suggest you record the introductory segment in SP (Standard Play) mode to maximize both image quality and frame count. You will then have to catch one of the frames I have described to you by using the "pause" button and a sense of timing.

"Pocket Monsters" began as a video game, and when it expanded into an animated series, the name was shortened to "Pokémon". Knowing this, set aside the Pokémon connection for a moment, and consider the impression made by someone saying that they have a monster in their pocket. There is culturally inherent sexual innuendo involved in the idea of having, or showing, a "pocket monster". It seems the sort of ploy that depravity would use trying to seduce a child.

One could try to argue that there is no connection, but the very fact that there is connection enough to argue about should be connection enough to concern any parent or guardian of a young, impressionable mind. It is a curious thing that, within the world of Pokémon, one is either battling to become a "master" or aspiring to be a "breeder". To be a breeder is the noblest goal, according to the show. Gotta catch 'em all! Gotta catch 'em all!

In Japan, Japanese animation is primarily adult-oriented. It often contains violence, eroticism, and sexuality. Even so, why have such things been woven into what is unquestionably a children's animated series? Although I cannot provide an answer to this, I can provide more evidence of it.

The mons veneris (Latin for "hill of Venus", Roman goddess of love) is the pad of fatty tissue that covers the pubic bone below the abdomen but above the labia. The mons is sexually sensitive in some women and protects the pubic bone from the impact of sexual intercourse.

Knowing this, consider what is implied by "pokie mons". Though "Pokémon" is minus the s, I would argue that the monster is still there, subtly woven sexual innuendo within the show's infrastructure. Is this just another coincidental connection children will probably miss consciously, or another intended furrow in seed-rows of the subconscious? The subconscious mind doesn't miss a beat, but consciousness grabs maybe 1 beat out of 15 on a good day, where beats are bits of information.

"Got-ta catch 'em, gotta catch 'em all! Gotta catch 'em all, Pokémon!" These are a few words from Pokémon's theme song, and as often as they are repeated, one is apt to remember or react to them. Gotta "catch 'em". Gotta "catchem". Catchem seems the verb, the action; or, perhaps, an order to act.

Gotta catch 'em all! Gotta catch 'em all! You hear this over and over and over, in the opening, in the closing, and in the ads. Once in awhile "Catchem" gets stuck behind "Ash", and I cannot help wondering what, exactly, I am supposed to catch. It is a name with contextual bias; it seems slightly out of place. I have tried replacing "h" with "s" in "Ash" for insight into the murky motivations of this profitable, socially invasive programming, but I failed to reach a conclusion.

Where pokéballs fit into the analysis is not a topic I have invested energy into deciphering. Pokéballs are home to captive pocket monsters.

"THE KANGASKHAN KID"

One of the more disturbing episodes in the Pokémon series is called "The Kangaskhan Kid". The story is set in a Pokémon reserve, and it involves a young, boomerang wielding wild boy, Tomo, who has been adopted by a herd of Kangaskhan. As the show progresses, a man and his wife are introduced; the man, called "papa", is short, and wears a mustache which gives him an Adolph Hitler look. This couple explains that they have come searching for their son, Tommy. In a flashback sequence, we watch papa suspended a very young boy outside of his moving helicopter, to give the child a better view. We then watch papa drop Tommy, to his wife's dismay; then he blames her for not holding the child.

After some pleading, the main characters volunteer to help the couple search for Tommy, and in the next scene, the protagonists struggle and complain as they carry the couple upon a pole-suspended platform. Mama said, "I apologize for this. Papa doesn't get outdoors much, and he's not in the best of shape." Never does she offer to walk and lighten their load. Papa then pipes in with "I admit it!"

Tomo, or Tommy, soon finds the group as they try to help a young, injured Kangaskhan. Mistaking their intentions as being hurtful, Tomo throws his boomerang and strikes Ash in the head, only to be screamed at and berated by Misty for doing so. Mama begins trying to get Tomo to remember them, but without success. Papa suddenly bashes the boy on his head with a club, knocking him unconscious. Soon after Tomo regains consciousness, Mama again prompts him to remember them. Papa then begins undressing himself as he speaks to the boy saying "Tommy, remember Papa"? Misty quickly strikes Papa on the head with a club, and as she drags his body away, she says "One memory at a time!"

As the episode progresses, confrontations with the evil Team Rocket occur as the result of their latest plan to steal and create mayhem with a huge, armed, metal replica of a Kangaskhan. Papa eventually saves the day by crashing his helicopter into the monster; then Tommy remembers them as he views the wreckage, believing they are dead. His parents were not killed, however, and Tommy then faces a dilemma of not wanting to leave his Kangaskhan family. The show ends with the entire family, dressed in animal skins like Tomo's, tucked within the pouch of a very large Kangaskhan.

M Y S T Y ' S F I S T

I have read nationally syndicated articles praising Pokémon as being a wholesome, nonviolent, value-filled animation, but I can only imagine that such opinions came from the Pokémon production propaganda press-release package.

Pokémon do not battle with the level of violence which the human characters exhibit, specifically the two lead, redheaded females, Misty & Jessie.

While you would expect the antagonist (Jessie) to be hot-tempered, she is only occasionally violent. Misty's temper, however, explodes regularly.

Sometimes her head enlarges to 5 times its normal size as she SCREAMS with an enormous mouth of fanged teeth. More often, Misty's temper results in physical violence when someone aggravates her, creating a huge, raised knot on the head or face of her victim, usually her friends, Ash Catchem or Brock. (Brock's character just left the show, and someone new should be joining the little team.)

Consider the message that is being transferred by scenes of lashing out in anger, the message of a female striking a male friend, especially since the relationships and violence are closer to realism than any of the super-hero battlings or ray-gun-blasting-type cartoons. There is certainly realistic personality development and interaction between the protagonists. Apologies are never offered, but the huge knots Misty inflicts on her friends do disappear quickly.

Perhaps exposing that there is underlying sexuality and occasional, unjustifiable violence will encourage more adults to watch this show.

David W. Hodges [End quoting]

It is only wise, especially these days, to be vigilant about monitoring what our children are watching on television—or do we, by neglect, want to see them programmed to be good New World Order robots, as the so-called "elite" desire and are accomplishing with their many methods of mind control?

SPECIAL REPORT REVEALS "THE SECRETS OF POKÉMON"

From the INTERNET, <<http://www.sightings.com>>, 1/4/00: [quoting]

By Jon Kelly <jon@retropics.com>

Are hidden messages in the soundtrack for the Pokémon TV show, teaching violent behavior to children? Analysis shows clearly audible references to guns and dysfunction in the speech of the show's characters. Are these messages appropriate for a young viewing audience? What values are being taught through children's television programming?

Do you ever wonder what your children are watching on television? If they are like millions of other children in North America, they are probably watching the hit cartoon series Pokémon.

The primary goal in Pokémon is to find, capture, and train various monsters, all in an effort to become the world's greatest Pokémon trainer. "You teach me and I'll teach you" as the show's theme song tells us. But children are learning other lessons as well.

In December 1999 Britain's Telegraph reported: "The latest craze to hit toyshops in Britain has been denounced by US police as 'America's most dangerous hobby' after causing a surge in child crime. Children across the US are stabbing, beating and robbing each other to steal Pokémon trading cards.... [In Philadelphia] six children have been arrested for separate attacks on classmates to steal cards.... Prosecutors in Orange County, California, have filed charges against a 13-year-old boy who is accused of stealing a classmate's Pokémon cards and then running him over with his bicycle."

Why are children responding with such violent behavior? We've applied Retropics speech analysis to an episode of the Pokémon television series called "The School of Hard Knocks". This approach has revealed startling new information hidden within the spoken dialogue.

