We are living in very interesting times, don't you think? Black is white, white is black, and everything in between has been (or is being) turned upside down or inside out—or both! These current times have been the subject of very important prophecies and ancient prophetic information encoded into time lines which would be recognized as calendars of sorts—such as that associated with the Great Pyramid of Giza or various Native American cultures, especially the Hopi.

However, there is one source of such prophecy, coming from the ancient Mayan culture, which stands out for special attention—both because of the merit and sophistication of the information, as well as because it is not widely known. Moreover, there exists (as you might expect) some measure of disagreement among those who study and

Update From Our Editor

Since it has become an ongoing "soap opera" of sorts for you patient readers, let me start off by announcing that the envelope experiment was a BIIIGGGG success! Who would have thought that a little bit of folded paper would act as such a great "time machine" to accelerate the flow of information.

Some of the notes and calls we've gotten back from you convey reactions just this side of sheer astonishment over how fast you got your paper when it was contained in an envelope—and thus was machine-sorted—rather than people-sorted by our "well trained" civil service employees. I guess miracles indeed can come through small paper packages.

One generous and sharp-witted reader, A.S. in Colorado, sent me a check for $100 because, as he put it: "I well know the extra expense you had—and will have—no thanks to the US Post Office. I hope it helps a little, and keep up the excellent paper."

Well, such thoughtfulness helps A LOT and, along with your many kind notes of support and encouragement, such wonderful emotional energy sent our way by YOU is what continues to boost The SPECTRUM up to greater and greater levels of excellence and visibility in so many different circles that don't usually mix.

We are hearing from a wide range of people who all say they derive much from this newspaper. And then there is the feedback coming to us from the more public personages who speak regularly to large numbers of inquiring ones. You know who they are—the major lecturers at conferences around the world.

These public figures, who carry great teaching responsibilities at this time of a massive planetary awakening, are quietly (and sometimes not so quietly) becoming our strongest supporters. Such public-figure Lightworkers, who we never imagined even knew about The SPECTRUM, are telling us they know it quite well, how much they admire and respect this publication, and that they look forward to sharing their own messages with us—and thus with all of you, too.

We will indeed present their messages as time and space and, especially, finances permit. So, it is heartwarming to sense that some kind of a "critical mass" has been achieved here at The SPECTRUM whereby ones from all walks of life are reaching out to each other through this unique conduit of sometimes remarkable information.

And, it looks like, finally, you'll be getting that information in a timely manner—so long as we put it in an envelope! Let us all be thankful for little miracles.

INTRODUCTION TO DR. CLARK'S LEGAL BATTLE

What has happened to Royal Raymond Rife, Dr. Burzynski, and other pioneers in medicine has finally happened to Dr. Hulda Clark.

On September 20, Dr. Hulda Clark was arrested in San Diego. She was subsequently held in a prison in Santee, waiting to be extradited to Indiana, where she is charged with "practicing medicine without a license", a class C felony facing 2-8 years in prison.

The patients in her clinic in Mexico, most of them terminally ill and getting better under Dr. Clark's supervision, had to be sent home to try and do the protocol on their own.

Dr. Clark was escorted to Indiana on October 4 and arrived in Indiana October 6, 2:30 a.m. A hearing was held at 9 a.m. and bail was set at $10,000.

Dr. Clark was offered a plea bargain with a fine if she pled guilty, but she pled not guilty. The trial will be February 2, 2000.

[Messages from an earlier notice:] We have decided to turn this into something positive and teach the suppressors a lesson, like it has been done in the Dr. Atkins case. We are working day and night now to make this happen (it is 3:24 a.m. as I am writing this). But only grass roots support—meaning YOU—can help us do that.

Hulda Clark is author of the book: The Cure For All Cancer.

Dr. Clark has been a longtime proponent of getting rid of parasite infestations in the body as an important step to good health. Considering how many billions of dollars are made by the medical establishment by keeping this kind of information secret, it does not take too much thinking to figure out why "they" have finally come after Dr. Clark.

She needs support—there are many truly good doctors (and researchers) being persecuted today and in recent years for promoting the ingredients for TRUE health. A public outcry seems to be the most effective way to send a "back off!" message to the crooks in high places.

CLINTON'S SOLO NIGHT GOLF RAISES IMAGE OF PERSONAL FRUSTRATION
BY BEN MACINTYRE

From the Internet, Jeff Rense, <<http://www.sightings.com>>, 10/19/99: [quoting]

A strange, solitary figure could be seen on the Army and Navy Country Club golf course outside Washington on Sunday night, whacking ball after ball into the pitch darkness as the rain poured down.

It was Bill Clinton, inadvertently offering the stark image of an increasingly isolated and frustrated President heading towards the end of his second term, his temper rising and his power waning.

Dusk was already gathering when he suddenly announced that he was going to play golf, alone, and for two-and-a-half hours he worked his way around the sodden course, deserted save for his Secret Service detail and a handful of damp journalists.

"He was playing in the pitch dark," one reporter said. "He was swinging and wildly hitting balls everywhere."

Mr. Clinton's obsession with golf is well known, but his eccentric solo session has inevitably invited speculation about his state of mind in the twilight of his presidency. "It was odd. It was strange," one White House official was quoted as saying.

With just over a year of his last term remaining, Mr. Clinton is having to cede the political spotlight to his would-be successor, Al Gore, and to his wife, while his ambitions for his own legacy have become bogged down in partisan politics and bitter budget wrangling. Recently Mr. Clinton has taken to public bouts of introspection, and by his own admission the presidential temper is starting to fray.

"Some days I wake up on the wrong side of the bed, in a foul humor," he told an audience earlier this month. "It has occurred to me really that every one of us has this little scale inside...on one side there's the Light forces and on the other side there's the dark forces in our psyche.

"Life is a big struggle to try to keep things in proper balance," he added.

Mr. Clinton's darker side was on full display last week after the Senate rejected the treaty banning nuclear tests that he had planned as the centerpiece of his foreign policy.

Mr. Clinton lambasted Republican senators for what he called their "reckless partisanship" and "isolationism". And the Senate is not alone in feeling the rough edge of the presidential tongue.

In the past few weeks he has been heard to lash out at his conservative enemies, unsympathetic media, and even the FBI. Earlier this month, at a White House picnic, one reporter for Investor's Daily found himself in a slanging match with Mr. Clinton, who then gave instructions that the journalist be banned from all such functions in the future.

Mr. Clinton's frustration was also evident recently when he reflected on the stalled peace process in Northern Ireland and compared the opposing sides in the conflict to drunks addicted to violence.

The President's periodic bursts of ill humor may be partly attributable to disappointment with the campaign being run by his Vice-President, whose election Mr. Clinton sees as crucial to preserving his own place in history.

He has been vociferous in his support of Mr. Gore, but last weekend the front-runner for the Democratic nomination clearly hinted that he might forgo Mr. Clinton's help. Many voters see Mr. Gore as tainted by the scandals of the Clinton presidency.

The President is also said to be finding it hard to adjust to playing second fiddle to the political ambitions of Hillary Clinton. While he jokes about joining the "Senate spouses club", associates say he feels more than a twinge of envy that his political career is winding down, unglamorously, at a moment when hers may just be taking off.

Some associates say Mr. Clinton is still determined to leave an imprint from his final year in office and is gearing up for a battle over spending with Republicans in Congress. "He's been in great spirits and he has lots of fight," Terence McAuliffe, a Democratic fund-raiser and Clinton confidant, told The Washington Post.

But Mr. Clinton's public comments have taken on a mournful, valedictory tone, and his introductions to White House visitors now tend to start with the formula "as our time here draws to a close".

On a recent trip to New York, a park guide joked that the President could always get a job with the National Park Service. "I can work cheap, I've got a good pension," Mr. Clinton replied.

But White House insiders say that for all the jocular, the future is weighing heavily on his mind.

But the only thing that Mr. Clinton has stated with absolute certainty about his plans after leaving the White House is that they will involve a large amount of golf.

When he climbed, dripping, into his limousine after Sunday's impromptu and solitary round of golf, his aides declined to say what he had scored.

Perhaps he was not even counting. [End quoting]

It would be very interesting to know what would cause him to take this rather drastic approach to calling unfavorable attention to himself. I'm wondering if it has anything to do with his threatening to start World War III so he can maintain the presidency—DICTATORSHIP??

ELITE'S NEW YEAR'S CELEBRATION AT THE GREAT PYRAMID OF GIZA

From the Internet, Jeff Rense, <<http://www.sightings.com>>, 10/25/99: [quoting]

An Islamist newspaper on Tuesday denounced Egypt's plans for a spectacular New Year millennium celebration as part of a Zionist plot to lay claim to the pyramids.

Al-Shaab, bi-weekly mouthpiece of Egypt's Islamist-oriented Labor Party, argued that the show, organized by "Zionist" French musician Jean-Michel Jarre, would bolster what it called Zionist claims that Jews had constructed the 4,500-year-old pyramids.

"The Jews claim that they are owners of Egypt's ancient civilization and the builders of the pyramids," wrote Labor Party Secretary-General Adel Hussein in a front page article.

Jarre, famous for albums such as Oxygene and Equinoxe, will perform a 12-hour electronic opera in a $9 million spectacular on the pyramids plateau, featuring 1,000 performers, lasers, fireworks, and a mix of Oriental and Western music.

"The climax of the awesome celebration is the placing of a gold cap on the main (Cheops) pyramid. What we are dealing with here is crowning the top of our Great Pyramid with the symbol of Masonic Zionism," Hussein wrote.

Egypt's Culture Minister, Farouk Hosni, has already come under fire from nationalists in the arts community for choosing a foreigner to lead the millennium party, expected to attract thousands of tourists and intense media interest.

Guardian Special on GM [gene manipulation??]

In spring the US giant was sure its GM technology was unbeatable. Then one man convinced the organization that the game was up.

GM food: special report

John Vidal

Guardian (London), Saturday, October 9, 1999.

On July 14 a group of powerful Americans met secretly at the Willard hotel near the White House to listen to an English academic who had spent much of his life working in developing countries with peasant farmers.

The nine members of the Monsanto board of directors have serious political clout. Apart from Robert Shapiro, the visionary head of the $12-billion-a-year corporation, and senior bankers and Harvard academics, it includes Mickey Kantor, former head of the US commerce department, and the former heads of the US social security department and the US environmental protection agency.

They were there to meet Gordon Conway, the president of the Rockefeller Foundation in New York, whose "job" is to help the world's disadvantaged.

Mr Shapiro, who vows he is working for the world's poor with GM foods, had invited Professor Conway, formerly vice chancellor of Sussex university, to address the board as part of the corporation's commitment to consult more widely following the GM furor in Europe sparked by the so-called Terminator Gene.

Because Rockefeller had put more than $100 million into public research into GM crops, Professor Conway was thought to be an ally; he was expected to make a friendly, gentlemanly speech, perhaps with some mild advice, that would go no further than the four walls of the Willard.

But privately, Professor Conway, along with increasing sections of the US intellectual community, deplored the corporation's style and global strategy.

Meltdown
Of Confidence

In Europe it had alienated millions, he believed, and was threatening a trade war and long-term damage to the prospects of the poor. The corporation with a reputation for arrogance and secrecy was seen to be responsible for a meltdown of confidence in science and big business, and a backlash against US agriculture. Moreover, Monsanto's effective ownership of Terminator technology would allow the corporation, the second biggest agribusiness in the world, to develop plants that bore sterile seeds—a move that had angered farmers in the developing world.

Professor Conway had given Monsanto little warning, even when he had visited the company's St. Louis headquarters a few weeks earlier. But at the Willard he went straight for Monsanto's guts. For more than an hour, the professor lectured the board: change tack, or bring the wrath of the scientific, political, and global community down on them.

"Admit that you do not have all the answers" he said. "Commit yourselves to prompt, full, and honest sharing of data. This is not the time for a new PR offensive but for a new relationship based on honesty, full disclosure, and a very uncertain shared future."

Professor Conway argued that the possible adverse consequences for billions of developing world farmers outweighed any social benefits in protecting the Terminator technology. What the Terminator gene did, he said, was effectively kill the process that let farmers sow their own seeds, and subsistence farmers were too poor to buy new seed. The possible consequences were terrible. In short, he told them, Monsanto was socially irresponsible and the public was alienated. He urged a "global public dialogue" that would air all sides of the issues.

Terse statement. The board was shocked. But they did not suspect that Professor Conway had warned the press about what he intended to say. Within hours Rockefeller had issued seven challenges to Monsanto. "It was like a boil had been lanced, a milestone" said one person who was party to the talks. "Someone in authority had, for the first time, held this monolithic corporation up to public accountability."

Monsanto was furious, and issued a terse statement: "The meeting was frank and productive. We will continue to reach out to people like Professor Conway to discuss the challenges and opportunities of biotechnology applications in agriculture."

The Conway meeting was seminal. Until then, about the only genuine "reaching out" the company had done was to its lawyers, publicists, lobbyists, and friends in governments. It had dismissed the social and ethical critiques of environment, church, and consumer groups, and in July was hoping to ride out the storm. Mr. Shapiro was confident: for the six months of 1999, the company earned $476 million, up 5% over 1998, and its income had grown 28%. In particular, it had no intention of backing down on Terminator. Its only retreat was to admit it had misunderstood European sensibilities and been "naive" in trying to win fast approval.

Until the spring Monsanto had broad support in the US. Wall Street and the White House still favoured the company, whose shares were priced at $47 each, and analysts were saying it was primed for success. Mr. Shapiro could tell shareholders that the flooding of the US market with GM crops had been the most "successful launch of any technology ever, including the plough". He anticipated a 300% expansion in the two years to a staggering 183m acres. Nor was Europe a problem: "Eventually, scientific proof should win over reluctant and skeptical consumers" he said.

But, since the spring, little had gone right. In April a manufacturer of veggie burgers stopped using GM soybeans. The Wall Street Journal then reported that the GM controversy was "beginning to be felt in the US". Some farmers started to avoid GM crops, and the powerful US grain industry was saying it had nearly stopped shipping to Europe—a $200 million market.

By the summer, the first GM crops were being destroyed by US activists and the press had begun to widely report global disillusionment. Europe was deteriorating even further, with supermarkets disavowing GM products and activists digging up crops. Meanwhile, the Clinton administration was reportedly "dreading starting a trade war over GM because public sentiment is so strongly against" this technology.

And in poor countries, Terminator was becoming a political issue. India and Zimbabwe had effectively banned the use of the technology, and the world's largest group of agricultural research organizations had condemned it. By May, observers noted a definite cooling by Dan Glickman, the US agriculture secretary, who was warning of "profound consequences" if the GM situation did not improve. For the first time, he encouraged US firms to voluntarily label products. Monsanto was reportedly furious.

Told To Keep Quiet

Mr Glickman then upped the stakes, warning GM could hurt small farmers. He reportedly said that Mr. Shapiro should keep quiet "because every time he opens his mouth, US agriculture loses millions more bushels of agriculture exports".

By the summer, US corn exports to the EU were reported to have dropped 96% in a year. To Monsanto's horror, farmers were beginning to choose traditional seeds rather than risk the new. One giant processor announced it would pay extra for traditional soybeans. Within weeks, Monsanto was further exposed: the British AstraZeneca GM company said it would not commercialize its own Terminator-type technology.

By August, Mr. Shapiro was on the ropes. Mr. Glickman said he would investigate whether the US agriculture department was too close to companies like Monsanto, and the message was picked up on Wall Street.

Deutsche, the largest European bank, had in May recommended institutional investors to sell Monsanto shares; within days the price had dropped. When Deutsche repeated the advice in September, other analysts joined in.

Monsanto stock had lost 35% of its value in a year, while Wall Street as a whole went up 30%.

The Conway message finally got through. After heated debate in the company, Monsanto's president, Hendrik Ver faillie, went 10 days ago to the US senate to say that it "would now act to meet concerns". He then travelled secretly to Britain to talk to the Soil Association and others, promising to help farmers with traditional cross-breeding.

On Monday, Mr. Shapiro wrote to Professor Conway to say the company would no longer pursue research into the Terminator technology. On Tuesday he was due in Britain at the Greenpeace business conference, but pulled out. But his interactive video link showed how much Mr. Shapiro had changed. Instead of a beam and a twinkle, the screen showed a pale and drawn man. "We forgot to listen" he said. "We have irritated and antagonized more people than we have persuaded; our confidence in biotechnology has been widely seen as arrogance and condescension." He promised wide consultation and to listen carefully.

The questions remain, but, said Professor Conway, "it's a start".

"We Forgot To Listen" Says Monsanto

GM company chief takes blame for public relations failures and pledges to answer safety concerns over GM food: SPECIAL REPORT

John Vidal, Guardian (London), Thursday, October 7, 1999.

Bob Shapiro, head of the embattled GM company Monsanto, yesterday took personal blame for the meltdown in global public opinion over biotechnology and promised a new dialogue with society.

Looking drawn and troubled, with an important meeting with reportedly upset shareholders ahead of him, Mr Shapiro was conciliatory: "We started with the conviction that biotechnology was useful and valuable, but we have tended to see it as our task to convince people that we were right and that people with different points of view were wrong" he told the Greenpeace business conference in London, attended by captains of industry, other GM companies, and eco-activists.

"We have irritated and antagonized more people than we have persuaded. Our confidence in biotechnology has been widely seen as arrogance and condescension because we thought it was our job to persuade. But too often we forgot to listen."

Mr. Shapiro said Monsanto did not have the answers to the public's concerns about safety, genetic pollution, ethics, and the power of corporations, but was now committed to engaging in dialogue with society to find solutions.

He said "None of these concerns is trivial.

Each is valid and needs examination. We want to participate constructively in the process. It means listening carefully.”

Mr. Shapiro said Monsanto sought common ground with his critics. “We are listening, and will seek it whenever it’s available, and will seek solutions that work for a wide range of people.”

He added that the company was prepared, as new products were developed, to engage in consultation with people “at an earlier level than we have been doing in the past”.