The Retropics approach to speech analysis utilizes audio recording and editing technology to reverse and slow down recordings of speech. Concentrated listening to the modified recording reveals intelligible words and phrases hidden backwards within spoken communications.

These expressions communicate the beliefs, memories, and feelings of the speaker in mundane and archetypal language that can be accurately interpreted through rational and intuitive analysis.

Expressions are documented in audio format, presenting the forward context within which the expression appears, followed by the hidden expression played back at 100%, 60% and 40% of the original speed.

Subjective listening procedures, such as those utilized by the American National Standards Institute, are still considered by audio engineers as the best measure of speech intelligibility. Retropics expressions are documented as authentic, intelligible speech by a computer-audio systems expert with two years of practical daily experience in the recording and application of these specific speech phenomena.

Recent Caltech research shows that our minds can hear and interpret backwards recordings as intelligible speech. The expressions presented in our report are therefore unconsciously identified, interpreted, and memorized by the viewers.

Do these hidden messages form a part of what Pokémon teaches children about how to get along with others? Consider the following examples posted to <www.retropics.com>:

THEY'RE PLAY FAMILY. This expression is found in the theme song. Does Pokémon provide a quality family experience?

GET A GUN. Two children are involved in a dispute. Has this girl been taught to resolve conflicts through the escalation of force?

WE SCREW YOU. Two characters express their affection towards one of the Pokémon creatures. The male character gives this expression, but is it appropriate?

To hear the audio files, visit <www.retropics.com>. Listen to these expressions and decide for yourself: are these the lessons we want to teach young children? [End quoting]

The above is, unfortunately, just one of many possible examples of the kinds of sophisticated subliminal programming techniques being employed today for a wide variety of no-good reasons. One wonders, for example, what may be injected into the so-called background music being played in grocery and other stores. Refer back to the unsettling and somewhat overwhelming report covering various mind-control techniques just presented in the January issue of The SPECTRUM.

SATELLITES TO STOP CARS FROM SPEEDING

From the INTERNET, <http://www.sightings.com>, 1/4/00: [quoting]

Drivers might be automatically stopped from speeding by an electronic device that could be fitted to all cars within 10 years.

The system uses satellite navigation to pinpoint the location of each vehicle, an in-car computer loaded with a road map and the speed limits for each street in the country, and a device to cut-off the fuel supply if the speed limits are exceeded.

Any attempt to introduce such a sophisticated device for controlling speed automatically would see the biggest row over state interference in road freedom since seatbelt legislation. It is also likely to be resisted by auto manufacturers who rely heavily on images of fast cars to sell new models.

However, researchers predict that the equipment, which would cost only a few hundred pounds per car, will come to be widely accepted as a life-saver, just as seat-belts were despite initial fierce resistance.

The trials were commissioned by the Department for Environment, Transport, and the Regions, and were carried out by a team at Leeds University, together with the Motor Industry Research Association.

Their final report is expected to recommend a 10-year phasing-in period with the system initially voluntary for older models, compulsory for all new cars by 2005, and mandatory by the end of the decade. The report will claim that the benefits will become evident once 60 per cent of vehicles have been fitted with the device, which will slow the overall speed of traffic.

The system offers the possibility of slowing down traffic not just to observe speed limits, but to cope with particular circumstances such as outside schools, during traffic jams, following accidents, or in dangerous weather conditions like fog.

Dr. Oliver Carsten, head of the Leeds team, predicted the system would soon be standard across the EU. "The idea that people should have freedom to flout the law is an odd concept when it is a legal requirement that you comply with the speed limit. When you drive the car, you hardly notice the speed limiter unless you are deliberately trying to push things too fast."

The Department of Transport said: "There are considerable benefits that could be had in accident reduction and fuel savings, but it might also mean that people find other ways of speeding."

The Deputy Prime Minister will be told that extensive trials have been such a success that a phased introduction of speed restricters would also dramatically reduce road congestion and cut pollution. [End quoting]

Do you think "Big Brother" is going to use such a system only for the nice reasons being talked about in this hype? Every one of these kinds of announcements suggests the rope tightening ever so slightly yet smoothly around our necks.

FDA ATTACKS THE INTERNET

From the INTERNET, 1/9/00: [quoting]

Please forward far and wide.

FDA is a rogue agency like BATF—a semi-autonomous little branch of gestapo government. Time to ABOLISH the FDA.

They are rife with criminal conspiracies, many of which involve Monsanto/Searle, the falsification of data, and other federal crimes. This is the agency charged with "safeguarding" the public against dangerous food additives/drugs. The murderous fraudsters have struck again with killer Viagra. They are furiously stonewalling and covering up the deadly aspartame/nutrasweet fraud which is of MAJOR proportions. rBGH is another CLEAR example of fraud and alienation of the public trust.

Contact your Congressmen regarding this issue, please.

FDA is an unconstitutional rogue agency which has illegally formed its own "swat police", and it should be abolished. Get them before they get YOU or your freedom to choose healthcare alternatives.

Dave Hartley <http://www.Asheville-Computer.com/dave> from The Life Extension Foundation. You can access the Foundation's Website at <http://www.lef.org>.

Date: 6 Jan 2000 01:03:20

Subject: FDA Attacks The Internet; FDA Seeks To Destroy Alternative Health Websites
By William Faloon

The FDA's history is one of incompetence, fraud, deceit, and the continuous striving for more power. Over the past 25 years, the Food and Drug Administration has sought to gain authoritarian control that Congress never intended it to have. In every attempt to seize this kind of power, the FDA has been beaten back by a swell of public protest.

The FDA has just launched a disinformation campaign to deceive Congress into believing that the agency needs to "protect" the public from health information on the Internet. The FDA is seeking ten million tax dollars a year to attack alternative health and pharmacy websites.

If the FDA convinces Congress to give it the power and money to do this, American consumers will be denied access to innovative therapies, and will be forced to pay a good deal more for the nutrient and drug therapies the FDA allows them to buy over the Internet.

One of the FDA's proposals is to be able to fine Internet pharmacies $500,000 every time they dispense a drug without a prescription authorized by the agency. With this kind of excessive fining power, the FDA will be able to bankrupt any online pharmacy it targets.

To make it easy for them to shut down large numbers of websites, the FDA wants the power to issue subpoenas without first obtaining a court order, a totalitarian tactic the American public revolted against when the agency proposed it in 1990.

Finally, the FDA says it wants to set up "a rapid response team" to identify, investigate, and prosecute websites. In other words, the FDA is seeking to establish an army of cyberspace storm-troopers to enable it to shut down large numbers of websites quickly.

The alleged purpose of these new powers is to "target and punish those who engage in illegal drug sales over the Internet". This may sound reasonable to the average person, but as members of The Life Extension Foundation well know, the FDA's history is one of ineptitude and corruption that has caused millions of Americans to suffer and die needlessly.

In 1994, the FDA Museum was established to document FDA malfeasance, and show that the agency hasn't the scientific legitimacy to be allowed to police the healthcare of the American people. A flagrant example of FDA deception can be found in their current attempt to control the Internet.

The FDA has identified one person who died after obtaining Viagra from a web pharmacy without a prescription. The FDA is using this one death as an example of why the FDA needs to impose dictatorial power over all health websites.

One problem with this position is that, as of November 1998, at least 130 Americans died from taking Viagra legally prescribed by their doctors. (The total number of Viagra-related deaths for 1999 has not yet been calculated.) The FDA approved Viagra as being safe, even though many Americans have died when the drug has been legally prescribed.

The FDA failed to detect this lethal side-effect of Viagra, yet it is now seeking gestapo-like power to attack any Internet health company it wishes to, without due process. It's time for the public to speak up again to let Congress know that this kind of FDA tyranny will not be tolerated by taxpayers.

WHY INTERNET REGULATION IS DOOMED TO FAIL

The powers the FDA is seeking are unconstitutional, and the agency has neither the competence nor the integrity to police the Internet. But even if it did, it would be impractical for the agency to do so.

There are currently an estimated 8,000 health sites on the Internet. If Congress gives the FDA $10 million a year, the best the agency could do is shut down a couple of hundred sites a year. Within a few years, the FDA would create a litigation monster whose appetite would far exceed their $10 million annual budget. The FDA would be bogged down in a quagmire of judicial proceedings, while thousands of new health websites would be springing up that the agency would be at an utter loss to control.

The end result of the FDA's war against the free flow of information on the Internet would be tens of millions of tax dollars wasted, with less so-called consumer "protection" than exists today.

THE FDA ALREADY HAS THE LEGAL POWER IT NEEDS

The charade the FDA is parading before Congress is that they need more money and stricter laws to regulate e-commerce. The facts are that the FDA already has the regulatory structure to "protect" the consumer on the Internet. Much of what the FDA wants is already covered by existing Federal and State law, but the agency is seeking to add another bureaucratic layer of law and money to suppress the dissemination of health information.

AN ALTERNATIVE PROPOSAL

The FDA has its own website <<http://www.fda.gov>>. For a fraction of the cost of becoming the health police of the Internet police, the agency could post its own evaluation of alternative health websites that it thought were promoting fraudulent or dangerous products. Americans would then be free to make their own decisions about whether to believe what the FDA says about health websites.

However, the FDA has no interest in trying to persuade Americans with evidence. It wants (and has always wanted) authoritarian powers and as much money as possible from Congress because it is a political organization rather than a scientific one. As a result, FDA suppression of information has been, historically, the leading cause of death in the United States, while adverse reactions to FDA-approved drugs is currently the 4th-to-6th leading cause of death. Clearly, the FDA lacks the constitutional authority, the competence, the integrity, or the scientific credibility to be given additional power and money to police the Internet.

A HISTORY OF VICTORIES OVER THE FDA

The Federal Courts, Congress and the public have dealt the FDA severe losses over the past 25 years. The first citizens' victory occurred in the 1970s when the FDA tried to turn vitamin supplements into prescription drugs. An uproar from the public resulted in Congress unanimously rejecting FDA's brazen arguments that vitamins are so "dangerous" that they should only be prescribed by doctors. This blatant power grab came at a time when the vast majority of doctors had little or no knowledge of the health benefits of vitamins.

In 1990, the FDA tried to have a law passed that would have enabled the agency to make summary seizures of products from companies, and institute wire taps without a court warrant. The public again defended the Bill of Rights by inundating Congress with so much mail that the FDA's proposed law was abandoned.

In 1993, the FDA stated that it wanted to classify all amino acids and many minerals as prescription drugs. The public expressed such a high degree of outrage over the FDA's draconian proposition that Congress passed the Dietary Supplement Health and Education Act (in 1994) that significantly limited the FDA's authority to regulate dietary supplements.

Since 1994, the FDA has circumvented the will of the people and Congress by seeking to censor what the public is allowed to hear about supplements and drugs. The FDA has been defeated repeatedly in the courts, and has been forced to retreat because of an onslaught of public opposition to all forms of censorship the agency has proposed.

ORWELLIAN COMPUTER ROBOTS

A nightmare scenario sometimes portrayed in science fiction novels involves a totalitarian government using advanced computers to monitor the activities of citizens. In these novels, people who don't behave according to government standards are targeted for persecution or summary elimination. The Orwellian prophesy is becoming reality as the FDA is proposing to spend a million dollars a year on artificial intelligence computer robots that would scan the Internet for phrases such as “prevents cancer” and “prescription drug” so the FDA could “swiftly gather the information needed to prosecute”.

The new law the FDA is proposing would mandate that on-line pharmacies first receive FDA approval to operate. Pharmacies are currently regulated by the States, but the FDA is seeking to impose a new Federal bureaucratic layer that will greatly increase the cost of purchasing products on the Internet.

The FDA needs to convince Congress that American citizens should be subjected to Orwellian investigative tactics, and that taxpayer dollars should be appropriated to pay for these web robots to assist the FDA in detecting words it does not want Americans to read.

American citizens who cherish their constitutional rights against undue government intrusion should contact their members of Congress and demand that the FDA not be given the money, nor the legal authority to control the Internet. This is more than just a health freedom issue. The FDA's orwellian proposals are unprecedented and would lead to a serious breakdown of our civil liberties if enacted into law.

JUST TELL CONGRESS TO SAY “NO” TO THE FDA

The FDA is using the free-flowing popularity of the Internet in a ploy to deceive Congress into appropriating ten million tax dollars a year to fund an unconstitutional witch hunt against free speech. The new powers the FDA is seeking are blatantly un-American and resemble the kinds of police-state tactics employed by totalitarian regimes such as communist China.

The FDA's latest fabrication will fail if Americans tell their Congressional representatives to say NO to any new proposal or law that would give the FDA more power or money.

Included in this message is a letter that can be sent to Congress. To obtain the name, e-mail address, voice phone number, and fax number of your member of Congress, check <http://www.house.gov> or phone the Congressional switchboard at 1-202-224-3121. Note: the House Directory at www.house.gov was not working despite repeated attempts between 7:30 and 8:00 PM EST 1/5/00, but you can find both e-mail and mailing information for your Representative by selecting EC Member Offices.

We suggest that you also send a copy of this letter to:

The President
The White House
Washington, DC 20500

You can e-mail the President at this White House page: <http://www.whitehouse.gov/WH/Mail/html/Mail-President.html>.

You can access the Foundation's website at <http://www.lef.org> to obtain additional information about the FDA's track record of unlawfully suppressing life-saving information.

We encourage Foundation members to defend the Constitution against the FDA's latest attempt to gain repressive power over the individual's right to choose. Please send the following letter (or your own letter) to your Congressional representative:

To the Honorable _____.

Date: _____.

U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, D.C. 20515

The Fiscal Year 2001 budget to be submitted by the Executive Branch of the government contains a provision whereby the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is to be appropriated ten million dollars a year to police the Internet. I AM VEHEMENTLY OPPOSED TO MY TAX DOLLARS BEING USED TO FUND THE FDA FOR THIS PURPOSE! I believe that additional FDA power and funding would be used to deprive the American people of valuable health information and health products.

In the FY-2001 budget proposal, the FDA is asking Congress to pass new laws that would give the agency repressive powers that would restrict the free flow of information on the Internet. I ASK THAT YOU VOTE AGAINST ANY PROPOSED LAW THAT GIVES THE FDA MORE CONTROL OVER WHAT I AM ALLOWED TO READ AND PUT INTO MY BODY! Some of the unconstitutional authority the FDA is seeking includes:

(1) Issuing subpoenas without a court order. Giving the FDA this new power is unconstitutional, and would create a litigation monster whose annual appetite would rapidly provocative ... haunting ... full of symbolism and vivid visions ...

Wisdom Books & Press, Inc.

WHY THE END?

Two Millennia Of Prophecy And It's Fruitless Attempt To Awaken Humanity

The book that took 2,000 years to write.

This work delivers definitive direct messages from seers and prophets of the last 2,000 years, all sorted by topic, painting a coherent picture of the end-time “play events” and the new Aquarian Golden Age soon to follow.

300+ prophetic pages, not filler, interpretation, or speculation, but clues for expanding your own consciousness, forming your own conclusions, and by knowing, you can change the projections.

(See Back Page for ordering information)

exceed the ten million dollars a year the agency is seeking.

(2) Fining Internet pharmacies $500,000 every time they sell a drug that does not meet the FDA's definition of a legal prescription. This type of excessive fine would enable the FDA to bankrupt any online pharmacy it decides to target in a capricious and arbitrary manner.