But Greenpeace’s director, Lord Melchett, accused Mr. Shapiro of being a bully. Monsanto, he said, had fundamentally misunderstood the changes taking place in society and people’s changing priorities. “The vast majority are not anti science, or Luddite. But they are increasingly aware and mistrustful of the combination of big science and big business. Your vision promotes false promises of easy alternatives via short-term technical fixes, and increases the imbalance of power between multinational corporations and farmers in the developing world.

“People are becoming more confident in their understanding of what is at stake and more resolute in their ability to resist. There has been an unprecedented, permanent, and irreversible shift in the political landscape” he said.

Mr. Shapiro said that US polls consistently showed that opposition to biotechnology came from the poor and uneducated, whereas university-educated people and those most familiar with the science were most supportive.

This is a BIG WIN for we-the-people, for now. It required a strong focus of outrage coupled with hitting them where they live—in the money belt. SEED RESEARCH FACILITIES RECEIVE TERRORISM THREATS

Iowa State University and Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc. were on alert after an Internet threat of terrorism against biotech seed research and production facilities, the Des Moines Sunday Register reported.

“We’re alerting everyone to the possibility” of some kind of attack, said Walt Fehr, an agronomist who heads Iowa State University’s biotech-based agricultural research.

“Faculty and staff members at the university have been urged to notify campus security if they notice strangers in campus buildings or protesters gathered on campus,” Fehr said.

At Des Moines-based Pioneer, the world’s largest seed-corn supplier, employees were notified of the threats Friday by email.

“You don’t know whether or not people are going to follow through on these kinds of threats, but you want to take them seriously,” Pioneer spokesman Tim Martin said.

Anti-biotech activists contend that crop research sites have been sabotaged in the United States this year. Groups with such names as Reclaim the Seeds, Future Farmers, and the Minnesota Bolt Weevils claimed attacks last month. [End quoting]

Too bad the scientists have to get the message of the people about their doctoring of our food crops this way. This, by no means, is the proper way of protesting anything. However, it is time the so-called elite were waking up to the mood of the people about food adulteration.

Monsanto at least has gotten the message—temporarily; it hit their pocketbook too hard! That seems to be the only way to get QUICK RESULTS!

ICELAND STORES BAN SWEETENER IN TUMOR LINK FEAR!

From The Orlando Sentinel, 10/28/99: [quoting]

Iceland, the grocer, will announce this week that it is banning aspartame, the artificial sweetener better known as NutraSweet, from its own label foods.

The move follows growing concern among consumers about a possible link between the sweetener and brain tumors.

Aspartame is consumed by 250 million people worldwide and has been used in low-calorie food and drinks such as Diet Coke for 20 years.

But in recent years there have been increasing fears about possible health risks. The compound has been linked to multiple sclerosis and even Gulf War syndrome.

These worries, spread on the Internet, are hotly disputed by NutraSweet’s owner, Monsanto, the GM (genetically modified) food giant.

Iceland will become the first national grocers’ chain to impose a ban, and the move will be closely watched by its larger rivals. Iceland is trying to reposition itself as a “green” grocer and has already banned other artificial colors and flavorings from its own goods.

Malcolm Walker, Iceland’s chairman, was the first grocer to ban GM foods and coined the term “Frankenstein foods”.

The move will spark a full-scale row between the grocery chain and Monsanto.

A NutraSweet spokeswoman said: “Iceland is spreading alarm when it should be reassuring customers. The web has become a real problem [and] there is a lot of misinformation about.”

An Iceland executive said that the company will tell staff tomorrow that it will no longer supply food with aspartame under its own label and will be switching to other artificial sweeteners. The company will continue to sell branded products that contain NutraSweet, such as Diet Coke.

The grocer’s executives recently held talks with the International Sweeteners Association, which represents the multi-billion-dollar industry. But despite being given assurances that NutraSweet was perfectly safe, Iceland decided to impose a ban.

King’s College, London, is conducting a three-year study to establish whether there is a link between aspartame and brain tumors. Reports in America have found conflicting evidence of a link. There, 20 billion cans of soft drink are consumed each year, most containing NutraSweet.

Bill Wadsworth, Iceland's technical director, said a full-scale ban was being considered. "We are taking the matter seriously because of the weight of customer pressure we are coming under."

Monsanto is in the process of selling its sweetener division. Protests from consumers and environmental groups in Europe—many debating the issue on the Internet—have hurt the company's growth prospects and its stock market value has plummeted.

Wadsworth said: "Clearly the Internet is playing a major role bringing this debate to public attention."

SECRET NEW "BLACK BOXES" IN CARS ARE SPYING ON YOU

From Weekly WARU News, by Jack Alexander, no date: [quoting]

Hundreds of thousands of cars are cruising around America equipped with revolutionary new black boxes that will tell whether you caused an auto accident—and even if you were wearing a seat belt or drinking a beer!

The black box—known as a Sensing and Diagnostic Module or S.D.M.—is similar to those used in commercial airplanes. It is about the size of a videocassette and is located under the front seat of some 1999 models of Cadillacs, Chevrolets, Pontiacs, and Fords.

The device records the force of collisions, the air bag's performance, and five seconds of data before impact. It can determine whether the driver applied the brakes in the first, third, or last second. The last five seconds of vehicle speed, engine speed, and gas pedal position, and whether the driver was wearing a seat belt also are recorded. And it even has a smell sensor that will tell if you were drinking while driving.

Though GM first put the boxes in six million cars in 1990 and installed an updated version in 1998 Cadillacs, few lawyers, crash specialists, or members of the general public know much about them—and that's no accident.

GM has been cautious about publicizing the use of the black boxes because the company doesn't want them used in lawsuits. And GM big shots are concerned that car buyers could shy away from such cars if they thought the data from the boxes could someday be used against them in court.

"Our interest is in safety research, and we're not going to encourage its use in other forums," said Robert C. Lange, engineering director of auto safety at GM. "As for other uses, we're not going to be able to prevent or control that."

For the handful of researchers now working in collaboration with GM, the black boxes contain a wealth of information that could change the way air bags and other safety systems are designed.

Medical researchers say the boxes could save lives. If ambulance crews could read them on the spot, they could determine whether a crash was severe enough to create a likelihood of head injuries.

"The data from the S.D.M. in future crash litigation could be the equivalent of DNA in solving paternity suits and murder cases," said attorney Edward Ricci.

But the question of who has legal access to the data—cops, lawyers, or the car owners—remains to be answered.

"Probably the owners of vehicles will be the ultimate arbiters as to whether such information is retrieved, and if retrieved, how it will be utilized," GM's Lange said.

But lawyers say use of data from the boxes in arrests or lawsuits is "an untested area of law" that will be hotly debated in the months and years to come. [End quoting]

While such black boxes could be used for increasing auto safety technology, one actually gets the suspicious feeling in the pit of one's stomach that they're up to no good. Look at the way computer operating systems have been secretly designed so that spying can be accomplished through "back door" entrances. Big Brother is indeed watching and it helps to know what may be being used to spy on our every move. As another example, read the following.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF YOUR CAR THROUGH COMPUTERS

From America's Future, News & Views, by F.R. Duplantier, Clayton, MO, October 1997: [quoting]

Washington Times automotive writer Eric Peters warns that "It is now possible for government bureaucrats to shut your car off at the push of a button via global positioning satellites transmitting signals to your car's on-board computer."

Peters suggests that such a scenario "could easily become a working reality if a proposed new engine computer system, On Board Di, gets mandated by Washington regulators.

"All 1996 and newer cars," he adds, "already have On Board Diagnostics II computers that were deemed necessary in order to comply with ever stricter new car emissions standards—and to make 'tampering' with emissions control equipment more difficult."

Cars equipped with such computers "cannot be maintained or modified by their owners without triggering the system to register a fault and possibly causing it to fail an emissions test".

Peters warned that On Board Diagnostics III could "subject the driving public to total control by bureaucratic overlords in state and federal agencies.

"Many alert car enthusiasts now believe present efforts to get rid of older, pre-computerized vehicles via so-called 'clunker' laws and 'enhanced' emissions tests are partly motivated by the realization that such vehicles cannot be monitored and controlled as easily as computerized cars.

"The government could shut down almost every car in the land at the flick of a switch—making it difficult for people to travel anywhere. Only those lucky few with older cars would not be helpless and immobile."

The "do as I say" style-of-government has put the last link in their chain of events. Placing the YOKE of bondage around your neck and selling your soul to the highest bidder down the road is just a FORMALITY to the N.W.O. flaming-liberals. [End quoting]

Just as in the previous item, one cannot help but maintain a healthy level of suspicion when such blanket bureaucratic control is quietly imposed upon we-the-people.

IMPORTANT NOTICE FOR WOMEN REGARDING TAMPONS

From the Internet, having been circulated around extensively over the past year. [quoting]

If you use pads, but especially if you use tampons, read this and pass on to your family and friends (for the men receiving this email, please forward it to your friends and significant others: sisters, mothers, daughters, etc.) thanks!

Have you heard that tampon makers include asbestos in tampons?

Why?

Because asbestos makes you bleed more; if you bleed more, you're going to need to use more. Why isn't this against the law since asbestos is so dangerous? Because the powers that be, in all their "wisdom", did not consider tampons as being ingested, and therefore wasn't illegal or considered dangerous.

This month's Essence magazine has a small article about this and they mention two manufacturers of a cotton tampon alternative. The companies are:

- Organic Essentials @ (800) 765-6491; and
- Terra Femme @ (800) 755-0212.

A woman getting her Ph.D. at the University of Colorado at Boulder sent the following:

Read on if you value your health. I am writing this because women are not being informed about the dangers of something most of us use—tampons. I am taking a class this month and I have been learning a lot about biology and women, including much about feminine hygiene.

Recently we have learned that tampons are actually dangerous (for other reasons than TSS).

I'll tell you this: after learning about this in our class, most of the females wound up feeling angry and upset with the tampon industry, and I, for one, am going to do something about it.

To start, I want to inform everyone I can, and email is the fastest way that I know how.

HERE IS THE SCOOP: Tampons contain two things that are potentially harmful—rayon (for absorbency), and dioxin (a chemical used in bleaching the products). The tampon industry is convinced that we, as women, need bleached white products in order to view the product as pure and clean. The problem here is that the dioxin produced in this bleaching process can lead to very harmful problems for a woman. Dioxin is potentially carcinogenic (cancer-associated) and is toxic to the immune and reproductive systems. It has been linked to endometriosis as well as lower sperm counts for men; for both men and women, it breaks down the immune system.

Last September the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) reported that there really is no set "acceptable" level of exposure to dioxin, given that it is cumulative and slow to disintegrate. The real danger comes from repeated contact (Karen Houppert, "Pulling The Plug On The Tampon Industry"). I'd say using about 4-5 tampons a day, five days a month, for 38 menstruating years, is "repeated contact". Wouldn't you?

Rayon contributes to the danger of tampons and dioxin because it is a highly absorbent substance. Therefore, when fibers from the tampons are left behind in the vagina (as usually occurs), they create a breeding ground for the dioxin. The rayon also stays in a lot longer than it would with just cotton tampons. This is also the reason why TSS (toxic shock syndrome) occurs.

What are the alternatives?

Using feminine hygiene products that aren't bleached (which causes the dioxin) and that are all cotton (the rayon will leave fibers and "breeding grounds" in the vagina). Other feminine hygiene products (pads/napkins) contain dioxin as well, but they are not nearly as dangerous since they are not in direct contact with the vagina. The pads/napkins need to stop being bleached, but obviously tampons are the most dangerous.

So, what can you do if you can't give up using tampons?

Use tampons that are made from 100% cotton, and that are UNBLEACHED. Unfortunately, there are very, very few companies who make these safe tampons. They are usually only found in health food stores.

Localities all over the world (Sweden,

Germany, British Columbia, etc.) have demanded a switch to this safer tampon, while the U.S. has decided to keep us in the dark about it. In 1989, activists in England mounted a campaign against chlorine bleaching. Six weeks and 50,000 letters later, the makers of sanitary products switched to oxygen bleaching (one of the green methods available. (MS magazine, May/June 1995).

What to do now:

Tell people! We are being manipulated by this industry and the government; let's do something about it! Please write to the companies: Tampa (Tambrands), Playtex, O.B., Kotex.

Call the 800 numbers listed on the boxes. Let them know that we demand a safe product—ALL COTTON UNBLEACHED TAMPONS!

Thank you.

EXPOSED: THE DEADLY LEGACY OF NATO STRIKES IN KOSOVO

From the Internet, Paper Clip
<lookhere@earthlink.net>, 10/4/99: [quoting]

Friends, this is not only outrageous, it is below being inhuman.

After insisting throughout its air bombardment of Yugoslavia that its use of depleted uranium munitions against Serb forces posed no hazard to human health, NATO officers in Kosovo now admit that particles from their shells may have contaminated soil near targets in Yugoslavia and could cause "inhalation" problems, especially for children.

There has been a growing outcry against munitions containing depleted uranium (DU)—a waste product of the nuclear industry—since it was used in armor-piercing projectiles in the 1991 Gulf War. In the eight years since, hundreds of Iraqis living near the battlefields have died from mysterious cancers and grossly deformed children have been born to Iraqi soldiers who fought in the war. British and American veterans suffering from Gulf War syndrome suspect that the use of DU weapons caused their own sickness and cancers.

In briefings to international aid workers in Pristina, one K-For officer has warned his audience of "contaminated dust" at the scene of DU munitions explosions and urged aid officials to stay 150 feet away from targets hit in NATO air strikes. But non-governmental organizations have been amazed to hear that NATO cannot—or will not—say where it used DU ordnance against Serb forces. "There is no releasable information about where it was used and when" a K-For spokesman told The Independent. He would give no reason for NATO's refusal to provide these details.

Officially, K-For warns aid workers to beware of all Kosovo battle sites—especially the danger posed by unexploded cluster bombs—but the records of one major aid organization in Pristina show that on 13 and 20 August a K-For officer was twice asked by United Nations officials about the dangers of DU projectiles fired by American A-10 Warthog ground-attack aircraft.

The officer—believed to have been British—spoke of "the danger of the spread of contaminated dust".

The Pentagon says that, in the 1991 Gulf War, more than 860,000 DU rounds were fired by United States and—to a much lesser extent—British forces.

In following years, doctors in southern Iraq were stunned to find an exponential increase in child cancers and deformities among families living near the old battlefields or close to targets hit by US forces. One Iraqi doctor's report in Basra last year recorded three babies born without heads in August, along with four with abnormally large heads; six babies born with no heads in September, and two with short limbs. In October 1998, another baby was born without a head and four with oversized heads.

Nor were DU munitions used in Kosovo only against armor, as NATO claimed.

One aid worker found exploded DU rounds at a defense installation near Djakovica. "There were no vehicles there, but I found the tops of the rounds," he told me. [End quoting]

War is not a pretty picture and it has always been that way. As technology has "progressed" we only find that more sophisticated killing, maiming, and torturing methods have been developed. Mother Earth herself cannot be expected to longer tolerate such irresponsible and damaging behavior, and she has every right to rid herself of such pesky fleas and their poison toys.

WHY PEOPLE PAY INCOME TAX

From the Internet, courtesy of a subscriber,

A LESSON ON MIND CONTROL

Start with a cage containing five apes. In the cage, hang a banana on a string and put stairs under it. Before long, an ape will go to the stairs and start to climb towards the banana.

As soon as he touches the stairs, spray all of the apes with cold water. After a while, another ape makes an attempt with the same result—all the apes are sprayed with cold water.

Turn off the cold water. If, later, another ape tries to climb the stairs, the other apes will try to prevent it, even though no water sprays them.

Now, remove one ape from the cage and replace him with a new one. The new ape sees the banana and wants to climb the stairs. To his horror, all of the other apes attack him. After another attempt and attack, he knows that if he tries to climb the stairs, he will be assaulted.

Next, remove another of the original five apes and replace it with a new one. The newcomer goes to the stairs and is attacked. The previous newcomer takes part in the punishment with enthusiasm.

Again, replace a third original ape with a new one. The new one makes it to the stairs and is attacked as well. Two of the four apes that beat him have no idea why they were not permitted to climb the stairs, or why they are participating in the beating of the newest ape.

After replacing the fourth and fifth original apes, all the apes which have been sprayed with cold water have been replaced. Nevertheless, no ape ever again approaches the stairs. Why not? "Because that's the way it's always been around here.

"That is how organizational behavior is indoctrinated into social/corporate policy and a culture becomes entrenched." [End quoting]

So simple to understand what is happening to us when you know how the so-called elite use simple psychological tricks, frequency transmissions, etc., to control us. But it's time we put a stop to this through help from God and the use of the mind power He gave us. The place to begin is through knowledge of the tricks being used on us. Once the tricks are revealed, they cannot impose the same measure of control over you unless you consciously choose to be controlled. This is the biggest fear of these darkly motivated, so-called elite controllers—that we will wake-up to their tricks and thus render them ineffective anymore.

DATA LINK GULF WAR ILLNESS TO VACCINE

From The Daily News, Los Angeles, for 10/19/99: [quoting]

A scientific survey underwritten by the Pentagon has concluded that an experimental drug given to American troops during the Persian Gulf War to protect against a nerve gas may have been responsible for the chronic illnesses afflicting tens of thousands of veterans.

The report, to be released at a news conference today, is the first commissioned by the Pentagon to identify a possible cause for the illnesses, which have collectively come to be known as Gulf War syndrome. It sharply contradicts two earlier government studies—by a presidential commission and by the Institute of Medicine—that ruled out the drug as a cause. [End quoting]

This "admission" hardly aligns with a great deal of the data uncovered by truly independent researchers who have concluded a much more sinister agenda inflicted upon our troops. Rather, the suspicion surfaces that the Pentagon needed to create some "scapegoat" to hopefully divert the truly honest research hounds from uncovering anything more damaging than they already have.

FEDS WITHDRAW RECOMMENDATION FOR ANTI-DIARRHEA IMMUNIZATION

Excerpted from The Daily News, Los Angeles, 10/23/99: [quoting]

In a rare and embarrassing reversal, a federal health advisory panel Friday withdrew its recommendation that all infants be immunized against the virus that causes a severe form of diarrhea after the vaccine was linked to a painful and potentially fatal bowel obstruction.

The action comes a year after the government licensed the rotavirus vaccine, and three months after it abruptly suspended its use because of reports that some babies who took it were coming down with the bowel condition. A week ago the manufacturer, American Home Products of Madison, N.J., withdrew the vaccine from the market. [End quoting]

The above two stories are yet more evidence, with all of the other negative information that has been published for many years now, to convince people that there is a hidden agenda to poison us—and don't forget to include fluoride in the water supplies.

PHILIP MORRIS ADMITS CIGARETTES HARMFUL

From The Daily News, Los Angeles, for 10/13/99: [quoting]

Philip Morris Company is acknowledging that scientific evidence shows that smoking causes lung cancer and other deadly diseases, after decades of disputing the findings of the U.S. surgeon general and other medical authorities. On a new Internet site it is unveiling today as part of a $100 million corporate image campaign, the company unequivocally states there is an "overwhelming medical and scientific consensus that cigarette smoking causes" diseases including lung cancer, emphysema and heart disease. [End quoting]

One's first reaction to this news is to cheer. However, there is something very suspicious about all the heat the cigarette industry has been taking lately. One friend of mine has a theory that cigarette smoking may cancel out some other more toxic "thing" being inflicted upon us, such as through the mysterious contrail sprayings going on all over the country.

COUNTY CALLS LICE CHEMICAL TOXIC

From The Daily News, Los Angeles, for 10/9/99: [quoting]

The county sanitation department is launching a campaign to end the use of a pesticide used to treat head lice, saying it pollutes the environment and can harm children, officials said Friday.

At issue is the effect of lindane, an ingredient in some prescription treatments of head lice. Lindane is an ingredient in the widely used shampoo and body lotion Kwell, which treats head lice, sanitation officials say.

"I don't think people have realized it was an environmental issue" said Margaret Nellor of the L.A. County Sanitation District. "It's a pretty toxic chemical."

Mandated to reduce the levels of lindane in wastewater under stricter federal standards, the Sanitation Districts of Los Angeles County are launching the effort called L.I.C.E., Lindane Isn't Cool for the Environment.

Besides environmental harm, lindane can also cause liver, kidney, immune system, and central nervous system damage, according to Deborah Altschuler, president of the Boston-based nonprofit National Pediculosis Association. Pediculosis is an infestation with lice.

"The chemical approach to lice has failed miserably" she said. "It's time people get a grip on that. The fact that head lice is so established among kids is the scientific proof that the chemicals haven't worked."

Officials with Alpharma, the Baltimore, Maryland-based company that makes Kwell, did not return calls seeking comment.

One point many appear to agree on is that the lice have become resistant to treatments, even as the treatments get stronger. It has become increasingly difficult to rid hair of head lice.

Environmentally, lindane has become such a problem in wastewater facilities that county sanitation officials have been mandated by the Environmental Protection Agency to cut the levels in half by spring.

If they don't comply with the Environmental Protection Agency regulation, the sanitation district will be forced to spend $150 million to treat wastewater to remove the pesticide, Nellor said.

A single treatment of head lice with lindane can pollute six million gallons of water, according to sanitation officials.

The public education program is being piloted in Burbank and Long Beach, where county sanitation officials will be working with school principals, nurses, and doctors.

Its focus is to teach those on the front lines of head lice treatment ways to prevent lindane from hurting the environment and promote safe treatments.

Along with the education component of the project, beginning in the pilot schools this fall, free metal combs will be distributed.

Sanitation officials recommend thoroughly inspecting and combing hair rather than using any sort of chemical treatment, including nonpesticide, over-the-counter options.

County health officials say that's a ludicrous idea.

"There is no such thing as a comb that gets rid of lice" said Shirley Fannin, director of disease control for the Los Angeles County Public Health Department.

Fannin questioned whether the education effort is exaggerating the problem.

"What is this nonsense? I'm horrified" Fannin said. "If it were a significant risk, I promise you the EPA would have pulled it off the shelves many, many moons ago." [End quoting]

Here is yet another example of poisoning people (especially little children) directly, as well as polluting the environment, which is a general kind of poisoning on a large scale. I can't help but think about the serious problem several years ago concerning certain kinds of mites which were decimating honeybee hives. Paranoia might cause one to question where the mites came from all of a sudden, but nevertheless, all the fancy toxic chemicals in the world did not help. Then some bee keeper discovered that certain aromatic oils, like wintergreen and peppermint, repelled the little buggers completely, with no harm to the bees. So might there be a similar solution for hair lice?

WHAT KIND OF BOMB?

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 10/11/99: [quoting]

According to an Associated Press report that appeared in The Cape Cod Times on June 12, 1995, President Clinton, while speaking in Hanover, NH, said the bomb that blew up the federal building in Oklahoma City was a "miracle of technology". Funny, the official government story is the bomb was a simple mix of fertilizer and fuel oil, materials used by the smallest family farms across America. Clinton had better get his stories straight. [End quoting]

A JOB THAT LASTS

From Popular Science magazine, <www.sherwin-williams.com>, Oct. 1999: [quoting]

Just as the World Wide Web has created an innovative marketplace of ideas and information, today's technology has produced products within the past few years that offer benefits and characteristics never before available in similar materials. One of these all-new, high-tech products is Duration Exterior Coating from Sherwin-Williams. Although it looks like paint and is applied like paint, Duration outperforms typical paint in a manner reminiscent of the way the Web has eclipsed traditional information sources.

Duration is a revolutionary acrylic copolymer coating that provides a flexible layer of protection against water and weather for extreme long-wearing performance. Its chemistry allows it to be used on virtually any exterior surface, including wood, masonry, stucco, cement-board, aluminum or vinyl siding, or galvanized metal. No priming is needed on bare wood, and Duration can be applied at temperatures below those required for ordinary paints. Duration is also warranted for as long as you own your home. [End quoting]

Such coatings have probably been developed many times over the last thirty or forty years, however there is much more money to be made from the need to repaint everyone's home on a regular and sometimes frequent basis. The real question is: why is this product finally being made available now? Do you think the auto which runs on water will be next?! Don't get your hopes up.

ABDUCTIONS/DOMESTIC VIOLENCE/ CHILD ABUSE ALLEGATIONS

From the Internet, <para-discuss@tje.net>, 10/26/99: [quoting]

I have been conducting research on UFOs and law enforcement for about 5 months now and have found something I find very interesting.

I have sent out numerous emails and also regular mail on this research and received many interesting replies on the alien abduction question. Many people state that they would not discuss their abduction and possible bruises or marks with anyone for fear of law enforcement coming to their home on a domestic violence complaint. This is also true with children, as they state that they would not even let their child attend school because they would be visited by the local Child Abuse Agency and they would have to explain the marks, and when they could not, they would be charged with child abuse and have their children taken away.

I find these replies very interesting and would appreciate any feedback I could get on the above and any information as to if this ever did happen.

I would also appreciate any information on the government experimenting on children without the knowledge of their parents or with knowledge of their parents, that could be considered to be child abuse.

I would like to thank you in advance for your time and cooperation regarding the above request, and all information forwarded will be deeply appreciated. If you do not want to reply by email, I have my address at the end of this email and please mail this information to me, no names or addresses have to be listed.

Thanks, Fred R. Saluga, 2731 BlairStone Road, Apartment #77, Tallahassee, Florida 32301. [End quoting]

The abduction phenomenon has many facets to it, few of them honorable. Be cautious about sharing information through such a solicitation as the above, as it is always quite possible for the government to create a legitimate-looking front for gathering their own data. However, the newsworthy content of the above message is still well worth sharing.

CALL-WAITING MODEM

A woman came out of her house and saw 3 old men with long white beards sitting in her front yard. She did not recognize them. She said "I don't think I know you, but you must be hungry. Please come in and have something to eat."

"Is the man of the house home?" they asked.

"No" she said. "He's out."

"Then we cannot come in" they replied.

In the evening when her husband came home, she told him what had happened. "Go tell them I am home and invite them in!"

The woman went out and invited the men in.

"We do not go into a house together" they replied.

"Why is that?" she wanted to know.

One of the old men explained: "His name is Wealth" he said, pointing to one of his friends, and said, pointing to another one, "He is Success, and I am Love."

Then he added, "Now go in and discuss with your husband which one of us you want in your home."

The woman went in and told her husband

what was said. Her husband was overjoyed. "How nice!" he said. "Since that is the case, let us invite Wealth. Let him come and fill our home with wealth!"

His wife disagreed. "My dear, why don't we invite Success?"

Their daughter-in-law was listening from the other corner of the house. She jumped in with her own suggestion: "Would it not be better to invite Love? Our home will then be filled with love!"

"Let us heed our daughter-in-law's advice" said the husband to his wife. "Go out and invite Love to be our guest."

The woman went out and asked the three old men: "Which one of you is Love? Please come in and be our guest."

Love got up and started walking toward the house. The other two also got up and followed him. Surprised, the lady asked Wealth and Success: "I only invited Love; why are you coming in?"

The old men replied together: "If you had invited Wealth or Success, the other two of us would've stayed out, but since you invited Love, wherever He goes, we go with him. Wherever there is Love, there is also Wealth and Success."

A FEW RULES FOR LIVING IN THIS REALITY

RULES FOR BEING HUMAN
by Dr. Cherie Carter-Scott

You will receive a body. You may like it or hate it, but it's yours to keep for the entire period.

You will learn lessons. You are enrolled in a full-time, informal school called life.

There are no mistakes, only lessons.

Growth is a process of trial, error, and experimentation.

The "failed" experiments are as much a part of the process as the experiments that ultimately “work”.

Lessons are repeated until they are learned. A lesson will be presented to you in various forms until you have learned it.

When you have learned it, you can go on to the next lesson.

Learning lessons does not end. There is no part of life that doesn't contain its lessons. If you're alive, there are still lessons to be learned.

“There” is no better than “here”. When your “there” has become “here”, you will simply obtain another “there” that will again look better than “here”.

Other people are merely mirrors of you. You cannot love or hate something about another person unless it reflects to you something you love or hate about yourself.

What you make of your life is up to you. You have all the tools and resources you need. What you do with them is up to you. The choice is yours.

RULES OF PEACEFULNESS

May today there be peace within.

May you trust your Highest Power that you are exactly where you are meant to be.

May you not forget the infinite possibilities that are born of faith.

May you use those gifts that you have received, and pass on the love that has been given to you.

May you be content knowing you are a child of God. Let this Presence settle into your bones, and allow your soul the freedom to sing, dance, and to bask in the Sun. It is there for each and every one of you.

RULES FOR PARENTS

Quote magazine (September 1, 1985) published ten behaviors children ages 8 to 14 identified as qualities wanted in parents. These young people, from 24 countries, agreed on 10 traits they believed were important for all parents to possess. Here they are:

1. They want harmony. They do not want their parents to have unresolved and destructive conflict in front of them.

2. They want love. They wish to be treated with the same affection as other children in the family.

3. They want honesty. They do not want to be lied to.

4. They want acceptance. They desire mutual tolerance from both parents.

5. They want their parents to like their friends. They want their friends to be welcomed in the home.

6. They want closeness. They desire comradeship with their parents.

7. They want their parents to pay attention to them and answer their questions.

8. They want consideration from their parents. They do not want to be embarrassed or punished in front of friends.

9. They want positive support. They wish for their parents to concentrate on their good points rather than their weaknesses.

10. They want consistency. They desire parents to be constant in their affections and moods.

TWENTY-SIX ANGELS

From the Internet, courtesy K.E., 10/22/99: [quoting]

This will give you chills!

This is a true story forwarded to me by a friend whose son is a Baptist missionary. This one should really give you cause to stop and think very hard about the power of prayer! My best wishes and prayers go with all of you.

Have you ever felt the urge to pray for someone and then just put it on a list and said, “I'll pray for them later?” Or has anyone ever called you and said, “I need you to pray for me, I have this need.”?

Read the following story that was sent to me and may it change the way that you may think about prayer, and also the way you pray. You will be blessed by this one.

A missionary on furlough told this true story while visiting his home church in Michigan.

“While serving at a small field hospital in Africa, every two weeks I traveled by bicycle through the jungle to a nearby city for supplies.

“This was a journey of two days and required camping overnight at the halfway point. On one of these journeys, I arrived in the city where I planned to collect money from a bank, purchase medicine and supplies, and then begin my two-day journey back to the field hospital. Upon arrival in the city, I observed two men fighting, one of whom had been seriously injured. I treated him for his injuries and at the same time talked to him about the Lord Jesus Christ. I then traveled two days, camping overnight, and arrived home without incident.

“Two weeks later I repeated my journey. Upon arriving in the city, I was approached by the young man I had treated. He told me that he had known I carried money and medicines. He said, ‘Some friends and I followed you into the jungle, knowing you would camp overnight. We planned to kill you and take your money and drugs.

“‘But just as we were about to jump your camp, we saw that you were surrounded by 26 armed guards.’

“At this I laughed and said that I was certainly all alone out in that jungle campsite. The young man pressed the point, however, and said, ‘No sir, I was not the only person to see the guards. My five friends also saw them, and we all counted them. It was because of those guards that we were afraid and left you alone.’

“At this point in the sermon, one of the men in the congregation jumped to his feet and interrupted the missionary and asked if he could tell him the exact day that this happened. The missionary told the congregation the date, and the man who interrupted told him this story:

“‘On the night of your incident in Africa, it was morning here and I was preparing to go play golf. I was about to putt when I felt the urge to pray for you.

“‘In fact, the urging of the Lord was so strong, I called men in this church to meet with me here in the sanctuary to pray for you.

“‘Would all of those men who met with me on that day stand up.’ The men who had met together to pray that day stood up. The missionary wasn't concerned with who they were; he was too busy counting how many men he saw. There were 26.”

This story is an incredible example of how the Spirit of the Lord moves in mysterious ways. If you ever hear such prodding, go along with it.

Nothing is ever hurt by prayer except the gates of hell. I encourage you to forward this to as many people as you know. If we all take it to heart, we can turn this world towards Christ once again. As the above true story clearly illustrates, “with God all things are possible” and more importantly, how God hears and answers the prayers of the faithful. After you read this, please pass it on and give GOD thanks for the beautiful gift of your faith, for the powerful gift of prayer, and for the many miracles He works in your own daily life—and then pass it on.

Have YOU ever felt the urge to pray for someone? [End quoting]

Don't ever give up on prayer when you need help—even if you can't see immediate results. I have many of my own personal experiences to prove prayer works!

The Horse Whisperer

With Monty Roberts

Editor's note: The following article is reprinted with permission of the author, Kathy Juline, from the October 1999 issue of Science Of Mind magazine (editorial offices: 3251 West Sixth Street, Los Angeles, CA 90020-5096; subscription information: 1-800-247-6463).

You do not have to be a "horse person" or even, generally, an "animal lover" to appreciate the kind of wisdom driving Monty Robert's truly en-Light-ened management philosophy—a point of view that even attracts large corporate clients his way. (If only those same corporations treated their public as Monty suggests they treat their employees.)

For those of you who DO feel a connection with the animal kingdom, there is no need to argue about the existence of an "intuitive link" between humans and animals, or between animals themselves. This "telepathic" undercurrent always exists, whether it is consciously recognized and cultivated or not. This is an extension of the "all is connected to all" concept which the Native Americans have been trying to get us to see for a long time.

The telepathic connection is very strong in those who are successful with any aspect of animal training or rehabilitation. It is the subtle, seemingly magical parameter which causes a "good" veterinarian or trainer to stand out among the crowd; it is also the magnetic pull which prompts the tiny child, clutching her juicy apple, to walk right up to the huge, 2000-pound Clydesdale (the horses pulling the Budweiser wagon) and offer the treat—which will be accepted with astonishing gentleness toward the little one.

Is there REALLY any mystery about why it is that the just-passing-by 10-year-old, with frog hanging out of his dirty overalls pocket, can coax the scared puppy out of the drain sewer while an entire fire department brigade (including their high-paid "animal psychologist" specialist) looks-on in wonder as the kid accomplishes what they could not?!

Where does this subject fit into the Larger Picture? Well, as the planetary frequency continues to increase, our ability to come into attunement with the animal kingdom (plants are a subject for another time) shall intensify. Just as the Higher Teachers have, in many past lessons, cautioned us about monitoring and refining the quality of our thoughts, due to their increasingly more powerful effects on ourselves and other people, the same is true—maybe moreso—with respect to our interactions with animals, with "all creatures great and small" as the old hymn goes which veterinarian-author "James Herriot" made so popular in his series of books about two decades ago.

Thus it becomes an important lesson for all of us to consider very carefully the gentle wisdom which Monty Roberts shares with us in the following interview. This advice not only can help us with our own interactions with the animal kingdom but, if considered in a more expansive way, can surely guide us into a more thoughtful general attitude toward—and more successful interactions with—others of that often cantankerous species called human!

OCTOBER, 1999 KATHY JULINE

A sense of the sacredness of all life is evident in the work of Monty Roberts, whose empathic understanding of horses has led him to develop compassionate methods of training them to accept a rider. His scientific approach to communicating with horses suggests a common connection between all life forms.

Roberts is a tireless advocate of nonviolence and trust as essential values for the world's future, not only with regard to treatment of horses, but for everyone, especially children. He is not a "mind reader", he insists, though he does communicate through specific body gestures and movements. But he does serve as a spiritual healer through his dedication to and practice of principles of cooperation, respect, and gentleness.

Monty Roberts, author of The Man Who Listens To Horses and his new book Shy Boy, grew up in Salinas, California, working with and loving horses. During his formative years he was on the road much of the time, showing horses professionally, competing in rodeos, and working in the motion picture business as a stunt double. Roberts holds degrees in Animal Husbandry, Biological Science, and Farm Management. He owns and operates, with his wife, Pat, an accomplished sculptor, The Flag Is Up Farms in California's Santa Ynez Valley, a world-class horse farm that he designed and built.