(3) Setting up a "rapid response team" to identify, investigate, and prosecute websites, i.e., the FDA is seeking to establish an army of storm-troopers to summarily shut down any website it chooses.

Please do not be misled by the FDA's attempts to convince you that they are trying to protect the health of the American people by regulating the Internet. According to the April 15, 1998 issue of the Journal Of The American Medical Association, adverse reactions to legally-prescribed FDA-approved drugs are the fourth-to-sixth leading cause of death in the United States! Since this article was published almost two years ago, the FDA has done nothing to reduce the number of Americans dying from dangerous drugs, yet the FDA now seeks ten million tax dollars a year to attack health and pharmacy websites.

Respectfully,

/s/_____.

[End quoting]

Don't overlook the article on colloidal silver elsewhere in this issue of The SPECTRUM for more reasons to keep a close and vigilant watch on the FDA.

SUPREME COURT GIVES US ANOTHER "YES TO PRIVACY" VICTORY

Excerpted from THE DAILY NEWS, by William Safire, LOS Angeles, 1/18/00: [quoting]

[He's writing about the misuse of driver's license information by the government.]

....The state of South Carolina challenged Congress' right to pass such a law, saying it infringed on states' rights to regulate driving. A federal appeals court agreed, ridiculing a right to privacy in personal information such as a birth date on a license "often needed to cash a check, board an airplane, or purchase alcohol".

Because the Rehnquist court has been powerful in stopping Congress' three-generation habit of snatching power from the states, the betting was that this case would continue that anti-centralist trend.

But to the relief of those who think personal freedom worth preserving, the anti-centralist majority on the court, despite its states' rights predilections, stretched its reasoning to find that "Congress did not run afoul of the federalism principles". The liberal minority joined in, resulting in a stunning 9-0 decision upholding privacy. That means that the strengthening of the act by Sen. Richard Shelby, supported by Frank Wolf in the House, will also pass muster. They changed the weak "opt out" clause to a tough "opt in"—meaning that motor vehicle bureaus everywhere must soon seek drivers' written consent before selling marketers photos and information about age, domicile, or disability. Shelby said the decision "will help protect women from stalkers, keep telemarketers from interrupting dinner, and give people peace of mind that private information collected by the government is secure".

Presidential candidates (Steve Forbes excepted) fail to see privacy as a gut principle to defend, but the Supreme Court does. As hope glimmers, pay cash and don't give out your Social Security number.

William Safire writes a column for The New York Times. [End quoting]

Don't give up. We still are able to win some victories, even if minor. The constant attempts by "big business" to intrude upon our privacy for their commercial gain are only one reason for the need for vigilance. The business intrusion is used, at another level, as a diversionary smoke screen by more covert operations—Big Brother—to snoop for the purpose of controlling more completely we-the-people's lives.

TRANSFORMERS ADD LIFE TO APPLIANCES

From UNKNOWN source: [quoting]

New transformers that smooth out the uneven voltages that plague the nation's electric power grid would prolong the lives of light bulbs and appliance motors, says the consortium that is developing the technology.

The new transformers would replace the copper coils and iron cores, found in conventional transformers, with solid state technology.

Once commercialized, they'd make obsolete the pole-mounted canisters, ground-level metal boxes, and underground units that electric utilities currently use to "step down" higher distribution voltages to 120 volts.

Several homes typically feed off the same transformer. Asea Brown Boveri Ltd., the German utility industry supplier that owns the patent, may begin selling the transformers to utilities within a few years.

[End quoting]

The old fashioned type of transformer has been quite durable and forgiving of a wide range of abusive conditions. One wonders if this new design will turn out to really be an improvement or, like so many other disappointments marketed as better, be a source of even more annoying power outages!

SUNSCREEN FOR YOUR CLOTHES

From POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, Feb.

2000: [quoting]

Don't assume that your shirt protects you from the harmful rays of the Sun just because it covers your skin. As much as 50 percent of ultraviolet rays penetrate clothing—enough to cause, over time, wrinkles, age spots, and skin cancer. That's especially true for white or pastel colored clothes, as well as for loosely woven or stretchable fabrics, including silks and nylons. And white bleached cotton and crepe are practically transparent to UV rays; they have a Skin Protection Factor equivalent to only 6 or 7, which is much less than the SPF 15 recommended by the Skin Cancer Foundation.

To combat this deficiency, CIBA Specialty Chemicals has developed a sunblock for fabrics that you launder into clothing in your own washing machine. The sunblock increases levels of UV protection with each washing, starting with an SPF of about 8, after one washing, and leveling off at an SPF of about 25, after 10 washings.

The laundry additive works in hot or cold water, is harmless to fabrics, and doesn't wash out or lose its effectiveness over time. Perspiration has no effect on the chemical, unless the clothing becomes so soaked that it becomes almost see-through. CIBA also says the additive is nonallergenic, nontoxic, and biodegradable.

The company hopes laundry detergent and fabric softener makers will begin including the additive in their products this year. According to CIBA, it would cost consumers only pennies per washload. A version of the additive can be manufactured into clothing as well, which would provide the Sun protection equivalent of 100 or more for garments made from the treated fabric. — Noda Mongioletti [End quoting]

Hopefully it will be as good as they say, but the salesman's hype today is usually a good distance from the truth. And one wonders what effect these chemicals in the washing machine's discharge water may have on other systems like septic tanks.

THE MORMONS AND THE JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES ARE THE SAME ORGANISATION

From the INTERNET, by David Icke, dated 1/15/00: [quoting]

It's amazing how everything fits together in the world of the Illuminati if you are prepared to dig deep enough.

The people and organisations who attack and abuse each other in public, or appear to be in competition, turn out, over and over, to be different masks on the same face. Take the Mormons and the Jehovah's Witnesses (if we must).

We are told they are different organisations which stand for different "beliefs" and the followers of both would be aghast at the thought that they could be connected in any way. But then the mass of unthinking followers in any religion are merely the fodder and the screen behind which the real business goes on.

The founders of both “faiths”, the Mormons and JW’s, were of the Illuminati bloodline. Charles Taze Russell, who founded the Watchtower Society (JW’s), was of the Illuminati Russell bloodline, which also founded the infamous Skull and Bones Society at Yale University.

Charles Taze Russell was a Satanist, a pedophile according to his wife, and a friend of the Rothschilds. Indeed it was the Rothschilds who funded the Jehovah’s Witness operation into being, along with other Illuminati bankers, through “contributions” by organisations like the Rothschild-controlled B’nai B’rith. This was proven in a court of law in 1922.

One of the key people involved in this was Frank Goldman, who later became President of B’nai B’rith. Why would an organisation set up (in theory) to help Jewish people and promote the Jewish faith, be funding into existence the Jehovah’s Witnesses?? I think the name Rothschild answers the question.

Russell was also a high degree Freemason and Knights Templar. He promoted Zionism, another Rothschild creation, on behalf of his friends and backers. [See the next article in this News Desk: Was Hitler A Rothschild?]

Joseph Smith, along with Hiram Smith and Brigham Young, were the key figures behind the creation of the Mormon religion. They were of the elite of the elite Illuminati bloodline, the Merovingian or “Holy Grail” line, and were all high-degree Freemasons. They were also Satanists and formed their “church” as a front for Satanic activity which very much still goes on today. Why wouldn’t it, that is what it is there for.

The Mormon empire was funded into existence by the Rothschilds, through their Kuhn-Loeb bank, which also funded the Russian Revolution and Adolf Hitler, and yet again B’nai B’rith—the Rothschild intelligence arm and defamer of genuine researchers—was involved.

Notice any similarities between these two religions??

Again the followers of these mind-control cults would be shocked to think that the upper levels of these “religions” would engage in Satanic activity and human sacrifice of children, but it is about time they knew.