A real-life "horse-whisperer", he uses gentle methods of training horses, specializing in rehabilitating ones who have been mistreated. Roberts also teaches corporate clients how to apply the principles he uses in the corporate workplace to train managers. His clients include Disney, Xerox, GM, and AT&T. Roberts has received the highest honor that the American Society For The Prevention Of Cruelty To Animals can give, its Founder's Award.

Q: What was the pivotal factor that led to your developing a gentler way to train horses than the traditional methods?

A: My father, who managed an equestrian center during my childhood, taught me by example how not to treat animals.

His confrontational way of training horses was accepted at that time, but it struck me as being damaging to the horse's spirit as well as its body. "You hurt them first, or they'll hurt you" was my father's philosophy, both toward horses and his own children.

The cruelty which resulted from that philosophy instilled in me a lifelong commitment to practice nonviolence in working with horses. I refused to use the techniques designed to break their spirits and, all too often, even their bones. I knew there was a much gentler way.

The approach I eventually developed got its start from the many summers I spent alone in the high desert, where I would watch wild horses with my binoculars for hours at a time, patiently striving to understand the ways of the mustang. I felt intuitively that I had happened upon something very important.

I didn't realize then that what I was learning would affect my whole life, but I did know, even at the young age of thirteen, that these were very special beings, these wild horses, and they deserved to be treated with respect.

Q: Violence was a part of your own upbringing?

A: Yes, it was. I wrote about that in my book because my feeling is that, by bringing it out in the open, I may be able to help other families and other fathers. I couldn't help writing about it; it just rolled out; then my decision was whether or not to leave it in the book. I thought it needed to be brought into the open. But the main message of my work, and also of my book, is that there is a better way to treat horses than to hurt or frighten them into submission.

Q: When you listen to horses, what are you hearing?

A: It's a silent language that involves noticing subtle ear, eye, nose, and head movements. I have found that a horse's body language communicates in a very clear way. By paying attention to its gestures, I can respond with my own movements. Through these motions I establish rapport with horses.

They speak a silent grammar I call "Equus". This language makes use of the horse's whole body. For example, I especially recall a dun mare, clearly the matriarch of the herd, disciplining an unruly young colt who had been roughing up foals and mares. She squared up to him, her eyes on his eyes, her spine rigid, her head pointed like an arrow. He knew exactly what she meant. As far as three hundred yards from the herd, the outcast colt knew by her body position when he could return to the fold. She would be eyeing him straight-on in a way that predators do; but then, when he stopped misbehaving, she would angle her body in such a way that suggests forgiveness.

Q: Do these body signals comprise a universal language among horses?

A: I think so. It's my belief that this equine body language is genetically ingrained in the memory of all horses, and that we can make friends even with wild mustangs by mimicking their language. Learning the language of Equus has enabled me to transform any horse, no matter how primal it is, from a free-roaming steed into a trusting and cooperative mount, and to do so painlessly.

Q: Your emphasis is on doing this in a way that is humane and gentle, not cruel?

A: Absolutely. It's amazing how effective touch can be when there is an attitude of caring and respect. Too many horses have been mistreated during the training process, and they are afraid. They have learned the flight response to avoid pain.

The use of communication is a humane alternative to the harsh treatment of horses—and one that I would like to see serve as a model to lessen the abuse we often inflict on animals and our fellow humans. This applies not just to horses but to all creatures.

The cycle of violence in our society must stop. As someone who has both experienced and witnessed violence in my life, I feel strongly that we can accomplish nothing worthwhile through that approach.

If the trainer is nervous—or worse, cruel—this is conveyed to the horse and it reacts. Then, someone, either man or horse, ends up getting hurt. I want to see this cycle stopped.

Q: So, calling attention to and ending violence has been the primary emphasis of your work with horses?

A: Yes. My ultimate aim through the work I do is to leave the world a better place than I found it for both horses and people. The principal theme of my life is that violence is never the answer.

None of us is born with the right to say, "You must, or I will hurt you" to any creature—human or animal. This is why I have spent many years learning to persuade an unbroken horse, straight from the wild, to accept a saddle, bridle, and rider—all in less than thirty minutes.

This nonviolent use of communication, rather than force, is a process that avoids weeks of struggle between man and animal. It also eliminates the need for the often painful techniques used to subdue a horse's natural response to fear.

Unlike traditional methods of breaking horses, my approach involves using a special nonverbal language to establish a bond of trust and cooperation. The horse makes a voluntary decision on his own to accept the saddle, bridle, and rider. I call this "joining up" or "starting". I don't like to use words like "breaking" or "taming". These are traditional terms for a process that has frequently been quite harsh.

My way is gentle. It happens through a scientifically proven and effective means of communication. When the horse moves in a certain way, it means something specific, and that horse reads the response back to it, also in a very specific way.

Q: Do you believe a kind of connection happens between the horse and the person?

A: Definitely, but I don't think of the interaction as mystical in nature. I do feel, though, that there is something magical about it.

It's the magic of an undiscovered tongue—one that is primitive, precise, scientific, and easy to read. It's a universal language that uses body movement or signs in place of words. Humans have always been faced with a difficult challenge in our efforts to learn to communicate with animals. Understanding this primitive language seems to be a key factor in meeting that challenge.

When a horse voluntarily decides to work with the human, there is a rapport that is genuine and heartfelt. A conversation begins to happen when the horse becomes accustomed to the presence of the human and senses there is no threat.

A horse becomes nervous when alone, feeling especially vulnerable to predators, so it turns willingly toward the person in the pen with it, if there is some sign that the person can be trusted. This herd instinct is very powerful.

So, as long as a person is not afraid of horses and believes this method will work, anyone can do it.

Q: What do you look for in a horse to present to an audience when you are on tour?

A: I like to work with ones who are squarely in the normal range as I can find, so that the highest number of people in the audience can benefit from watching the technique. Also, I choose ones who reflect the kind of horse that are typically being raised in that geographical area.

It helps if I can get horses who demonstrate to the audience that they are raw, that they have never been ridden before. Geldings and colts work better than fillies.

In terms of remedial horses, I prefer not to work with ones who have been too beaten down, because they are already looking for a buddy and that doesn't allow me to demonstrate how the flight response is converted through trust.

Q: Your new book tells the story of how Shy Boy learned to trust you. Can you say a bit about that experience?

A: Shy Boy is a bay mustang I started to work with a couple of years ago, out in the open country. A film crew was there. We were demonstrating the joining-up technique. When the horse, who was very shy—in fact, we later named him Shy Boy—was first mounted, it was a very emotional moment for me. He stayed with us for nearly a year, then after being ridden in a roundup, he was released back into the wild, where the herd accepted him after all that time. The next day, though, he returned to our camp and allowed me to halter him. This is a good example of how mutual trust, once developed, is enduring.

Q: How have you applied your techniques in other contexts?

A: One way is that my wife, Pat, and I have taken in forty-seven foster children, most of whom came from dysfunctional homes. In addition, we raised the three who were born to us.

The way we disciplined all of them was to create together a consequence list. If a chore is not done, then there is an already-agreed-upon consequence that the child experiences. It's a mutual thing, rather than an act of domination by the parent, simply because the parent has the advantage of being stronger and bigger.

This approach has also proven to be very effective as a way for managers to train workers. Several major corporations have sent their employees to The Flag Is Up Farms to observe our join-up technique, which fosters cooperation and trust. The key thing, whether in parenting, penal systems, or in management of employees, is to create an environment in which people feel safe. This is the only way they can learn.

Q: So you have found applications in human organizations for the concepts you use in working with horses?

A: Yes, I have. This particular insight into the need to feel safe in order to learn came to me years ago at the school I attended. One of the nuns believed that there is no such thing as teaching, only learning. She felt that no one can push information into an unwilling brain.

The word “teach” connotes pushing information into someone, not causing that information to be learned by a student. Through their flight response, the horses are trying to tell us the same thing. To me they are saying to stop with all of the intimidation, to slow down and wait a minute, to request instead of demand.

The horse who performs best and relates well to people is the one who is completely free of fear. A frightened animal flees.

It’s the same with human beings. If we can break the chain of violence, there will be much more cooperation and communication in the world, and this is what creates peace.

But humans are still threatening one another, still using force and intimidation. I believe we’re ready to take the step toward trust, or I wouldn’t be getting such a favorable response to the work I’m doing. It is gratifying to feel that what I have achieved will continue to expand in future generations.

Q: What is the future direction of your work?

A: My vision now is for The Flag Is Up Farms to become a mecca for horse gentlers, where they will learn to work harmoniously with the horses and will pass along a body of knowledge to others.

As a youngster, I didn’t know about fight or flight, nonverbal communication, or any of that stuff. It was only after my work with horses that I put the scientific aspects together and came up with the technique of listening to and starting a horse rather than breaking it.

My dream is that, in the future, we won’t have to keep repeating the old ways. We are ready to pass beyond fear and cruelty and violence. And this applies to more than just horses. By helping people learn to listen to horses, I’m hopeful I will encourage them also to learn to listen to one another.

— Part V Of A Series — Native American Perspectives:

The Elders, Medicine People, And Warriors

10/20/99 RAY BILGER

The Native American Elders, or the Old Ones, are sometimes referred to as the Wisdomkeepers. They are the Grandfathers and Grandmothers who are the spiritual repositories of the sacred ways and natural wisdom going back thousands of years, and they live it. They share an understanding that all things are part of One totality which always was and always will be, also known as Wakan Tanka—which represents the sum total of All Things or All That Is.

The Great Spirit, or Grandfather, is well known to the Elders. It is the responsibility of the Elders to pass their wisdom on to the younger generations so that the wisdom of the sacred ways and teachings will continue into the future. They know that the Native peoples have a responsibility as the Guardians of the Land.

The true depth and scope of the Native wisdom is generally unknown, and much of what is known is not understood by the average person. Native wisdom is not just of the past. It is of each moment, even now, and alive like the mighty oak tree, or the tiniest flower. And this Native wisdom is not just for the Red man, it is for us all. As White Shield, a Southern Cheyenne (Arikara) has said:

[Quoting]

The color of the skin makes no difference. What is good and just for one is good and just for the other, and the Great Spirit made all men brothers. I have a Red skin, but my Grandfather was a White man. What does it matter? It is not the color of my skin that makes me good or bad.

[End quoting]

Being an Elder is a great responsibility. Some are a bit reluctant at first to accept everything that responsibility carries with it. Chief Mathew King, an Elder of the Lakotas, says:

[Quoting]

I’ve got [Chief] Red Cloud’s peace pipe. They gave me that when they made me a Chief.

I wouldn’t accept it in the beginning. He’s a great man. He made all those treaties.... He had a lot of powers....

The peace pipe is our only weapon. It’s our holy power. It’s God’s power. The pipe mediates between man and God. To receive the pipe, to receive God’s gift, you’ve got to be pure in your heart, mind, body, and soul. And never forget that, after the prayers, you’ve got to live that life, a life with God. That’s the hardest part....

Indian religion is as old as The Creator. In our way of life the Elders give spiritual direction. The wisdom of thousands of years flows through their lips. Others want to learn what our Elders know.... God made everything so simple.... We do what we please. The only law we obey is the Natural Law, God’s Law. We abide only by that.

[End quoting]

The reemergence of the Native ways at this time is also reflected in what the Elders have to say. They knew this would be happening, and now they are watching it take place. Ojibway Elder Eddie Benton-Banai speaks of the reawakening of awareness of the Native ways:

[Quoting]

A renaissance is taking place among Native American peoples. This renaissance is not of a material nature. It is a spiritual renaissance, a retrieving and reviving of our original covenant with The Creator. We are reaffirming our relationship and stewardship with our Mother, the Earth. We are inspired and directed to do this for our children and ourselves.... Therefore, it is up to those of us who have, in whatever measure, the teachings, philosophy, and traditions, including the rituals, to work for their revival and continuance.

The spiritual heritage of Native American people is here—it has not been extinguished. I believe the spiritual fire still burns and is beckoning for America—indeed, the world—to come closer, to listen, to learn, and to share in its warmth and comfort.

I, as a spiritual Indian man, am convinced that it is time to reach out to my White brothers and sisters and to share with whomever wishes to partake of what we, the indigenous people of this land, still have. It is time that the buckskin curtain be drawn back. It is time, I know it.

[End quoting]

From all the four directions this same inner feeling is emerging within all peoples of the Earth. It is emerging slower in some, faster in others. Cherokee Leader Heyoehkah Merrifield puts into perspective, from the past to the present, this emerging spiritual urge in us all:

[Quoting]

The Indigenous tribes were not surprised when the Black, White, and Yellow peoples arrived on their shores, because their prophecies had spoken of the coming of other races. They knew that the new tribes would overwhelm the ancient cultures of the land they called Turtle Island.... But it was said that, in our times, the spirit of the Indians would be born anew into all of the races that have gathered in this land. A portion of the different races of the rainbow colors will see that we are all one family. These Warriors of the Rainbow will bring with them a new time of living in harmony with our environment and with all peoples.

[End quoting]

So, the stage has been set and we see that this emerging Indian spirit and emerging awareness of the ancient Native ways and culture is a naturally unfolding event that is ongoing and will continue as the Great Spirit informs and in-fuses All of His creations under the Rainbow.

Chief Oren Lyons, Onondaga Elder, Faithkeeper of the Turtle Clan of the Onondaga Nation, and spokesman for the Six Nations Iroquois Confederacy in upstate New York, speaks here of the Natural Law, and how the Iroquois system of government works:

[Quoting]

You break man's law and you pay a fine or go to jail—maybe. That's the way it is with man's law. You can break it and still get around it. Maybe you won't get punished at all.... People figure they can get away with anything—and half the time they do. But they forget there's another law, The Creator's Law. We call it Natural Law....

Natural Law prevails everywhere. It supersedes man's law. If you violate it you get hit. There's no judge and jury, there's no lawyers or courts, you can't buy or dodge or beg your way out of it.... You have to respect life—all life, not just your own. The key word is "respect". Unless you respect the Earth, you destroy it. Unless you respect all life as much as your own, you become a destroyer....

We are made up of six nations. Each of us is equal. Each of us is sovereign. And we come together in a confederacy. Our business is peace, not war.... In issues of peace and...other major matters, we sit together and make our decisions. There is no single authority. We do not vote. We must reach a decision that everyone agrees with....

We have a central fire, and we have three sides to the fire. Our elder brothers, the Seneca and Mohawk, sit on one side of the fire. Our younger brothers, the Oneida, Cayuga, and Tuscarora, sit on the other side. And in front sit the Onondaga, the Keepers of the central fire. Each side of the fire has one speaker, and he speaks on behalf of those he sits with. A problem is presented from what we call "the well". From there it goes to each of the sides for discussion.

Each side agrees or disagrees among itself and sends its decision on the problem back to the well. There it is adjusted to conform with the decisions of the others. Then it's sent back out from the well again. This goes on until the issue is unanimously decided.

This is a very old Indian-style government. It requires complete unity of decision. It takes time. But the decisions, once made, are very firm. If there's a problem we can't seem to resolve, we reconsider it another time. If...there's still no unanimous decision, then the Tadodaho, or Presiding Chief [who is Onondaga]...will announce a compromise decision. But if the problem is still divisive, the Tadodaho will say "We will not address it at all", because there's no problem that's important enough to cause divisions among the people.

The Peacemaker who founded our confederacy told us that we must be of one mind. Those are good words to remember today—or any day.

We see here that the Iroquois have a comparatively advanced and very civilized form of government. This style government was in operation when the Europeans first came here. Do you think there was anything in Europe at the time to compare with the Iroquois government? And, again, who do you believe were the real savages?

For those who are not aware of the fact, The Constitution Of The United States Of America is modeled after the Iroquois Constitution. Can you imagine what kind of world we would have if our system of government was modeled on the one described above? If, for example, the people were not in unanimous agreement on developing and deploying nuclear weapons, then they would not be developed or deployed. The world would be a much different place than it is today. One thing is for certain: the Iroquois would never develop nuclear weapons, for such devices serve only to destroy what The Creator has made for all people to share.

The Lumbee Indians of North Carolina are the largest tribe east of the Mississippi, yet one of the least known. About 35,000 Lumbee live on their ancestral homelands in rural Robeson County, but have no reservation and lack federal recognition. Vernon Cooper is an Elder of the tribe, and also a healer. He shares here how he acquired this gift:

[Quoting]

My grandmother passed the healing power on to me from her deathbed in 1917. She said this ability was a gift that had been given to our family for four hundred years. She told me, "You will be the last one with that gift in our family.... You'll finish out the four hundred years." When my daughter was born, I prayed the prophecy would be changed, that she could become a healer, too. But it wasn't to be....

The gift my grandmother passed on is diagnosing and healing by touch, by "laying on of hands".... If the patient has faith, the fever'll come right out, right into my hands. I can feel the heat in my fingers. Sometimes the skin peels right off my hands. I can feel the patient's pain like an electric shock....

I just wasn't cut out for the age we're living in. Everybody's hurrying but nobody's going anywhere. People aren't living, they're only existing. They're growing away from spiritual realities.

These days people seek knowledge, not wisdom. Knowledge is of the past; wisdom is of the future.... People need to wake up.... We can't keep ruining the Earth and poisoning it and think we can get away with it. Certain destruction is going to hit one of these days. We're on the verge of a change such as has never been before. God is going to intervene.

Traditionally, medicine people and medicine societies have always been at the center of a tribe. Before crops were planted, proper prayers and medicine were made for success, and prayers and ceremonies of thanksgiving were done for bountiful harvests. Medicine power has been used to make rain, for success in hunting, and for helping and healing the people. In every major undertaking of the tribe, the medicine was first consulted.

In the Native American way, medicine can mean many different things. It does not mean some pills you might get from a White man's doctor. Medicine might be an eagle feather, a sprig of white sage, a bear's claw, a sacred stone, or any one of a thousand things that may help to facilitate transmitting the power being sought for the purpose at hand.

The knowledge about medicine may come through dreams, visions, prayers, or from herbal knowledge. But basic to any understanding of what medicine is, or what it means, is the understanding that all power to heal, to make rain, or to do whatever it may be, comes from The Great Spirit, The Creator of All Things. We, as individuals, can do nothing without that power, but with it we can move mountains.

Lame Deer, the Lakota Holy Man, has said that "being a medicine man, more than anything else, is a state of mind, a way of looking at and understanding this Earth, a sense of what it is all about". When we use the term "medicine man" here, we need to remember that what is being said also applies to a medicine woman.

Let us hear what Rolling Thunder, the Shoshone medicine man (whom we have heard from in previous segments of this series), has to say about the medicine and being a medicine man:

[Quoting]

In our way, a person trains for the medicine for twenty to thirty years before he even starts to practice.... The first requirement for healing is compassion for people, and then comes understanding.... Understanding means that you can actually see into the person to determine what is bothering them, and that you can come up with some answers real fast....

The rule for medicine men is to never go beyond what they know, to be guided by their own wisdom, and to never do anything out of ego or pushiness. I act only as an agent for the Great Spirit; the power comes from the spirit world. We medicine men are just helpers, you might say. I recognize that many people need to be guided, and that's all I am, actually—a guide or maybe a teacher. If we medicine men are chosen to be an instrument for Great Spirit's power—in healing, prophecy, or other tasks—then that's all we're supposed to do. We should not take on any authority that we are not delegated....

A medicine man must choose wisely in terms of who to doctor. If I doctor or help someone, and they have not earned it, I will pay a price. If this person goes out and commits another wrong, then I am responsible, and it works back on me.... In other words, evil spirits can get into a person because they are accepted or welcomed in...and the bad spirits have established themselves in the person.... Therefore, there are some people no medicine man will touch. The final judgment to help someone is up to the medicine man alone, and he looks into it very carefully.... What's happening in the body isn't the main problem, so true healing requires looking at more than the body....

No matter how much power you have, you can't force healing. All factors have to come together at the right place and time.... What is needed most in healing work is humility before the power of the Great Spirit. I hear some people refer to the healing power as "my power", but all power comes from The Great Spirit. That's the reason I'm very careful about making any claims, and that's why I tell people I don't do anything....

For a healing, one must bring together the spiritual as well as the physical. All things become one.... We can see the sickness in some people by the colors [aura] around them. The colors around a person who is sick or full of evil thoughts will be black, gray, or a sickly green... My medicine generally comes from herbs.... Plants are helpers and channels for people who are afflicted and need to get well....

I sometimes also ask the stars or the Sun to help me, or I may call on the great medicine men and tribal chiefs of the past.... Sometimes I use songs. They come to me and some of them are very ancient.... I use animal and bird helpers in my healings. The eagle feather has a lot of power.... We sometimes use healing stones that are usually given to us by medicine people.... Prayer can be used to achieve incredible results....

I'd also like to say a word about shapeshifting and making yourself invisible. These things are used in an emergency and for a good purpose. They are never to be used for show or greed, nor should they be used too frequently. I remember a time during the Wounded Knee situation when they were rounding up Indians and throwing us in jail for no good reason. I was with a group of Indians in a parked car. A policeman was coming down the street looking into every car, but when he came to the one we were in, he looked in, shone his flashlight around, but he didn't see us. He just walked right on by and left us in peace.... Doing these things frequently is not a good idea....

I like to test myself once in a while. In other words, if I get a piece of fruit that's green and not ripe, I can hold it in my hands a few minutes, after I get used to it, and the fruit will ripen while I hold it. The fruit will pass from green to ripe within two or three minutes. I don't think that's any big deal....

If a person misuses the medicine power, they and anyone around them are going to suffer. To choose good over evil is the key. And if a person has been living right, the right Guidance will be provided for you. So it is that medicine men don't want to control anyone, and we won't heal people or use the medicine power to make people do anything against their will....

The healing way is a circle. I have tried to explain a few things among many to show what is possible in the healing way.

The Untold History Of America

by Ray Bilger

This book shatters the image that has traditionally been portrayed as American History, by exposing the high-level corruption that passes for business as usual in the Halls of Congress, the White House and throughout our entire Judicial system.

The Untold History Of America* was written for the specific purpose of providing a high school textbook for all American schools that would educate students about the real nature of our national situation. With a clear understanding of things as they exist in reality, students will then be in a much better position to go on in life and do something to correct our current downhill course.

This book is for those who want to know why America is the way it is today, where we went wrong, who are the responsible parties, and what we can do to bring back the American Dream our forefathers and mothers fought so hard to establish and gave their very lives to defend.

Special emphasis is placed throughout the book on the original inhabitants of America, the Native Americans. They lived for thousands of years on this continent in complete harmony and balance with the Earth. With their help we may yet be able to turn things around so that our tomorrows will be something we will all be honored to pass on to the children who are our future generations.

The first 16 parts of Ray Bilger's ongoing research are compiled into the book:

Although we see here that shapeshifting and making oneself invisible have long been used by medicine people for good purposes, regular readers of The SPECTRUM will probably be aware that these things can also be used for evil as well. By choosing good over evil, one can avoid unnecessary consequences.

There have been many great Indian warriors throughout history, but it does not require having to kill anyone. The famous Sioux warrior, Chief Crazy Horse, did happen to be a man-killer. Part of his medicine was that "he kept a sacred pebble behind his ear which made him bulletproof". He also wore the herb called red grass as part of his special medicine.

Let us consult Rolling Thunder again on what it means to be a warrior:

[Quoting]

I can tell you that being a warrior does not necessarily mean someone who has killed. A warrior, in our ways, doesn't necessarily have to be someone crossing the ocean to kill somebody they don't know, dropping a bomb on somebody, or defoliating Nature. A warrior is somebody who can stand up if necessary and die for his people and his family, or take a bullet in the back in order that others might live. There are many who did. A warrior is a man who believes in the sovereignty of the Great Spirit and stands on his own two feet.

[End quoting]

Thus we see that a warrior does not mean someone who makes war, but is someone who is brave and courageous in the face of adversity. Let us close this segment with part of an address made by Chief Oren Lyons to the Non-Governmental Organizations of the United Nations, at Geneva, Switzerland in 1977:

[Quoting]

I do not see a delegation for the four-footed. I see no seat for the eagles. We forgot and we consider ourselves superior. But we are, after all, a mere part of The Creation. And we must consider to understand where we are. And we stand somewhere between the mountain and the ant. Somewhere, and only there, as part and parcel of The Creation.

[End quoting]

We will continue in the next segment with a further study of the ongoing struggles the Native peoples are dealing with today to seek recognition and their rightful place among our family of nations.

When I reflect upon the number of disagreeable people who I know have gone to a better world, I am moved to lead a different life.

From The Caterpillar To The Butterfly

10/29/99 SOLTEC

Good afternoon, my friend. It is I, Ceres Anthonious Soltec, come in the Light of THE One Light—Creator Source. Be at peace and know that you and the Lighted ones who these messages are written for are dearly loved by we of the Messengers of The One Light—Creator God.

Many who are attentive to planetary activity are noting the greatly increased earthquake activity upon your orb at this time and are asking for insight concerning same. We have discussed in many past lessons the scientific aspects of what is now ramping up. We gave you clues and now the events are playing out in your physical arena. It is indeed worth noting the recent greatly increased earthquake activity along ALL the major fault lines, especially ones that have appeared rather dormant over the last 12-24 month period. As we have said before, watch for the close correlation between increased volcanic activity (which is also happening) and the movements along fault lines. Mt. Etna has been erupting and you have had recent significant activity along the New Madrid fault. Please be attentive to the clues.

At this time it is much more important that we address the matter from the point of view of your spiritual nature. We have done so before now; however, it is beneficial to both review and expand upon this spiritual aspect which your Native American brothers and sisters would rightly consider of central importance to achieving the necessary balance between the "giving out" of your Earth Mother to you and the "giving back" of you ones in appreciation to her.

Your planet is currently in a constant state of adjustment as she continues to "acclimatize" to the higher etheric frequencies of the Light that is continuing to bathe your orb. These energies are of a high, pure vibration that would most accurately be described as Love. Please see that I use this term with a capital "L" so that you may have a distinction between the personal perception of what I will call physical love and a higher, non-judgmental Love that gives forth its energy to ALL ones regardless of their past actions, background, beliefs, or prejudices.

As your planet continually strives for a sense of equilibrium, she is finding it quite necessary to heal herself. This healing is done first and foremost through Love. There are various areas of your world, which have amassed a significant amount of negativity, and which are in great need for the balancing of energy. Much like you ones would swat a mosquito that is causing you discomfort, so too shall your planetary orb be "swatting" and "scratching" and "itching" those areas which lag behind in their otherwise natural upward shift in frequency.

We cannot urge you enough to send forth the highest concept of Love (Light) to your planet, as well as to any whom you come into contact with. Become an example for others to follow, for as sure as night follows day in your current celestial cycles, so too shall the energy you send out come back to you, amplified many times over.

You will find that your example will be most effective and helpful to your fellow travelers when there is synchronization between your heart and your head (emotional and analytical). This will manifest in the physical as one whose actions are consistent with their words.

Do you speak to others of the importance of being prepared with food and water supplies while you yourself have not yet done so? In your current environment, you will find that your actions will do as much (or even more) to assist (teach) as do words spoken.

Do you send prayers of appreciation to your Earth Mother for the living environment she sustains despite so much man-generated abuse? Do you send out prayers of love and protection to a select few ones, or do you pray for the stranger who you have not yet met who may one day be helping you in some significant manner, such as helping you to dig out a loved one from the rubble after an earthquake?

The point here is to illustrate for you that it is one thing to have knowledge; it is quite another thing to apply, through action, the UNDERSTANDING of this knowledge. Mother Earth is a schoolroom and you honor her gift of this environment by APPLICATION of what you have learned.

All of you ones reading this are, to some degree, trying to figure out just exactly what is your purpose in this life experience. Though there are very individualized choices and reasons for being here, there are common threads of purpose that run through each and every one of you.

You each are desiring, to varying degrees, to learn, grow, and pass along your experience and knowledge to others. You want to help.

There is an inner sense of searching that causes a signal to be generated within your energy field. This signal attracts to you that which will help you to build a foundation of experience and knowledge which will then subsequently lead you to a greater perception and awareness of what IS.

These experiences are circular in nature in that they are without end; with each apparent ending there is always a new beginning. In actuality, a tightly wound spiral would provide a more accurate model with which to conceptualize a more accurate picture, with each ring of the spiral touching completely the ones that come before.

Each new experience is a result of the accumulation of all prior experience, and thus is connected to same. All future experience is being molded in your present, and thus there become infinite potentials and possibilities for each and every one of you.

However, none of this exquisite learning is possible without the cooperation of Mother Earth in providing much of this learning environment. Your own forward growth at this time is closely connected with acknowledging this relationship with her.

As with all learning, it is ultimately a personal matter that comes from within. If you find yourself waiting upon another for any reason, then we would suggest that you may be waiting a very long time. You are each responsible as individuals for your own growth and understanding and subsequent application of Knowledge.

If you are consciously unwilling to take responsibility for your growth and knowledge, you will likely find that you will be creating repetitive experiences (most often expressed as boredom) until you do learn the lessons that you have come to the planet Earth schoolroom to learn. The best teachers are always the best students. The greater your desire is to help another (including your Earth Mother), the greater will be your learning and subsequent opportunities for sharing what you have to offer.

You each are quite capable of going within to connect for yourself and communing with your Higher Guidance from Lighted Source. Some call this process meditation.

You are Creator manifest! You each are connected to one another through this single One Source. You have been granted the free will to choose to ignore and deny this Connection if that be your desire. However, it does not change the Higher Reality of the situation, and thus such a chosen path will result in self-imposed (through free-will choice) limitations to the growth that you can achieve, for beyond a certain point there will be complete recognition of unity, awareness, and acceptance of the Infinite One Source that permeates ALL dimensions—well beyond what you ones currently recognize as reality.

Your planetary orb is an entity not unlike yourself—in fact, exactly like yourself in that ALL are One. She, like you, is self aware. She has consciousness and makes choices. She has emotions and gives forth telepathic communications. She seeks to know and understand more fully this interconnectedness that brings her to this awareness of the condition she is now in.

Her immediate “parent” would be the fiery orb you call the Sun. She rightfully looks to this one for guidance, acknowledging the nurturing energy that this one is continually sending forth, both in the form of what we will call physically observable light, and the Higher Vibrations of Light that we have described earlier as Love.

She also seeks the Guidance of Creator Source and has a deeply spiritual desire to serve all aspects of The Creation. She is a magnificently beautiful being who continually gives in a selfless manner, but so too is she going through a very natural transformation not unlike a caterpillar into a butterfly.

This transformation is a graduation that she has already earned and completed. The transformation is a relatively slow process from the point of view of your third-dimensional compression and your current perception of time. However, in the larger, never ending cycles and infinite journeys of the soul, it is in the twinkling of an eye that this all takes place.

You ones are privileged to be part of this grand planetary experience. However, for the masses on your planet, this experience will not be appreciated fully at this time. For the majority of you ones who have been drawn to this type of message, you will find that you too are in a transformation process and you are beginning to come into a greater, conscious understanding of the nature of your role in this experience as well as of the truly intimate nature of your relationship with great Mother Earth. Remember, please, our past lessons: Your individual energy fields are in constant overlap with the energy field of your planet, and thus the relationship IS truly intimate—whether you sense it or not.

Perhaps the greatest opportunity the third-dimensional experience provides to you ones is the compressive illusion of time. Your present environment provides conditions which slow down the vibrations of Light and Knowledge enough so that you can have the opportunity to appreciate and explore all of the infinitely subtle clues that give you insight into the awesome infinite potentials of the One Whole, of which you are a part and are seeking to understand more fully. Your Earth Mother plays a vital role as she facilitates this grand experience for you.

Seek and you shall find. Ask and it will be given. Your desire is what summons forth the Light (answers).

We of the Higher Realms are honor-bound and duty-bound to respect your free will. This means that we will not interfere with your lives and we will not offer that which will interfere with your individual choices. However, when you ASK for assistance through the acknowledgment of Higher Source, we of the Lighted Realms will ALWAYS send forth an answer.

If the request is purely for personal gain, then you are likely to receive “assistance” from those ones whom you would call dark energies. When you call for assistance that mostly involves the desire to be of assistance to others, you will always be answered by the Lighted Brotherhood in Service to Creator Source.

We ask that you ones be thoughtful in your requests. Go within and look back upon those times in your life of happiness and feelings of satisfaction, no matter how large or small. Isolate for yourself the common thread that binds these events together.

Most of you will find that your greatest satisfaction, sense of worth, and subsequent happiness comes from those times when you have freely given assistance to others.

Whether it be a shoulder to cry upon, or a helping hand to someone in need, you will always find GIVING to be the common general thread for satisfaction. Can you expand that picture to an appreciation of the constantly freely giving nature of Mother Earth?

The emotions of happiness, satisfaction, and sense of self worth all come to you in a response from your Higher Self. This communication is letting you know that you are indeed on a most productive path—one which is in alignment with why it is that you have chosen to come into the physical experience in the first place.

We who come to you in Service to Creator Source, and who have learned through experience the Wisdom of freely serving His Will, do so out of great Love, Compassion, and Understanding of the growth process you are now experiencing. We are not greater than you, nor are we lesser; we simply have learned, through the acquiring and responsible application of Knowledge, that serving others and sending forth Love is the most rewarding and satisfying path that leads to unlimited growth and understanding.

We offer the equivalent message to your planetary orb in the form of telepathic impressions and through the act of sending forth Light and Love to her—and to all life on your planet, in your solar system, the many galaxies, and everything you can possibly conceive of as the “known” universe.

You may be asking the question (as my scribe just did) of why we choose, at this time, to place such a focus upon the spiritual aspect of the Lighted entity which is your Mother Earth. This is partly because many of the ones experiencing on your planet at this time were on Mars—and some from Maldek (the remnants of which makes up your asteroid belt)—during similar learning experiences as those in which you now find yourselves. During those past experiences there was, for the most part, a disregard for the planetary entity’s well being, let alone an appreciation of the idea of Loving and respecting the planetary entity.

At this time there are many of you who are in need of healing from these past indiscretions in personal choice. Remembering that there should be given utmost respect and Love towards the planetary entity and ALL of its inhabitants is the key to facilitating this healing. Please know that there are ones on your orb who, if given the opportunity, would render your entire planet a desolate wasteland (much the way Mars was left) or blow it to pieces (as happened to Maldek).

We urge you all to look to the examples given forth herein, and look for the subtle implications of each. We cannot learn on your behalf and it is far more productive for you to play an active role in finding your own answers, rather than waiting for another to tell you what to do or when to do it. If you await upon another for your “instructions”, then you have become a puppet to some extent to the one upon whom you wait.

AGAIN: YOU EACH ARE CREATOR MANIFEST! Use what Creator Source has uniquely bestowed upon you, and exploit it for the good of ALL Creation. Please be understanding and supportive of Mother Earth as Earth-changes continue to transform the “caterpillar” into a magnificently beautiful new “butterfly” of The Creation.

I am Ceres Anthonious “Toniose” Soltec. I am Geophysical Commander of this Earth Transition Project through which many are experiencing a grand awakening and renewal along with Mother Earth. I come in Lighted Service to Creator Source—THE One Light—God-Aton. I leave you all in Light and with appreciation for the various roles you are fulfilling at this time. Please share these messages with anyone who you feel may find value herein. Salu.

Wisdom Of The Rays: The Masters Teach

The expansive yet compassionate nature of the messages delivered in WISDOM OF THE RAYS: The Masters Teach not only challenges those already firmly committed upon the spiritual path, but also provides a serious first step to help ones who are just awakening to (and inquiring about) the magnificent Spiritual Transformation now sensed by many to be in progress upon this planet.

Preface & Introduction by
(400 pages + 4 color photos)

“Our Elder Brothers from the Higher Realms of Creation are attempting to communicate with ALL of us at this time. Why? Take a look around you. The old ways of doing things aren’t working. Our planet is entering a time of massive, turbulent change and renewal. To put it bluntly: we NEED help! And that’s where this book comes into the picture. Yes, eventually ‘the Phoenix will arise from the ashes’ after this Great Cleansing process, but the ride could be quite a bumpy one, especially for those ill-prepared for what is to happen.