Russell’s family was formerly known as Roessel and went to Scotland from Germany. Of course, Germany is a massive occult centre, from which the Rothschilds emerged, and Scotland is one of the key areas of the world for Illuminati bloodlines. From the start, Charles Taze Russell used his new Watchtower Society, based at Bethel, Brooklyn, New York, as a front for black magic, or Enochian magic as his brand of Satanism was called.

He put the flying Sun disk on the front of his books, an ancient Illuminati symbol going back to Egypt and Babylon. The Watchtower magazine has always been a mass of subliminal and less subliminal occult symbolism, and the very name, Watchtower, is part of Illuminati and Freemasonic legend and code.

To them, watchtowers are areas of the “magical universe”. The unseen realms. Russell was buried under a pyramid in the United States after being ritually killed on Halloween, 1917. These leading Satanists of the Illuminati are ritually killed when their time comes in line with their obsession with ritual. To them, everything is ritual. Again and again the Jehovah’s Witness church is named by survivors of trauma-based mind control as being involved in these unspeakable mind-control projects.

The Mormons were also created as a front for Satanism and, like the Watchtower Society, Enochian magic. When I spoke in Salt Lake City, near to the Mormon Temple, I came across the fascinating book by William J. Schnoebelen called Mormonism’s Temple Of Doom.

Schnoebelen was initiated into the Wicca

Revelations of a Mother Goddess

—VIDEO—

The staggering story of human sacrifice and satanic ritual, involving the most famous people in the world.

Arizona Wilder, formerly Jennifer Greene, was mind-programmed from birth to become one of the three most important female conductors of Satanic rituals on the planet. Her programmer was Josef Mengele, the notorious “Angel of Death” in the Nazi concentration camps, and when he died in the late 1980s, her programming began to break down.

In this video interview with David Icke, she describes human sacrifice rituals at Glamis Castle and Balmoral, in which the Queen, the Queen Mother and other members of the Royal Family sacrificed children in Satanic ceremonies.

She talks of the same experiences with Henry Kissinger, George Bush, Bill Clinton, members of the Rockefeller and Rothschild families and a host of the most famous names in the United States and the United Kingdom.

Your view of the world will never be the same when you hear the revelations of Arizona Wilder and their relevance to your daily life.

Video Price: $ 24.95

Available from Wisdom Books & Press (please see Back Page for ordering information).

religion, then into Freemasonry, before going through the Mormon initiation in the Salt Lake temple. He shows in great detail that all three initiations were the same. The same oaths, secret handshakes, and garb.

Of course they are. We are looking at one face here, hidden by many masks. The Salt Lake temple is covered with Illuminati symbols, like the All-Seeing Eye, and it is built with granite, a rock which has been used throughout the ages for temples on Earth power-centres and for esoteric initiation.

The Mormons also use the bee symbol, a classic symbol of the Merovingian bloodline, which people like the author, Sir Laurence Gardner, want to kid us goes back to “Jesus”, when in fact it is the “Holy Grail” bloodline of the Illuminati, the “purest” reptilian line.

Joseph Smith carried a dove medallion given to him by an English Masonic lodge. The dove is Illuminati symbolism for Queen Semiramis, the female deity in their Babylonian trinity.

The Mormon Church, like the Watchtower Society, is also a front for trauma-based mind control. Many survivors have told of their horrific torture in Salt Lake City, in Mormon buildings and centres. The Mormon genealogy operation is also a front behind which the Illuminati keep track of the reptilian bloodline—who has it to a “pure” enough level and who has not.

You won’t be surprised to know, therefore, that the Mormons and the Jehovah’s Witnesses are the same organisation at the top level, where the elders of the Mormons and the leaders of the Watchtower Society operate a very different agenda to the one their followers believe.

But what chance have you got of knowing what is happening within your “church” when you refuse to think or question? “Have faith”, the mantra of these religious conmen through the ages, really means: “Don’t think and don’t question.”

I was taken around the Mormon Temple site (not the Temple, which is only for initiates) by two lovely girls from Thailand and Hong Kong. They had worked their asses off for years to pay their own fare to America and to pay for their own accommodation and living expenses for the privilege of serving this unbelievably wealthy organisation, as “guides” (recruiters) for the faith. On the way ’round, I asked them what they thought the significance was of the founders of the Mormon church all being high-degree Freemasons. They looked at each other for a moment in bewilderment, and then one said: “What’s Freemasonry?”

And a few can’t control the world??

I want to give people the opportunity here to tell their stories about the Mormons and the Jehovah’s Witnesses—and any other religious fronts—both to expose what is happening and to give people still in those “faiths” the chance to see what is really going on around them. If you want to contribute your experiences on these subjects, please sent them to this website and we will start a new archive if there is a big enough response. You may have seen two contributions about the Watchtower Society already. Have faith! DAVID ICKE

Website addresses are: <<http://www.davidicke.com/icke/articles/russell.html>>, <<http://www.davidicke.com/icke/webtv/articles/wrussell.html>> Copyright(c) David Icke, Bridge of Love Publications. Permission granted to distribute this article freely. [End quoting]

It has been said many times that The Truth will come out in the end times! This next item is of even greater importance toward filling-in missing pieces of correct history.

WAS HITLER A ROTHSCHILD??

Excerpted from the INTERNET, by David Icke, <<http://www.davidicke.com>>, 1/15/00: [quoting]

David Icke E-Magazine January 15, 2000—Volume 9:

Official history is merely a veil to hide the truth of what really happened. When the veil is lifted, again and again we see that not only is the official version not true, it is often 100% wrong.

Take the Rothschilds, the bloodline formerly known, among other names, as the Bauers, one of the most notorious black-occult bloodlines of Middle-Ages Germany. It became known as Rothschild (red-shield or rotes-schild in German) in the 18th century when a financial dynasty was founded in Frankfurt by Mayer Amschel Rothschild, working in league with the Illuminati House of Hesse and others. They took their name from the red shield or hexagram/Star of David on the front of their house in Frankfurt.

The Star of David or Seal of Solomon is an ancient esoteric symbol and only became associated with Jewish people after the Rothschilds adopted it for themselves. It has absolutely no connection to “David” or “Solomon”, as Jewish historical sources confirm. The Rothschilds are one of the top Illuminati bloodlines on the planet, and they are shape-shifting reptilians (see my book The Biggest Secret).

Guy de Rothschild, of the French House, heads this bloodline dynasty today. He is one of the most grotesque exponents of trauma-based mind control, indeed the top man according to many of those who have suffered mercilessly under his torture.

I am always loath to use the word evil, but if evil is the reverse of live, Guy de Rothschild is thoroughly evil. He stands for the opposite of life. He has been personally responsible for the torture and death of millions of children and adults, either directly or through those he controls. He conducts satanic rituals, as all these bloodlines have always done, and goodness knows how many human sacrifices he has been involved in.

If what I am saying is wrong, Guy de Rothschild, then take me to court and let’s reveal the evidence. You are a multi-billionaire and you control the courts and the media. I have next to nothing. I should, therefore, be a pushover. So come on, Mr. Rothschild, let’s have you. Let’s take these claims into the public arena, and have you and me in the witness box. Make my day.

Already I can hear the clamor gathering to condemn me as “anti-semitic” because the Rothschilds claim to be “Jewish.” Organisations like the Anti-Defamation League and B’nai B’rith have already made strenuous efforts to label me in this way for exposing the Rothschilds and to stop me speaking in public.

How funny then that both organisations were created by, and continue to be bankrolled by, the Rothschilds. Just a coincidence, nothing to worry about. B’nai B’rith means, appropriately, “Sons of the Alliance” and was established by the Rothschilds in 1843 as an intelligence arm and to defame and destroy legitimate researchers with the label “anti-semitic”.