“Just how we choose to deal with such change is THE question each of us must confront. Yet confusion swirls everywhere upon Earth at this time. And restless searchers cry out for that which may help them cope with these truly challenging times ahead. Thus these messages courtesy of our most loving Elder Brothers from the Higher Realms of Creation who are but further along the same spiritual path we all must eventually walk.”

interpret this prophecy; but that only lends richness to the overall interest of the information—like interpreting a poem—and puts the job onto YOU to discern for yourself whatever you may derive from what I am about to share. Without question, however, there is much food for thought.

Why would I be presenting information at this time about the ancient Mayan calendar, and what is the relevance to these transitional times in which we find ourselves? The Mayan calendar becomes a kind of a cornerstone to many prophetic remarks about this current planetary transition time and there is a certain kind of curiosity generated because of this cornerstone role it seems to play.

After reading materials presented by David Wilcock, and after reading, listening to, and speaking with Native American Robert Ghost Wolf, it becomes very clear that the Mayan calendar and the Mayan prophecies are IMMEDIATELY relevant to this very specific time in history. We are living through the period of the Seven Thunders. It is a time of planetary transition on an unprecedented scale, a time of dimensional change, spiritual turmoil, self-examination and metamorphosis, as well as a time for separating the wheat from the chaff. It is a time of upheavals, geophysical as well as personal. It is a time of cleansing and honesty in confrontation and exposure of longstanding lies—both on a personal level and on a much larger planetary scale.

In conjunction with all of this “cleansing” activity, there is a great thirst for Truth. In that context the full extent and urgency of this information becomes readily apparent as you read on.

As stated in the last edition of The SPECTRUM, in the article titled “Sunspot Cycles: Their Profound Effect On Man & Planet Earth”, the great solar cycle is upon us, and this coincides directly with Mayan prophecy.

With this in mind, I have chosen to present a compilation from several sources on the subject, including another chapter from David Wilcock’s book Convergence, titled “The Amazing Synchronicity of Chatelain’s Mayan Calendar”.

Further, as a result of a very favorable face-to-face conversation I have recently had with Robert Ghost Wolf (who was well aware of and highly complimentary toward the teaching mission of The SPECTRUM), I hope to speak directly with him about these and other urgent matters in an upcoming interview for SPECTRUM readers. In the meantime, I am presenting some relevant materials from his web site (which may be found at: www.wolfledge.org) and is reprinted here with generous permission.

To begin our plunge into this subject, however, as much needed background, let me first share with you an article written by John Major Jenkins back in 1995, also reprinted with permission.

Mayan Cosmogenesis: Cosmic Mother Gives Birth

April, 1995 JOHN MAJOR JENKINS

INTRODUCTION

In recent years, several books have been published in England with, especially in the U.K., a good deal of success. Robert Bauval and Adrian Gilbert wrote The Orion Mystery (1992) and, in addition to becoming brief media celebs, turned Egyptology on its head. Graham Hancock produced Fingerprints Of The Gods (1995) and injected some old ideas about Atlantis rising with some intriguing new perspectives. Most recently, Adrian Gilbert with Maurice Cotterell published the disappointing Mayan Prophecies which presumed to tell us why cataclysm will occur in A.D. 2012.

Hancock and Bauval are presently working together on another book about Egypt. Gilbert, Bauval, Cotterell, and Hancock pursue the often unrewarding path of independent research, striving to present compelling new ideas which tenured academics are too thick-skulled to acknowledge. Like England’s other Fab Four, these independent researchers say we want a revolution, and offer us one. They have all at some point struggled to identify what is so astronomically special about the opening of the new millennium. They’ve discussed sunspots and pole shifts, magnetic field reversals and the movements of Orion, but their solutions are in disagreement and are generally unsatisfying. They have all narrowly missed finding the “key”.

As pin-pointed by the end-date of the Mayan calendar, the turn of our millennium is attended by a rare celestial alignment between the Sun and our galaxy, one that has been slowly converging for thousands of years. The winter solstice Sun will align with the Milky Way in A.D. 2012. Mountain Astrologer published my article on this topic in their December 1994 issue. Since then, I’ve written a 110-page monograph detailing evidence for my thesis.

Without mincing words, I feel that this simple alignment is the answer which all those writers sought. The irony, perhaps, is that the impending solstice-galaxy alignment was first mentioned back in 1969 in Giorgio de Santillana and Hertha von Dechend’s groundbreaking book Hamlet’s Mill. My own research starts where they left off. It has taken 25 years to clarify how the Mayans are involved in all this and to understand how the alignment marks the beginning of a new precessional cycle in humanity’s spiritual and cultural work.

The alignment which I believe is so critical to understanding Mayan creation mythology as well as our own impending shift also has the benefit of being a straightforward fact of astronomy; it’s not the product of a labyrinth of convoluted speculations. What I offer is a synthesis of two simple facts: the astronomical alignment itself (which targets the opening of the new millennium) and the established end-date of the Mayan calendar in A.D. 2012.

The ancient Mayans apparently understood that the future alignment would have apocalyptic effects, and designed their World Age mythology to remind us of something essential. Myth, legend, or ancient message, whatever it is, clearly, it means we must all remember where we come from, where everything comes from: Mother.

What follows is a brief synopsis of the author’s research into the Mayan calendar and Mayan creation mythology. An exciting breakthrough is described which is so basic, yet so startling, that many Mayan scholars have thus far refused to acknowledge it.

John Major Jenkins is an independent student of Mayan Time. He is the author of articles for Mountain Astrologer, Iron Feather Journal, Zeitgeist, Scenezine, World Explorer Magazine, The Borderlands Journal, and five books on Mayan cosmology including Tzolkin: Visionary Perspectives And Calendar Studies (1994) and the forthcoming The Center Of Mayan Time (1995).

We are living today in the Mayan end times. The Great Cycle of the Mayan Long Count calendar ends on the winter solstice of 2012 A.D., less than 18 years from now. Following Mayan concepts of cyclic time and World Age transitions, this is as much about beginnings as endings. In fact, it was considered by the ancient Mayans to signify the creation of a New World Age.

END OF THE MAYAN GREAT CYCLE:
DECEMBER 21, 2012 A.D.

Scholars today are recognizing that Mayan mythology is intimately related to the celestial movements of stars, the Milky Way, and certain constellations. The sources of Mayan mythology are found in the sky, and the timetable of Creation Day is pinpointed by the end date of the Mayan Great Cycle. My research into the nature of this date reveals that a rare celestial alignment culminates on it. Generally speaking, what occurs is an alignment between the galactic and solar planes. Specifically, the winter solstice Sun will conjunct the Milky Way, which is the edge of our spinning galaxy as viewed from Earth. Furthermore, the place where the Sun meets the Milky Way is where the “dark-rift” in the Milky Way is—a black ridge along the Milky Way caused by interstellar dust clouds (see diagram 1). This is a feature of the Milky Way anyone can see on a clear midsummer’s night, away from the light pollution of industrial society.

At dawn on the winter solstice of A.D. 2012, the Sun will be right in this dark-rift, and the orientation is such that the Milky Way rims the horizon at all points around. Thus, the Milky Way “sits” on the Earth, touching it at all points around, opening up the cosmic sky portal. The galactic and solar planes are thus aligned. “Sky portal” is just a term to describe the “opened sky” scenario apparent when the Milky Way rims the horizon. This is not to be confused with the “dark-rift” itself.

In Mayan myth, the winter solstice Sun corresponds to the deity One Hunahpu, also known as First Father. The Mayan Sacred Book, the Popol Vuh, is all about setting the stage so that the Hero Twins’ father (One Hunahpu) can be reborn, thus beginning a new World Age. The dark rift has many mythic identities: it is the Black Road; it is the xibalba be (the Road to the Underworld); it is a crevice in the branches of the cosmic tree (the Milky Way); it is the mouth of the Cosmic Monster (often portrayed as a frog, jaguar, or snake with tree-like features); it is the birth canal of the Cosmic Mother. Overall, the dark-rift is best understood as the birth canal of the Cosmic Mother, who we may call First Mother, to complement First Father.

In this way we can trace how these various metaphors are found in Mayan Creation Mythology. And the date of this alignment is, again, the end date of the 13-baktun Great Cycle—a cycle of approximately 5125 years. This all suggests that the ancient Mayans were aware of the impending alignment and considered it to be of such importance to be a major transition point, the Creation of a New World Age. In mythological terms, this event is about the union of First Father with First Mother or, more accurately, the birth of First Father (the winter solstice Sun—the New World Age ruler) from First Mother (the dark-rift in the Milky Way). The headline appropriate for the upcoming event is:

“COSMIC MOTHER GIVES BIRTH TO THE FIRST GOD” WORLD AGES: PRECESSION OF THE STELLAR FRAME

The slow process by which the winter solstice Sun comes to conjoin the dark-rift in the Milky Way is a function of a phenomenon known as the precession of the equinoxes. This involves the slow wobbling of the Earth’s axis, which causes the stellar frame to slowly shift. To observers on Earth, it causes the position of the winter solstice Sun to slowly move in relation to celestial background features such as the Milky Way. A full cycle is completed in roughly 26,000 years. Approximately 2100 years ago, when both the Long Count calendar and the Popol Vuh were devised by the early Mayans, the dark-rift in the Milky Way could be observed some 30 degrees above the dawning winter solstice Sun (see diagram 2).

When these early skywatchers discovered precession, they realized that with every winter solstice the cosmic birth canal was moving closer and closer to the dawning Sun. The winter solstice Sun was called the First Sun, the First Lord or First Father, because it is the first day of the year, the beginning of the Sun’s annual rebirth into increasing daylight. They calibrated the process, and fixed their Creation Mythology to the future alignment as described.

Monuments from the early Mayan site of Izapa clearly portray, by way of mythological iconography, the anticipated astronomical alignment of the Long Count end date (see diagram 3). In this way, the Long Count calendar and Popol Vuh Creation Mythology (portrayed on Izapan monuments and elsewhere) work together to describe the future astronomical alignment. Furthermore, scholars believe that Izapa, an unassuming early-Mayan cultural center near the Guatemalan border in Mexico, is where both the Long Count calendar and the Popol Vuh myth originate.

ANCIENT COSMOLOGY POINTS TO OUR IMMEDIATE FUTURE

Based upon these simple facts, ancient skywatchers in Mesoamerica were apparently aware of a subtle celestial process, the precession of the equinoxes. Knowledge of that process, and the fact that a major alignment in that process culminates at the end of their Great Cycle, strongly suggest a cosmological understanding which modern scholars have yet to explore. While today the conjunction is hidden behind the rays of the solstice Sun, to early skywatchers the future convergence would have been the focus of intense calendar calculations and eschatological myth-making. As it says in the Popol Vuh: “by sheer genius, by sheer acuity, they got it done.”

People interested today in the scope of ancient Mesoamerican knowledge inescapably must incorporate these recent findings into their thoughts. In doing so, we can better appreciate the profound scale of the cosmological understanding possessed by ancient New World cultures, to which millions of present-day Indians in Middle America are heir.

THE FEVER:
MILLENNIAL OR MAYAN?

Understanding this aspect of Mayan cosmogenesis may also help us understand our own impending millennial milestone. What is going on in the world today? Is this alignment having some kind of influence? The precession of the equinoxes is, after all, primarily an Earth rhythm. Whether we call it Mayan or millennial, we are living today in the shadows of a rare celestial juncture which parallels the increasing interest in “New World Orders”, “post-historic” thinking, and a major shift in world economic structure and what it means to be human. The Mayan myth seems to remind us that all life springs from the Great Mother. The transformation of cosmic recreation is already occurring. Perhaps we should look closely at this celestial alignment, imagine its meanings, and determine what this transformational shift means for future humanity. For the ancient Mayans, on the far-future Creation Day which for us arrives soon, First Mother and First Father join forces to engender a New World Age.

Introducing Robert Ghost Wolf

Before we launch into our presentation of Robert Ghost Wolf's critical and urgent information, it becomes important to know who this man is, where he has traveled (physically and spiritually), and what his nature has become. With this in mind, let's move into a world that will be unfamiliar to many, yet will also feel like home to those who have walked this journey toward Truth and Understanding and Service to The One Light. The following is an introduction to a most unique man.

ROBERT GHOST WOLF

We would like to take this opportunity to introduce you to Robert Ghost Wolf. Perhaps we could say re-introduce you to Robert Ghost Wolf. Ghost Wolf from 1990-96 has been a journalist and publisher of the Ramtha material, while with Indelible Ink. He co-published UFO's And The Nature Of Reality, Last Waltz Of The Tyrants, and Financial Freedom which are now enjoying the success of being published in five languages, and distributed world wide.

Robert is an accomplished artist and author who enjoys a unique passion for life and possesses many gifts that have earned him recognition, with many indigenous tribes in both North and South America, as a spiritual healer and ceremonial leader. He is also recognized as a leading archaeologist, with many discoveries to his credit, including the discovery of a Sphinx in Colorado, and the discovery of the now famous Miami Circle, where he and Richard Hoagland brought the eyes of the world and of the nation to what is now being paraphrased as "The American Stonehenge" and were even mentioned in the United Nations special report on the importance of preserving Sacred Sites. He is the founder of Holding Sacred Ground, an organization dedicated to the preservation of ancient sites and indigenous cultures around the world.

Currently Robert is in the midst of uncovering an incredible find in the Central US which by all indications is a "hall of records" showing evidence of many civilizations that were here before the current Native American tribes, and perhaps before recorded history as we have been told. Much of the evidence indicates that they have discovered a library of the "Lost Tribes"—as Robert says this find is going to change everything we thought we knew.

Robert, being a multi-faceted man, continues his journalistic career publishing the Wolf Report, an international bi-monthly newspaper publication whose circulation spans three continents.

Spiritual leaders, naturopathic healers, cutting-edge scientists, and forward-thinking authors, as well as indigenous elders from the Hopi to the Mayans who are keepers of the prophecies, share their information on intimate levels in the Wolf Report. Bringing subscribers in touch with real people, the information is brought from authors living on the front-lines of today's global concerns who believe there is a way for a better life for all of us upon planet Earth.

The first book which is based upon his personal work is entitled Last Cry, Native American Prophecies, Tales Of The End Times and is an international best seller. His second book Winds Of Change quickly followed the success of Last Cry with the revealing of the Seven Thunders prophecies which was highly controversial and placed him on the leading edge of prophetic visionaries which are now being presented in the mainstream media presentations. His third and newest book is Through The Eye Of The Shaman—yet another paradigm buster where he shares many of the secrets of the ancient masters. The amazing accuracy with his predictions only serve to complement the knowledge he has been given while working intimately with indigenous leaders around the world who have recognized his special gifts for over twenty years running, and still going strong.

Robert continues to be a featured guest on many national television shows including NBC's Ancient Prophecies, Fox's Strange Universe, UFOAZ, and Arizona Today. He is a frequent guest on many national radio programs including four years running as one of the best guests on Art Bell's Coast-To-Coast, which commands a listening audience of over twenty million internationally.

His life continues to be a journey that is closely merged with his Native American spirituality. He has worked with the elders and leaders of the indigenous people from Alaska to the Yucatan for many years. Ghost Wolf himself is a Metis (Met-tay) born of mixed-blood Native American and European ancestry, like millions of Americans who are called by some the "ghost children". His teachers and the elders have asked him to come forward at this time and help deliver their teachings and their ancient knowledge to the people of the world. He remains a strong and active advocate of indigenous rights and sovereignty of their culture and their sacred sites.

In 1994 the Hopi elders said to him: "These are the End Times and the people must know the truth; share what we have taught you. There can be no more secrets now if we are to survive as a thinking species through these times. This must be done because the dream of humanity can only be preserved through the combined efforts of all peoples, and the joining and merging of all cultures into a oneness."

Ghost Wolf carries a unique body of knowledge that sheds a bright light on our forward movement in this time of great change and appearing chaos—a time, perhaps, of the most dramatic changes to ever affect the course of human evolution.

Of this time he said: “As we walk with a foot in two worlds, we are approaching the reality that we are about to take a giant leap into our foreverness. We must build bridges between peoples now. There has been enough separation. That separation has only caused confusion, and results in fear-based beliefs, which are really no more than superstition. We must reconnect them to their hearts. It is a time to come together. What will occur tomorrow depends upon what we choose today, in this moment, as our path. The Sacred Hoop, The Holy Grail—they are one and the same. They represent the human heart. We must simplify our lives and relearn to follow the path with heart.”

A Short Message From Oracle, Mayan Shaman

Editor's note: The following message is from our Mayan Shaman friend, Oracle, who has become familiar to SPECTRUM readers since his introduction in the Premier Issue, back in June. Despite a very busy schedule, Oracle will be sharing with us some long held secrets of the Mayan calendar and Mayan predictions, probably for the next issue of this newspaper. We are coming into a time when much that has been hidden shall be revealed.

For the present, he has asked only that the following message be shared with you, as prelude to the later, more substantial material he wishes to bring to your attention which has been entrusted to him by his Mayan elders and master teachers. Keep in mind, again, that while Oracle speaks from the heart, English is not his native language.

And while we're on the subject of Oracle, know that the request letters pouring into our office in response to Oracle's free parasite formula offer (in the last issue of The SPECTRUM) have been truly overwhelming—as are your kind words of encouragement and support and appreciation accompanying this avalanche of written requests. The product is still in the manufacturing stage, to meet exacting standards concerning the herbs being utilized, so be patient for this project to unfold; it will take a little while yet before shipments can proceed, hopefully around mid-November.

10/28/99 ORACLE

OPEN YOUR EARS TO MY APPEAL

I come to you in peace. I am a door to the knowledge of future events that have been written a long time ago by our supreme God, by whatever name you call Him. The imprints in the calendar have been changed for those who have taken the time to try to understand our language and our message.

The time for these changes is near. Don't let anyone make you believe that an angry God created the events that are about to take place, or that the planet herself has begun some kind of revenge.

Understand that the climate events that are taking place are created by men who have mastered the way to control the weather, to create storms that can wipe-out towns and cities with rain, tornadoes, or snow. These are men taking advantage of the predictions of the Bible, and many other predictions. Man will create these changes that bring, this winter, the worst snowstorms where thousands will die. The same will occur with earthquakes, tidal waves, and rainstorms that will flood everything in many states, especially states that have a great number of minorities and low-income people from different ethnic groups.

At the time of the alignment of the planets, at the end of the year, we may experience darkness for 7 days and 7 nights, where nothing that is electric will work. The magnetic field that will exist around the planet will stop cars from running. Electricity at home or at work will not work. Candlelight will be the only light that will shine in this horrible darkness. Different countries may interpret this darkness in a hostile or opportunistic way, and we may even have the next world war.

Economic chaos all over the world will take over by February of next year.

Parasites will have a field day, as our waters will be polluted and our food banks will be exhausted. People will go out into the streets looking for food for their families, and many will die.

Kopal, or you can call him God or Great Spirit or Jesus or Buddha—whatever is best for you—He has a plan for all of us:

He, our Father, will not allow many of these horrible events to take place by taking the power away from those who wish to destroy what we have built for our children, and for all of us, if we make some important inner changes, away from selfishness and toward service to others, before we run out of time.

We have KNOWN this for centuries, but we have not done anything to change these events. The solutions are easy, like drinking water. Share this message with everyone you know and maybe those people in government will realize that we know their Master Plan, and they may back away and wait for a better time, after the elections.

Ghost Wolf has spoken throughout North and South America, and Canada. He comes wherever he is invited: universities, corporate conventions, private groups, and tribal gatherings. He is a charismatic and powerful teacher whose presence can alter the energy of a room. When he was introduced at a recent international seminar, the director said: “Ghost Wolf is an enigma. He is perhaps one of the single most powerful individuals I have ever met. He is intensely charismatic, yet he retains a quiet humbleness in his sensitive awareness of all the levels of our personal realities. The body of knowledge with which he works is essential to the world in these times.

“Perhaps it is his unique ability to deliver the mystical to an audience of multi-leveled consciousness which is the big difference between his presentation of ancient knowledge and the usual, strictly dry intellectual-treatise forms of presentation. He has been called a Shaman and a Mystic. Surely he weaves much more than he teaches in words. He knows the histories and the sciences, and he shares that knowledge freely. But he knows something most historians and scientists don't know and could never understand—that true wisdom is found through the heart and not the head.”

As a speaker and lecturer, Ghost Wolf continues to demonstrate his strong public appeal and remains very much in public demand for personal appearances. The information he delivers in Last Cry, Winds Of Change and now Through The Eye Of The Shaman has kept him on the top-ten roster on the lecture circuit in the international arena. Ghost Wolf's remarkable ability to “draw the crowd” and his continued creativity assures him a long road whereon he can “touch them with The Light”.

WHAT PEOPLE WHO MAKE A DIFFERENCE ARE SAYING ABOUT ROBERT GHOST WOLF:

Tom Gubersich, former editor, Washington Post: “His work is vital to humanity. It is important the world knows about the information he delivers.”

Art Bell, host of Dreamland and Coast-To Coast radio programs: “Extraordinary, amazing. Stay tuned.” “There is always a lot more to hear from

Scott Cotamas, former producer of Strange Universe: “Ghost Wolf has an ability to bring a very intense weaving to a broad spectrum of knowledge that few others can.”

Dr. Chet Snow, Future Memory: “Ghost Wolf never ceases to surprise and amaze me.”

Dannion Brinkley, author of Saved By The Light: “Robert is a very gifted man who has a vital gift to deliver to humanity. I always enjoy working with him, and hope to do more with him in the future.”

Richard C. Hoagland, author of The Monuments Of Mars, and former CBS Science Advisor to Walter Cronkite: “Robert is a close friend and I am continually amazed at his sense of spirit to deliver the truth, and his courage to stand up to adversity that is put out there by those who would criticize those of us who are uncovering the truth and are actually delivering it to the public.”

Lori Toy, I AM America map: “Robert is one of the most important prophets of our time.”

Drunvelo Melchizedek, founder of the Flower Of Life: “Ghost Wolf always has incredible knowledge to share with all of us.”

John Hoag, author of many books on Nostradamus: “Robert has a very keen insight into possible occurrences; he is a contemporary prophet and visionary.”

THE REAL WORLD Urgent Message From Ghost Wolf And The Hopi Elders

Elders on several occasions over this past year have gotten together to speak of a situation we are facing in our heavens, elders who knew how to work the energy grids. Although few in numbers, it was felt that with sincerity of intent we could at least affect the imbalance of our Earth Mother and her children's attitude to a point of minimal repair. This is a very arduous task to undertake even for any one, because Tiawa (the Sun) is a sophisticated spirit and only likes things of value.

The elders gathered at more than one location, in both North as well as South America, places where the sacred knowledge was still in the minds of the living. There they did ceremony presenting prayers and offerings to persuade the Sun to realign its path. At the time it appeared that the offerings were accepted, but this can work only to allow us a little more time.

It appears now that the Sun is out of alignment again. A lot of places are going to have very different types of weather patterns. It'll be hot in cold places, cold in hot places; these reversals of weather will affect many things. Temperatures will rise higher, so that nothing will grow. Then they will suddenly drop or there will be a rise in temperature as much as 60 degrees in a couple of hours.

The misalignment of the Sun is associated with the prophecies that speak of the Pole Shift. Remember we told you about the Kachinas that we call the twins and their role in the prophecy. One at the North Pole, the other at the South Pole. (They keep this world in balance.) We told you this when the comet was in the sky that had two tails. This was just before the time when the Purifier would return in our heavens and when the Purification comes.

As it is seen now, the Earth could turn over more than once before the changes are over (seven years). The Kachinas are coming also, some to help should others try to take advantage of our weakness if we fail. The Kachinas are connected to the playing out of our prophecies. The Hopi have many Kachinas, including the Blue Star Kachina, who represents the benevolent star-beings who are on their way to help those who remember the original teachings. The Koshares, who are the clowns in the sacred dances, represent mankind in the gradual degeneration of our societies and need for purification. The people more and more are being distracted from Creator's way, they are walking away from their spiritual knowledge. When enough people are totally distracted, the scales of good and evil will fall out of balance again. The time of the Purification has come.

Hopi lineage extends to the Mayans and the Tibetans whose teachings are very similar. What occurs in Hopiland, or in Tibet, or in the Yucatan affects the rest of the world.

The sacred sites that are to be found in these places have spiritual lines that connect to other places. There is and always has been a spiritual web of life that has existed upon this plane.

Once we knew the knowledge of these cycles that the Sun goes through. Now we know very little. We can only hope that there are enough people who care enough to help bring the true knowledge of these matters to light so that we, as a people and Earth people, can understand what must be done.

This is a hard task to undertake—even now, although more people understand the connection between living things. Even though today there are growing numbers of people who understand that every thing is alive and has a spiritual aspect, and that planets are not just lifeless rocks, they communicate and interact with each other, perhaps there are not enough. What we think here on planet Earth affects the goings on within the Sun itself. What we do here on the Earth affects the whole of our solar system. If we are out of balance and there is war everywhere, then that emotion is felt throughout our solar system.

If you look at what is going on with our Sun and you look with an open mind, you will notice something strange. You will notice that wherever there is war upon this planet, on the same area of the Sun, as if you were looking into a mirror, you will see huge solar flares. Where there is unrest and disharmony upon Earth, there is also disruption occurring upon the Sun. Perhaps if you look at these things you will begin to feel the truth in these statements. There is still a lot of knowledge that indigenous people have that can help this situation. But the choice to put down our anger and pain, and follow the pathway of compassion, is up to us.

In the traditional stories of the Hopi, the Mayans, and the Tibetans, there are stories which tell about a group of people from Pleiades, Andromeda, and Sirius and other places, who have always come and helped the people here when something catastrophic happens or is about to happen.

The elders of all three traditions also once had the knowledge of getting around to visit other planets, and their teachings teach us that there is life on other planets as well as Earth. We have much evidence of this fact in the bones and other remains that have been found in our ancient burial sites. So even science now is taking another look at what they once thought was just legend.

We believe that what we are seeing around our Sun are these relatives; the prophecies tell us that they would be returning at this time. It is not just in one prophecy, it is in many, and they all tell the same story. The Purifier that is in the heavens this moment represents the ancestors returning from the West. That the Purifier has returned to our heavens tells us that these next seven years will be the purifying times that have been prophesied.

He will know what to do, how to help us. His job is to make us understand and behave ourselves. We still have time to correct our way of living. Soon things will begin to happen that we cannot turn around. These beings that we call our relatives will not wait forever for us to make up our minds.

If we don't make the effort to live correctly, the ones from the West, from Orion, will come to purify us, and we will see things like World War III become a reality. These beings do not like our kind.

The star that we call the Purifier is waking us up through dreams, visions, and causing the opening of our minds, for many of us are their children, and we are their star-seed. We are powerful enough to stop the ones from the West if we act together as one. When the Purifier comes, it will be too late to change your path. The Purifier is already in the heavens and can be seen—but what people too easily forget is that the Purifier is seeing us also.

The Creator looks at our hearts over time; change happens over time. Many of us here feel that it is already too late to start changing. To prepare for the changes that are coming, you need to have strong spiritual beliefs and live your life according to the sacred ways of our original teachings.

There are not many who truly do this these days. Even among the Indians, who say they are keeping to the traditional beliefs, there are not many. So no group is special.

The darkness has fallen on all of us—and strange weather changes, natural disasters, and other things that you are seeing now. Disease is everywhere; the hospitals are filled to capacity. And the crops do not grow as they should.

The changes will especially affect those in the big cities, because of much corruption in the cities. People need to prepare themselves, prepare food for storage to use. Money will become obsolete. People will need to be able to live off the land, get their food that way. Within two years we will go through another major depression, this one will affect the whole world. Water and food will be very scarce. You need to stockpile dry goods.

There will be 2-3 months without food or water available. There will be a lot of starvation and sickness in the cities.

There will be a holocaust; a lot of lives lost; millions will die. It is seen as a coming to the Earth as comets or meteors. First they will hit the Atlantic Ocean; then, within the cycle of the Moon, they will hit the Pacific Ocean. The intensity of these events will be lessened if you settle down and remember who you are, and reconnect to the spiritual side of yourselves. The Purifier cannot be compromised; the evil people will be eliminated. Only the good-hearted people will make it to the other side of what is about to happen.

There is no precise date set for the “Day of Purification”. We are told that we are to watch the signs and prepare ourselves. After the Purification is over, there will be one language, one law—this will be Creator’s law.

There will be one government, but not the New World Order some talk about, because freedom and spirituality will be of the underlying essence of those who come through these final days.

Prepare for the warnings of the Purifier. Begin in the period of September to December of this year, then you will know that what the elders have foretold was not to be so lightly taken.

We told you that the Purifier would appear and be stationary in our heavens, that the Purifier would be watching us, that the Purifier would appear like a star that the whole world would see. Look closely, then, at the Sun Cruiser; we say this is a starship, the scientists say it is a star, a planet. What or who do you think it is?

A Message To The World From Robert Ghost Wolf

HOLDING SACRED GROUND

Many dramas have entered our world since December of 1998. We are truly experiencing The Winds Of Change I wrote about last year and presented as highlights on Art Bell’s Coast-To-Coast radio show. From the sudden demise of my friend Speaking Wind, to the passing over of several elders who have played important roles in my life—elders who have been my friends as well as my teachers—elders who were warriors of peace. Two of them were Hopi, Chief Dan Evehema, and Thomas Banyacya.

Since the drama with “the Miami Circle”, both myself and my friend Richard C. Hoagland have been the targets of very serious attacks. Richard fell prey to a sudden heart attack surrounded by strange circumstances not too unlike that like my friend Speaking Wind, who did not survive. When one person falls victim to a calamity we can shrug it off to circumstance; when two fall, our eyes must begin to open. When we see it occur as I have, with 9 people within our circles since December of 1998, I know I am not paranoid.

I myself have been the target for unfounded lies and vicious and slanderous reports spread throughout the Internet by questionable sources who portrayed themselves as would-be vigilantes. I have had to stand and watch as my computer equipment was destroyed by virus attacks that came through the Internet. I witnessed my website hacked on more than one occasion. I have seen my personal friends and my family members threatened and maligned as well. It has been a year so far of receiving grand lessons in practicing forgiveness, and keeping focused on my contract to the Service of the Light. In many ways it is what I now call The Year Of The Tiger.

The Year Of The Tiger—where the tyrants of darkness, in losing ground, have resorted to playing very nasty and diabolical games. The war of dark and Light continues to be waged, and the dark is not doing as well as it expected. They are resorting to desperate measures.

Heroes are being cut down, and anger and aggression have become the chosen pathway. This energy and attitude is being spread across the airwaves and in the published media like a nasty virus.

We watch, as brother is turned against brother, as children take up arms and slaughter their fellow classmates on high school campuses. Those who carry the banner of freedom and personal liberty are maligned and see their life’s work and careers ended because of having had the guts to come out and speak their truth to the public. These warriors are made out to be criminals because they spoke about events and occurrences that others were witnessing but were not in the position to speak out about in public.

These messengers dared to reveal and expose the policies and programs implemented against We-The-People by the Corporate Dynasties of Death—what some would call the New World Order. Sort of reminds me of the American Revolution. Were not Washington, Jefferson and LaFayette criminals in their times? Were not Ghandi, Jesus, Mohammed and Martin Luther King thrown into prison and maligned by their adversaries as well? Nothing has changed. Mankind is once again stuck in their image.

In this Year Of The Tiger, I have made the conscious choice to return to the path I was walking before I stepped off for a brief visit to the marketplace. I accepted many invitations to speak to groups and mingled with the people. I have met many wonderful and many interesting people. I have also met and witnessed the corruption and the courage of the people. One does not take this kind of journey without expecting to get roughed-up and changed a little. I have no regrets about taking this journey, nor do I regret returning to my path.

My experience in the marketplace is now over and I am moving on. It is time for me to continue my learning and the work that is required of me in my Service to the Light. I have returned to my learning with the Indigenous Masters from this dimension and others. It is with their input that I share this message with you, for times are such that I feel the degree of confusion and hostility has reached a level of critical mass.

Thus far I have released two books on the subject of prophecy and the end-times in accordance with the teachings of the Indigenous Masters. Very few who heard the words on the all-night radio program, attended the seminars, and came to the gatherings took them seriously. “He must be speaking about someone else!” I can still see it in the faces of those gathered before me. How easily we assume the position of listening to the words of the messengers and justify that the message is directed towards any direction but us. We refuse to see our own faults.

Recently the course of events previously forewarned moved into an energy shift. Now the stories are becoming reality and impacting humanity personally inside their comfort zones. It seems as though the virus that is affecting humanity is happening on a global level. There is no safe place to hide, no magical place to move, and it isn't happening to our neighbor's kids, it is ours.

PEOPLE, THE TIME FOR A LEISURELY AND BLISSFUL PATH TO ENLIGHTENMENT IS PASSED. WE ARE AT THE THRESHOLD OF THE EMERGENCE OF THE FIFTH WORLD. HAVE YOU FELT THE "EYE OF THE TIGER" UPON YOU YET?

We are, for the most part, experiencing the full effects of the purification that we have for so long been told was coming. It is and will continue to escalate in a sort of waveform as we progress through this period into an even more prolific level of shifting energies. We are in the throes of perhaps the greatest transition that the universe and mankind has ever known.

As we enter the Fifth World, which I have spoken about for years, we are experiencing frequency changes which are altering the pattern of everything. We are literally existing in a new physics; reality is no longer what it was twenty, even ten years ago—from the simple way a neuron reacts, to the way in which we interact with each other as human beings.

Part of the prophecies I have spoken about in my experience with you tell of the breaking down or fracturing or fractalizing of all life expression as we have known it—social structures, religious structures, financial structures, as well as scientific beliefs. When the physics of reality itself transmutes into something new, the Laws of Cause and Effect no longer apply. That which was once looked upon as a sure and definitive pathway to the outcome no longer exists. We are now voyagers into the void. Yet it is a predictable outcome, and is a result of the old Laws of Cause and Effect.

When consciousness is restricted to the point that it can no longer allow itself to be elastic and change with the evolution of the times and the species that express upon this plane, then imminent change is in order. What we are experiencing are shifts in frequency, dimension, and physical structure to accommodate the emerging energy. It is so vast in its scope and yet so intrinsically simple. Something that has never been before is occurring to the whole of the Universe. We are transforming into a new species; we are preparing for a new consciousness and another octave of physical expression.

Perhaps you have found yourself walking along a beach, or just staring out your apartment window and asking: "Why am I here? Where do I come from? Who am I? Why is it that I feel as though I am apart from everything, like I move to a different beat than everyone else? If I am more than flesh and blood, then just what am I? Is there more to life than just procreation, pain, and power? Is there a deeper meaning to this game we call life? Is it all a joke? What am I doing this for? How do I fit in God's plan? How can I change my life?"

Have you found lately that you are questioning everything in your reality, everything?

We have arrived at a crucial point in our evolutionary process as a species upon Mother Earth. From all indications—the observances of science, to the prophets of old, from all culture, all religions, all the Earth's children—there is no longer time for carelessly falling through life like a leaf at the mercy of the wind.

We have reached a point in the time-space experience where we must, as Hu-man beings, make a conscious choice whether or not to become the masters of our destinies. Shakespeare said it so well, "To be or not to be, that is the question!" This can only be accomplished by assuming full responsibility for being Co-creators of Reality here upon Mother Earth.

So what do you have to say? As you look at the world around you, is it not quite apparent that humanity is out of control? Native American prophecy tells us that we are now experiencing the End Times.

Those who come from the teachings of the Mayan Mystery School tell us of a time of awakening that will follow our passage through the End Times. This may very well be The Most Magical Journey of your life, a time where you choose to change your life forever.