Many of their speakers openly supported slavery during the American Civil War, and today they seek to condemn some Black leaders as “anti-semitic” or “racist”! Every year, the Anti-Defamation League award their “Torch of Liberty” (the classic Illuminati symbol) to the person they believe has served their cause the most. One year they gave it to Morris Dalitz, an intimate of the notorious Meyer Lansky crime syndicate which terrorised America. Perfect choice.

Of course, the strength of feeling that fans the flames of condemnation against anyone dubbed “anti-semitic” today is the sickening persecution of Jewish people by the Nazis of Adolf Hitler. To expose or question the actions of the Rothschilds or any other Jewish person or organisation is to be called a “Nazi” and “anti-semitic”, that all-encompassing label which has discredited so many researchers and stopped them having the opportunity to speak in public because of protest by unthinking robot radicals and the refusal of venues to host their meetings.

I have had this from time to time, not least in eastern Canada, thanks to a campaign by B’nai B’rith and the Anti-Defamation League (which spends it’s entire time trying to defame people). Both organisations, I repeat, are Rothschild created and controlled.

How strange then, that as I have documented in my books And The Truth Shall Set You Free and The Biggest Secret, along with endless other researchers and scholars, Adolf Hitler and the Nazis were created and funded by the Rothschilds. It was they who arranged for Hitler to come to power through the Illuminati secret societies in Germany, like the Thule Society and the Vrill Society, which they created through their German networks; it was the Rothschilds who funded Hitler through the Bank of England and other British and American sources, like the Rothschild’s Kuhn-Loeb bank, which also funded the Russian Revolution.

The very heart of Hitler’s war machine was the chemical giant, I.G. Farben, which had an American arm that was controlled by the Rothschilds through their lackeys, the Warburgs. Paul Warburg, who manipulated into existence the privately-owned “central bank” of America, the Federal Reserve, in 1913, was on the board of American I.G. Indeed, Hitler’s I.G. Farben, which ran the slave labour camp at Auchwitz, was, in reality, a division of Standard Oil, officially owned by the Rockefellers, but in truth the Rockefeller empire was funded into existence by the Rothschilds. (Again, see my books And The Truth Shall Set You Free and The Biggest Secret for the detailed background of this and other aspects of this story.)

The Rothschilds also owned the German news agencies during both World Wars, and thus controlled the flow of “information” to Germans and the outside world. Incidentally, when Allied troops entered Germany, they found that the I.G. Farben factories, the very core of Hitler’s war operation, had not been hit by the mass bombings, and neither had Ford factories—another Illuminati supporter of Hitler. Other factories nearby had been demolished by bombing raids.

So, the force behind Adolf Hitler, on behalf of the Illuminati, was the House of Rothschild, this “Jewish” bloodline which claims to support and protect the Jewish faith and people. In fact, they use and sickeningly abuse the Jewish people for their own horrific ends.

The Rothschilds, like the Illuminati in general, treat the mass of the Jewish people with utter contempt. They are, like the rest of the global population, just cattle to be used to advance the agenda of global control and mastery, by a network of interbreeding bloodlines, impregnated with a reptilian genetic code, and known to researchers as the Illuminati.

Indeed, the Illuminati are so utterly obsessed with bloodline, because of this reptilian genetic code, that there was no way that someone like Hitler would come to power in those vital circumstances for the Illuminati, unless he was of the reptilian bloodline. If you look in my books, you will see how the same bloodline has held the positions of royal, aristocratic, financial, political, military, and media power in the world for literally thousands of years.

This is the bloodline that has produced ALL 42 of the Presidents of the United States since and including George Washington in 1789. It is the bloodline of the runaway favorite to win the 2000 election, George W. Bush. The World War Two leaders, Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin, were of the bloodline and also Freemasons and Satanists. They were manipulated into office, and their country’s war effort funded, by the Rothschilds and the other Illuminati bloodlines.

So are we to believe, therefore, that although this same group provably funded Adolf Hitler’s rise to power and his war machine, that he would be the odd one out, a leader of crucial importance to the agenda who was NOT bloodline?

But hold on. Hitler couldn’t be the same bloodline as, say, the Rothschilds because, as we all know, the Rothschilds are defenders of Jewish people and Hitler slaughtered them, along with communists and gypsies and others who opposed him or he wanted to eliminate. The Rothschilds are Jewish, they’d never do that.

Oh really.

According to a book by a psychoanalyst, Walter Langer, called The Mind Of Hitler, not only was Hitler supported by the Rothschilds, he WAS a Rothschild.

This revelation fits like a glove with the actions of the Rothschilds and other Illuminati bloodlines in Germany who brought Hitler to the fore as dictator of that nation. He was also supported by the British Royal Family, the House of Windsor (in truth the German House of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha), and these included the British Royal “war hero”, Lord Mountbatten, a Rothschild and a Satanist.

Their royal relatives in Germany, who you would never have thought would normally support an apparent guy from the street like Hitler, were among his most enthusiastic supporters. But, of course, they knew who he really was. There is no way in the world when you do any study of the Illuminati obsession with bloodline that Hitler would not have been one of them. Langer writes:

“Adolf’s father, Alois Hitler, was the illegitimate son of Maria Anna Schicklgruber. It was generally supposed that the father of Alois Hitler (Schicklgruber) was Johann Georg Hiedler. There are some people who seriously doubt that Johann Georg Hiedler was the father of Alois (an Austrian document was prepared that proved Maria Anna Schicklgruber was living in Vienna at the time she conceived). At that time she was employed as a servant in the home of Baron Rothschild. As soon as the family discovered her pregnancy, she was sent back home...where Alois was born.”

Was Hitler’s determination to take over Austria anything to do with his desire to destroy records of his lineage? It appears that he learned of his Rothschild bloodline after he became Chancellor of Germany.

The Rothschilds and the Illuminati produce many offspring out of wedlock, in their secret breeding programmes, and these children are brought up under other names with other parents. Like Bill Clinton, who is almost certainly Rockefeller-produced in the same way, these “ordinary kids from ordinary backgrounds” go on to be extraordinarily successful in their chosen field. Hitler, too, would have produced unofficial children to maintain his strand of the bloodline, and there will obviously be people of his bloodline alive today. [End quoting]

The documentation that David Icke has amassed in his books is truly astonishing, and he’s got the nerve to tell it like he sees it—and let the so-called “elite” and other liars sweat as many enquiring minds begin to awaken to The Truth.

THE FOGGING OF AMERICA OR THE TELEPHONE COMPANY CON

I called Jack Koenig—who wrote the previous articles on The Fogging Of America—and he graciously agreed to simplify his information, make it more concise, and to give more details about the long list of charges on your bills, and how to eliminate any of them, if at all possible.

From the INTERNET, by Jack Koenig, dated 1/18/00: [quoting]

If you use 50 minutes of long distance a month, did you know that AT&T’s heavily advertised One Rate 7-Cent will actually set you back 24.7 cents a minute? Or that MCI’s Five Cents Any Day rate will cost you 30.9 cents a minute if used during the day? And how about Sprint’s Sense 10 Cents per minute rate? Bite your tongue—that can actually cost you 77.8 cents!

This report will help you understand how all carriers, but in particular AT&T and MCI, have used the 1996 Telecommunications Act to deceive the public by masquerading a portion of their rates as federally mandated taxes.

It will also show how you can counteract these manipulations and achieve savings in your phone bill whether or not you use long distance.

Years ago, when AT&T (Ma Bell) ruled the roost, there wasn’t any need to isolate the different components of a long-distance call. After all, they all ended on the same bottom line. But in reality, there were three distinct legs in each long-distance call:

The first leg carries your phone call over the local lines between your phone and your local carrier’s office.

The second leg carries your phone call over a long-distance carrier’s lines from your local carrier’s office to the receiver’s local carrier’s office.

The third and final leg carries your call from the receiver’s local carrier’s office to the destination user’s phone.

After Ma Bell was broken up into AT&T and the Baby Bells, these three distinct components of a long-distance call became very meaningful.

The Baby Bells, which were restricted to carrying local traffic, complained that FCC regulations forced them to absorb expenses associated with carrying the beginning and ending portions of a long-distance call over their lines. In 1996, the Congressionally passed Telecommunications Act began to address these and other concerns by isolating long-distance phone costs into the three different components.

Once these costs were identified and isolated, the FCC issued rules changing the method in which the Baby Bells could charge long-distance carriers for usage of their lines. The old method, charging long-distance carriers a flat per-minute rate, was replaced by a combined LOWER per-minute rate, PLUS a flat monthly user line charge called a Presubscribed Interchange Carrier Charge (or PICC for short). It should be noted that the COMBINATION of these replacements was actually LOWER than the original flat per-minute rate.

Then to help the Baby Bells make up for any loss of revenue from the LOWER COMBINED charges to the long-distance companies, they were allowed to charge the consumer a new item called a Subscriber Line Charge. By instituting this new charge, the FCC actually shifted an additional part of the long-distance carrier's cost to the consumer.

AND THIS IS WHERE THE SMOKE AND MIRRORS BEGINS!

The Subscriber Line Charge generally appears in the local section of your phone bill as the Federal Subscriber Line Charge, the implication being that it is some new type of federally mandated item. In reality, this is in no way a federally mandated charge: it is an allowed charge. The Baby Bells claim they call it a Federal Subscriber Line Charge because it was allowed by federal regulators as opposed to state regulators. But by using the designation Federal, consumers have been led to believe it is just another federal tax, which of course it isn't. Not one cent goes to the federal government or any governmental agency. The local companies are not forced or mandated to charge any amount!

BUT THIS IS ONLY THE BEGINNING OF THE SMOKE AND MIRRORS GAME!

Not to be outdone, the long distance companies were just as quick to capitalize on the confusion. They took the flat monthly line charge (the PICC) and placed it in the long-distance section of your bill as the National Access Fee. Once again, especially with all the Gore Tax talk, consumers were led to believe this was just another federal tax. But once again, it "ain't" so!

BUT WAIT—THE FCC WASN'T FINISHED!

In 1997, the FCC implemented rules to address that portion of the 1996 Telecommunications Act mandating free or reduced telecommunications services for schools, libraries, rural health care providers, high-cost rural areas, and the less fortunate. These FCC rules are referred to as the Universal Service Order and directed interstate long-distance carriers to fund this quest by paying what they termed a Universal Access Fee (also called the Gore Tax).

Although the FCC set the Universal Access Fee to be slightly less than 4% of a carrier's long-distance revenue, with a proviso for quarterly adjustments based on projected demand, they did not mandate that it be passed onto the consumer.

But no business can survive by absorbing additional non-productive expenses, and as a consequence, most (if not all) long-distance carriers opted to pass the Gore Tax onto the consumer.

But after adding their handling charges to this fee, the Gore Tax is no longer a simple 4%. Instead, it is passed on to the consumer either as a flat rate, of so many dollars per month, or as a percent of the user's total long-distance charges. Depending on the carrier, this fee can run the gamut from $1 to $8 per month, or from 4% to 9.5% of the user's total long-distance charges. Because of this variance and the arbitrary method in which it is passed on, the Gore Tax, along with the PICC (National Access Fee) should always be taken into consideration when evaluating long-distance carriers' rates.

The bottom line with all these deceptions is that even folks who seldom use long distance are beginning to see red! With all the hidden charges, it's not unusual for them to receive a monthly bill exceeding $9 for a simple five-minute call! That comes out to $1.80 a minute! Worse yet, even if you don't use any long distance, you can still end up paying a Carrier Line Charge, the Universal Access Fee (Gore Tax), a National Access Charge, and in many cases a monthly minimum charge!

So how do you fight these guys?

Although these charges can't be totally eliminated, they can be minimized.

Here are several easy ways to cut your expenses:

If you have multiple lines in your place of business or home, and use over 50 minutes per month, consider eliminating long-distance service on as many extra lines as possible. This can be accomplished very simply by contacting your LOCAL carrier and advising them you don't want any long-distance service on such and such a phone number. This will reduce your monthly Carrier Line Charge, the Universal Access Fee (Gore Tax), any minimum charges, and possibly your local carrier's National Access Charge. If you attempt to make a long-distance call on a line that hasn't any pre-subscribed long-distance carrier, you will simply receive a message stating that you can't use that line.

For those using less than 50 minutes of long distance per month, consider refusing to sign up with any long-distance provider at all! As stated above, simply call your local carrier and tell them you don't want any long-distance provider. This legal maneuver frees you of the Carrier Line Charge, any monthly minimum charge, a lowered to non-existent Universal Service Fee (Gore Tax), and sometimes a reduction in the National Access Charge.

If and when you require long distance, use one of the popular 1010 services. But be careful, each 1010 service has its own peculiarities and hidden charges! Our recommendation is 1016-868 (and no, we have no affiliation with this service). They charge 7.9 cents per minute, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The only additional charge is a Universal Access Charge (Gore Tax) for those months in which you use their service. To use, simply dial 1016-868 before the area code and phone number of your recipient.

For those using 50 minutes or more of long distance per month, use the Internet to search out low-cost carriers. For those without time on their hands, you can get a bird's eye view of different choices by visiting Senitel Communication's website at <www.senitel.com>. We believe Senitel is the only place on the Internet in which long-distance rates have been reconstituted to include all hidden costs including the Carrier Line Charge, National Access Fee, Universal Service Fee, monthly minimums, monthly line charges, etc. By doing so, Senitel lets you compare apples with apples!

For those with only e-mail access, contact Senitel at <info@senitel.com> and request their latest advisories on the rapidly changing long-distance market.

For those with neither Internet access nor e-mail service, contact Senitel at their toll-free number of 877-853-9700 and request their FREE quarterly newsletter sent via the postal service.

If you have a traveling family member, children away at school, or out of state customers whom you would like to hear from more often, consider getting an 800 number. Many long-distance carriers offer this option for a slight additional monthly fee. The Unitel/Qwest network, for example, only charges $2.50 per month for this service plus 4.9 cents per minute for stateside long-distance calls.

Basically, when someone dials an 800 number, the call is forwarded to a number designated by you. There is no need for an extra phone to handle the calls. By using your 800 number, family members, friends, and business associates can save big-time by calling at reduced rates.

Data for this report was taken from FCC documents, interviews with various long-distance operators, and other sources on the Internet. [End quoting]

I thank Jack very much for this report and hope it makes it quite clear to you how some of the biggest phone companies are scamming us royally. Don't you think it's about time we let our voices be heard on this??

THIS SAYS IT "ALL" ABOUT THIS WORLD WE LIVE IN

From the INTERNET, 1/21/00: [quoting]

RE: School Atmosphere

Dear God,
Why didn't you save the school children in Littleton, Colorado?
Sincerely, Concerned Student

THE REPLY:

Dear Concerned Student:
I am not allowed in schools.
Love, God

This should be printed in every newspaper around the world.

Pass it on. [End quoting]

These are the trying times predicted many years ago. One way or another, on schoolroom planet Earth, we are destined to learn what is important and what is not.

THINGS ARE SELDOM
WHAT THEY SEEM

From the INTERNET, 1/22/00: [quoting]

A man and his dog were walking along a road. The man was enjoying the scenery, when it suddenly occurred to him that he was dead. He remembered dying, and that the dog had been dead for years. He wondered where the road was leading them.

After a while, they came to a high, white stone wall along one side the road. It looked like fine marble. At the top of a long hill, it was broken by a tall arch that glowed in the sunlight.

When he was standing before it, he saw a magnificent gate in the arch that looked like mother of pearl, and the street that led to the gate looked like pure gold. He and the dog walked toward the gate, and as he got closer, he saw a man at a desk to one side.

When he was close enough, he called out, "Excuse me, where are we?"

"This is heaven, sir" the man answered.

"Wow! Would you happen to have some water?" the man asked.

"Of course, sir. Come right in, and I'll have some ice water brought right up." The man gestured, and the gate began to open.

"Can my friend," gesturing toward his dog, "come in, too?" the traveler asked.

"I'm sorry, sir, but we don't accept pets."

The man thought a moment and then turned back toward the road and continued the way he had been going.

After another long walk, and at the top of another long hill, he came to a dirt road which led through a farm gate that looked as if it had never been closed. There was no fence. As he approached the gate, he saw a man inside, leaning against a tree and reading a book.

"Excuse me!" he called to the reader. "Do you have any water?"

"Yeah, sure, there's a pump over there." The man pointed to a place that couldn't be seen from outside the gate. "Come on in."

"How about my friend here?" the traveler gestured to the dog.

"There should be a bowl by the pump."

They went through the gate, and sure enough, there was an old fashioned hand pump with a bowl beside it. The traveler filled the bowl, gave some to the dog, then he took a long drink himself.

When they were full, he and the dog walked back toward the man who was standing by the tree waiting for them.

"What do you call this place?" the traveler asked.

"This is heaven" was the answer.

"Well, that's confusing" the traveler said. "The man down the road said that was heaven, too."

"Oh, you mean the place with the gold streets and pearly gates? Nope. That's hell."

"Doesn't it make you mad for them to use your name like that?"

"No. I can see how you might think so, but we're just happy that they screen out the folks who'll leave their best friends behind."

[End quoting]

A very good lesson, don't you think?!

Praise From Our Readers

"Thank you for seeking & printing The Truth in the SPECTRUM paper. May the New Year bring the Great Blessings of God's Love and Light. With Great-full Thanks for all your hard work. — M.G. of PA

"God Bless you all for your continued dedication to bring forth the 'Truth' to all of us." — C. & S. of GA

"Thank you all, again, for making it all manifest. I am thrilled to hear another SPECTRUM is on the way. I'll be all aquiver now till I get it. Oh yes, thank you again for the info on Credo Mutwa. I send you much love and surround and bathe you within the full Spectrum of God's Sacred Light." — M.P. of BC

*"This last year was a Doosey! What's next!?!
Can't thank you all enough...we'll be seeing you....!
With love and appreciation." — G. & D. of CA*

To order The SPECTRUM newspaper for yourself or as a gift, please call (877) 280-2866, or if you are outside the U.S. please call (661) 823-9695.

Wisdom Books & Press, Inc.

The Biggest Secret

by David Icke

ISBN: 0-9526147-66

The long awaited NEW RELEASE by David Icke. The Blockbuster of all Blockbusters!! With stunning information never before released on the murder of Diana, Princess of Wales.

David Icke's most powerful and explosive book to date includes the astonishing background to the murder of Diana, Princess of Wales. Every man, woman, and child on the planet is affected by the stunning information that Icke exposes. He reveals in documented detail how the same interconnecting bloodlines have controlled the planet for thousands of years. How they created all the major religions and suppressed the spiritual and esoteric knowledge that will set humanity free from its mental and emotional prisons. It includes a devastating exposé of the true origins of Christianity and the other major religions, and documents the suppressed science which explains why the world is facing a time of incredible change and transformation. The Biggest Secret also exposes the true and astonishing background of the British Royal Family and, through enormous research and unique contacts, he reveals how and why Diana, Princess of Wales, was murdered in Paris in 1997. This includes information from a close confidant of Diana for nine years, which has never before been made public.

The Biggest Secret is a unique book and is quite rightly dubbed "The book that will change the world". No one who reads it will ever be the same again.

The Reptilian Agenda

Parts I & II

David Icke has produced two amazing videos with the Zulu "sanusi" or shaman, Credo Mutwa, who reveals astonishing information which, until now, was only available to the highest initiates of the African shaman tradition.

He has had attempts on his life and endless threats in an effort to silence him right up to the recording, but, as Credo says, "The world must know this—and know it now."

He reveals how a shapeshifting reptilian race (the "Chitauli" to Africans) has controlled humanity for thousands of years and how their bloodlines are in the positions of royal, political, and economic power today.

Credo Mutwa supports all the themes outlined in The Biggest Secret and adds his own unique knowledge and experience of travelling Africa for nearly 80 years.

These videos will re-write the UFO/extraterrestrial story in a way that will blow your mind. UFO researchers have ignored Africa and therefore ignored one of the greatest sources of knowledge on the planet.

While people still argue over Roswell and the extraterrestrial beings apparently found there, African tribes-people have been interacting with these ET "gods" for thousands of years, sometimes eating them, as Credo Mutwa did on one occasion with unforgettable consequences.

Credo has not only seen dead "greys" many times, he has seen them examined behind their "grey" exterior and he knows exactly what they really look like—and it is nothing like we think!

"This is the most amazing man it has ever been my honor to meet—a genius—and the importance of these videos is simply beyond words".

—David Icke

After making these videos, Credo was visited by two people from Cape Town who offered him 50,000 rand, and a house anywhere in South Africa he would like to name, if he would agree to never speak to David Icke again and never have anything to do with him. Credo's reply can be imagined!

Amazing Confirmation that a reptilian extraterrestrial race controlled the world for thousands of years

the reptilian agenda part one

"the most astonishing man it has been my honour to meet."

David Icke talks with the Zulu Shaman Credo Mutwa

Wisdom Books & Press, Inc.

9101 West Sahara Ave., PMB 158

Las Vegas, NV 89117

Toll free #: (877) 280-2866

Outside the U.S. please call: (661) 823-9695

e-mail communications: wisdombooks@tminet.com

NAME: _____ DATE: _____
 ADDRESS: _____
 CITY: _____ STATE: _____ ZIP: _____
 COUNTRY: _____ PHONE #: _____
 CREDIT CARD # _____ EXP: _____
 SIGNATURE: _____

(WE ACCEPT VISA, DISCOVER AND MASTERCARD ONLY)

Please make Check or Money Order in U.S. Funds Only

Payable to: Wisdom Books & Press

|   | Price per each     | Qty | Total |
|---|--------------------|-----|-------|
| WISDOM OF THE RAYS:The Masters Teach, Volume I   | $15               |     |       |
| WISDOM OF THE RAYS:The Masters Teach, Volume II  | $20               |     |       |
|  THE UNTOLD HISTORY OF AMERICA by Ray Bilger | $10               |     |       |
| THE BIGGEST SECRETby David Icke  | $24 <sup>95</sup> |     |       |
| VIDEO: REVELATIONS OF A MOTHER GODDESSArizona Wilder interviewed by David Icke   | $24 <sup>95</sup> |     |       |
| VIDEO: THE REPTILIAN AGENDAParts I & II  | $49 <sup>95</sup> |     |       |
| WHY THE END?J.T. Revelator   | $29 <sup>95</sup> |     |       |

~Shipping Rates~

United States

(Priority) $3.60 for the 1st book; $1.40 for ea. add'l book

Canada

(Airmail) $4.60 for the 1st book; $1.40 each for ea. add'l book

International

(Global Express Mail) $10.00 for the 1st book; $2.50 for ea. add'l book

|              |  |
|--------------|--|
| Sub-Total    |  |
| Shipping     |  |
| Total |  |

(Please add the required shipping)