Along the journey, if you remain open and in contact with yourself, you will discover the keys to unlocking the many mysteries that have kept your soul from reaching its full potential through lifetime after lifetime of self-imposed denial. If you are willing to take the step across the abyss of time and space, and move beyond where your fears have held you prisoner for centuries, you will become initiates learning within the Alchemical Garden the grandest mystery of all mysteries—the mystery of who you are.

It is time to chose if you are wanting in any way to continue here in this plane of shifting realities, the pathway of compassion.

As a race we are experiencing transition on multiple levels at an ever increasing volume and rate of speed. We are experiencing change from the innermost structure of the atoms that comprise our molecular structure, to the very frequency upon which our consciousness expresses. We are mysteriously coming into harmony with something that IS not yet, but will be. It is a cycle of birthing. The chicken is coming out of the egg.

We are experiencing dimensional shifting as our entirety of perceived reality. We, as a species, are moving through the metamorphosis of consciousness. From here we get to take the next step in our evolutionary process. We are standing witness to the Dance of Shiva, the Dance of Life and Death—lovers embraced in each other's arms! Yet, we perpetuate the patterns of the Spell of Mortality—the greatest illusion of all!

WELCOME TO THE AWAKENING

The pathway through the Awakening is only achieved by passing through The Eye Of The Shaman. This is a journey that requires much preparation, and if you are experiencing change on multiple levels, then know that you are part of the living dream of humanity seeking to discover its divine self amongst the murk and mire of the marketplace.

We are moving through confusion and, at times, it is pure chaos. Many of us are experiencing cleansing of the body physical, as well as the mental and spiritual. It is very important right now to maintain a strong connection to heart. As the Hopi elders have said so simply: "Open your hearts and let your song be sung." The heart frequency is the only frequency that you can rely upon to remain constant and, in fact, grow stronger as we move ahead through this time of Apocalyptic Transition.

So many of you are spending your already limited energies in resisting the changes that are coming forth. You are walking with your heads on backwards, holding on to the past. You are holding onto the thoughts of what you thought it should be like, what you should have been like—what it would have been like to be perfect in someone else's eyes, in someone else's dream. You could be spending that energy in moving with the flow of the river. What we are experiencing in this part of the purification is the cleansing of self from all illusions. The pain is in the holding on—holding on to the image of yourself that no longer applies to your newly found path. If you are experiencing resistance in every direction, then perhaps your time of learning is no longer fulfilled in that experience.

Try to understand that there is nothing in the way anymore, that is holding you back from achieving the fulfillment of your dreams, but yourself and your insistence on holding on to your past images of how it is supposed to be. Yes, there is much tearing apart and chaos that surrounds you, but know that the process of separating the wheat from the chaff is a very emotional experience. The intensity is determined solely by your own passion. And where you have refused to come to terms with your passion, you will then be motivated by the emotional qualities of your fears.

If you have practiced the disciplines of how to get in touch with yourself and connect to Source and made them a part of your reality, and by your daily actions you are living your own personal truth in harmony with the divine plan, then you will be separated from the web of social consciousness.

Yet you might ask, "Why, then, is the world so out of balance? Why is it so difficult to manifest my chosen reality?" Look a little deeper.

There is still a web. Ask yourself to how much of that web are you still connected? Most around you have not let go of that safety net of social consciousness yet. They cling to the image of what they are supposed to be, how it is supposed to be. They are like the fly caught in the spider's web. With each effort to struggle to free themselves, they only call the spider closer to them, and become more entangled in the web itself.

Those caught in this web of social consciousness cannot see the world for themselves. They have no thought that is genuinely their own. They live everyone else's vision of reality, and not their own. There are those who move back and forth from one position to the next like yo-yos, trapped in their own self-doubt. Paralyzed and not able to make a decision about where they truly stand, they take the position that is the most convenient in the moment—anything that will not disturb comfort zones.

Then there are those who just resist because they like resisting. If you break off the web of social consciousness, well you are then alone with no support structure, no one and nothing to back you up.

Correct? Wrong.

There is another web, the one that the Mother spins. Some call it the Web of Wyr, some Spider Woman's Dream web; some call it the higher web of holographic reality. It all depends from where your teaching has come. One has to struggle a little to learn how to maintain this connection. It is a self-learning process. It is an attuning process. It takes empathic abilities that normally are not utilized by people content with ordinary existence. So most fall back into old patterns so they can feel familiar energies, familiar patterns. They like living in a limited reality; there is safety in numbers. And most are stuck in old played-out comfort zones that no longer work.

Comfort zones were created by a person's image, and not themselves. Can you imagine spending your life hopelessly caught in the prison of someone else's thought forms? Is it not a reality in which so many seem to be caught up, playing out a perpetual nightmare, repeating the same patterns over and over until they become numb to the fact that they are even playing the drama out?

They are in a trance where they never free themselves from the spider's web. They are always being pulled this way and that, caught in behavior patterns they cannot unlock. Their self-doubt has glued them to the web like contact cement. They struggle and struggle, spending all that energy going nowhere.

This part of the purification is a time for experiencing a full-life review. This is the Fire—the Fire of emotional confusion. Here we learn to master our emotions and walk the path of the Master. We are seeing our thought patterns being reflected back to us from every part of the globe. On every level of life, and within every aspect of our personal experience, we are being given the opportunity to change our patterns. We are finding there is no escape from life experiences; the only choice is to face them and walk through the illusion one step at a time. This allows us to review the process of our patterns, through experience, and change our destiny. The outcome of our life experiences can be altered forever if we have the courage not to charge the situations, and allow the Higher Aspect of ourselves to take charge.

We learn the pattern to the dance by watching and making the appropriate changes. If we get it right, we never have to walk through that dark night of the soul again. We will be free forever from repetition of the merry-go-round syndrome, where we are without power to effect change in our lives and adapt to ever-shifting situations. The process is totally self-generated.

So it is very important to come to terms with the inner being you truly are. This is not a time of compromise and surrender to thoughts and actions which do not create harmony within us. We are feeling our separation between each other, for it is not in harmony with the Mother's dream. It is very unnatural for us, in all truth, to exist in a world of paranoia and fear. It is all part of the illusion, and is the result of the manipulation of our truths for eons of experience upon this plane.

We have been, as a people, so long separated from our dreams, and our spirit, that we are now facing the Winds Of Change with little or no foundation for understanding the experience of the impact of the events occurring around us. We are feeling the emotional storms of a humanity, which has for so long focused upon the physical, that what is going on at this time is without even a common understanding. We are blind and paralyzed by what humanity itself has manifested through tyranny and a philosophy of rule by proliferating fear and employing tyranny to support a system of synthetic social consciousness. We are watching as the consciousness around us implodes upon us.

We are watching as the Children of Babylon tear down their own creations and build defenses to protect themselves against the phantoms of their inner-most fears—fears which were born of their own actions. These actions are made in ignorance, for the knowledge of who they were and what they were was kept from them. There is no clearer way of saying it other than we are experiencing The Last Waltz Of The Tyrants.

There is no avoiding the shifting and storms of the inner being. It is truly the pathway of the purification, and no stone shall remain unturned. We are experiencing the rising to the surface of all that has remained hidden. All of our dark thoughts, all of our fears, all of our untruths are surfacing, for they have become blocks to our moving into the new reality.

All the warnings were given. Year after year I walked with elders from many nations pleading, asking, healing, performing ceremony. Please help the Native people. Realize the importance of the Sacred Sites. Although your memory may be closed to these things now, they will be important in your understanding of what is to come. Hear what our ancestors, your ancestors, have left as a warning to us about these times that are coming.

Now we look helplessly, hoping for an answer for something to occur that will change the course of society as the world around us collapses into utter chaos. Rage and violence have become the order of the day. You read your newspapers and stock reports. You see life through magazines and motion pictures. You are becoming a race that sees no consequence in its actions and employs no morality or sense of reverence in its actions taken. The Earth and her people are less than expendable commodities for the sake of the success of the corporate beast. The Black Serpent has reared its head as the Peacemaker forewarned—and as it was told, is devouring the whole of the Earth.

And now, even though you are in danger—now that you feel your Mother turning within—you see the crops dying, and the forest turning yellow, and the game disappearing. Your seas can barely support life, and the air burns your lungs, and causes such diabolical diseases that your flesh devours itself. You walk as though you were immortal gods that can meet no ending in any reality. You dance the dances of tyranny as the fruit of the vine withers and the flora falls upon the Earth, dried and withered from man-made meteorological disasters.

You manipulate the weather, the Earth, and her atmosphere as though these were parts of a chemistry set you purchased from Toys-R-Us. You justify your actions in courts of law that have long since seen days of justice, honor, and compliance with Divine Laws. You set your laws immutable before the Hosts of God. No individual dare speaks of freedom and personal liberties before the Great God of Social Distortion, the hallucinatory manifestation of the sickness of the human soul. Yes, it is The Last Waltz Of The Tyrants. It is the darkest hour that humanity has known for a long time, longer than memory can provide.

Crush the dreams of children. Continue to mistreat your women and tear out their hearts with fingers as cold as steel. The hearts that dwell within these lifeless bodies once housed the Lords of Light.

People, these are your last days. You are fast becoming carnivores of your own kind, rather than givers of life. You practice judgment as if it were your sacred religion. And you judge as clowns, not knowing the whole of the story, not caring to see the facts, and not looking into the situation for yourselves. Rather, you follow the mooing of the herd and the bell of self-gratification by your addictions that are numbing your brains, your senses, and killing your bodies faster than the darkest of plagues.

Your lack of compassion for each other as brother and sisters of Light, and the turning away of even your children, has released a darkness that had long been contained. Oh children of Babylon, you have unleashed demons that are not even of this Earth, that prey upon you with no hope of slowing.

Yes, the plagues of the Apocalypse are upon us now, and there are no cures. They rain upon you from your clouds; the birds fall from the skies and still you do not heed. The fishes boil up from the waters and still you do not heed. The animals suffer from growths of distortion and hideous mutations that grow upon their multiple limbs. These things, even as the prophets of old forewarned, now appear in your own kind, yet still you think there is escape from the calamity of your ways.

Build a new city, paint over the old walls. Put a new store-front upon the old and rotten core—the face-lift society. It is cosmetic surgery to hide the rotting core. And yet even your children cannot afford to live in the synthesized world you are creating. It is a heartless world that creates not the living soul of the poet, but only the dying screams of its own youth shooting themselves in schoolroom hallways and taking their own lives rather than moving into a future without dreams, without hope, without compassion.

Humanity has become its own worst nightmare as it contracts in waves of self-inflicted pain, suffering in the agony of the realization of its own death. Hoping even that war, perhaps war and total annihilation of the life force, can stop the madness that has overcome itself.

How can we escape from ourselves? How can we refuse to see our own reflections? How can we not hear our own voice? We are entering the Sixth and Seventh Thunders now, and there will be no turning back the clock. Creation will no longer excuse the cries of ignorance.

Innocence once gave us instant passage through the blackness of our dying dreams to the morning in the land where dreams still greet the coming of daylight as if it were the first daylight ever experienced. Did you think the prophecies were for someone else? Did you think the prophecies were only a story about some land in a far away place? Sorry! It would seem that you feel victim to your own shortcomings.

Are there any signs of hope, you would ask me, as we stand at the gateway of World War Three—as the smell of burning flesh rises into the sky and blows across the Earth, landing on farms, children, and butterfly wings? “YES!” is the answer from the woods. For even now the Mother of all that is expressed upon this plane would not turn from her children.

As a species we have arrived at a pivotal point in our evolution. We are about to embark on a new adventure. We are about to turn the page of history concerning this earthly experience. We are entering a galactic reawakening. We are subject for entry into the federation of planetary beings.

There are others who have elected to take from you your freedom of choice in how the final episode of Spaceship Earth will play itself out. For there have always been those who live in defiance of Creator’s plan. It is the friction of the Human Drama. Without the friction, there is no fire, and life becomes flat and passionless.

Each of us has to grasp the fact that the negative illusion which has been planted in us of “How can one person affect the outcome?” is a lie. We have to completely turn our attitude around 180 degrees. There must be constructed within our being an entirely new architecture. The Temple must be rebuilt. For within is where we shall find the New Jerusalem, not without. We must design a new Sacred Architecture that promotes and sustains a complete attitude change, and that change must come quickly.

In order for change to occur quickly and for humanity to manifest a winning attitude, we begin with accepting that we have all had a part to play in the creation of the darkness. The negativity that exists within our society and is viewed throughout our world is not just a manipulated, engineered, chance happening directed by some vague and mysterious force. “They are doing this to me!” the victim cries.

No, the pathway of truth is also the pathway of sovereignty, which is born from taking responsibility for the here and now. When we walk the Pathway of Truth, what was once unseen becomes very clear and present. We, ourselves, perhaps long ago, planted the seed of today’s ills. The Native Americans tell us we must take the responsibility for the next seven generations. We will inherit the consequence of our deeds through these future generations as we return around the wheel of life. Again, as some of the elders see it, we are now harvesting what we did in the past, both through emotional and physical actions, as we laid the groundwork for today, seven generations ago.

We have developed many new ways of self-development over the past twenty-five years or so. There may be means out there by which we can learn to expedite karmic recoil, and life itself has quickened its pace indeed. We may well have even passed into a period of time experience where we are free from karmic debt from past life experience. However, there is no way one can avoid karmic consequences entirely. The only passage through karmic consequence where there is even hope of relief from the weight of created karma, and the pain and suffering that reckless creation manifests, is through accepting the responsibility for our actions and making the commitment to change, to forgive, and to surrender judgment, hate, and denial, and to live with compassion for all that is.

“Thought creates the nature of all reality” is a grand universal truth. We now know that all reality responds to the vibration of thought. The vibration of thought can resonate to either the higher end of the spectrum or the lower end of the spectrum—the spectrum being what the body-mind physical is capable of manifesting as a living environment. This means we can keep following the downward spiral of humanity into the depths of the effects of our lower vibratory existence, OR we can make the conscious commitment to take the upward spiral towards the divine human experience. This means making an effort to build courage, endurance, steadfastness, and the development of Will. This Will manifests from our learning to have our own thoughts about life, the part self plays in its drama, and our interaction amongst other human beings in our dance.

This is no longer a time for shrugging our responsibility to life and taking the leisure path. We are, like it or not, responsible to the account of man. This account has been built over hundreds of lifetimes of dancing round the wheel. There are those who would mock the Creator’s plan to complete this final episode of our planetary experience here. Their manipulations and tampering with the human experience through technology cannot prevail in the final outcome. Yes, they exist; so do mosquitoes. Yes, our reality has been tampered with; so have we tampered with the reality of the entire universe. There is much that remains to be revealed in the near future.

There are even ongoing attempts by some who would desire to predetermine the nature of our shift into the new paradigm. Manipulation of the weather, frequency bombardment to the general populous, “experimental” chemical and fungicidal spraying of whole regions—are all desperate actions by those who would choose to be the rulers and controllers of this new paradigm we are entering.

The outcome of these Final Days is being steered and our consciousness being manipulated to meet some preordained destiny with the Apocalypse. What if the truth behind the fairy tale were different than has been represented? What if the outcome was not immutable? What if the potential for the outcome was as unlimited as Creation itself? What if there were things that the lesser gods have overlooked?

None of us has been abandoned or left behind to experience a world of suffering and conflict, seeing our dreams torn apart in the agony of destruction. We have merely been called to the pathway of Truth. We learn the fundamentals of what Truth is through the experience of the Human Drama and through the initiation of the Emotional Storms predicted by our own inner conflict and inability to move beyond our own fears. We are being tested in grand manner and forged like steel. No one manipulates our true self; it is only the outer robe of the character we play that can be manipulated, that refuses to give way to the new Self, the God Self.

Humanity must learn collectively to make a holo-leap. We must forge ahead into another paradigm almost instantaneously. To accomplish this superhuman feat, we must now reach deep into the core essence of what we are and touch that which is the essence of the Human Spirit itself.

In The Light, Robert Ghost Wolf

There is much wisdom to consider in the above message. If there is one theme to keep in mind, it is the importance of this time as a special event in planetary history. With that idea in focus, let us move now directly into the promised material from David Wilcock on the Mayan calendar.

Keep in mind that when David refers to the “Cayce readings” he means the accumulated body of material which has been compiled from the trance sessions which Edgar Cayce gave for many decades until his death in 1945. Cayce’s material is available from the Association For Research & Enlightenment, P.O. Box 595, Virginia Beach, VA 23451; phone: 800-333-4499. And when David refers to the “Ra material” he means the series of five books compiled from trance sessions conducted in the early 1980s through Carla Rueckert (with questions asked by Don Elkins). This excellent material is available from L/L Research Publications, P.O. Box 5195, Louisville, KY 40255-0195; phone/fax: 502-245-6495. It is helpful to go back over the last two issues of The SPECTRUM for important background information about David Wilcock and the Cayce-Ra connection with him. The following is another important chapter from his book Convergence.

The Amazing Synchronicity Of Chatelain’s Mayan Calendar

Perhaps the single most interesting thing that we come across as we get closer and closer to understanding this solar cycle is the triangulation around 1999 and 2000. There are endless numbers of apparently reliable prophecies pointing to this discrete period of time—not 2012—as the point of major change. The Cayce readings, referencing what has to be the exact same solar cycle as indicated by the Ra material and the Mayan calendar, called attention to 1998. The question we must then ask ourselves is this: If 2012 is supposed to be “it”, then why are so many prophecies focusing on a time that is significantly earlier than this?

If we look at the Great Cycle strictly from the perspective of the sunspots, we might then assume that the interest in 2000 could stem from the fact that the smallest “sunspot cycle” is known to operate in 11-year increments. We know that this 11-year cycle has an effect of disrupting radio communications and increasing solar particle emissions. Current calculations place the next sunspot peak date as occurring in May of 2000. That fact alone suggests strongly that there is a connection, as most people are well aware of the May 5, 2000 planetary lineup that will occur. This was made public in the opening episodes of the TV show Millennium as well as Richard Noone’s 5/5/2000: Ice, The Ultimate Disaster.

The simple fact that the second-to-last sunspot peak occurs in 2000 might be enough for most people to be convinced that this explains the position of Cayce’s prophecies. The Ra material indicates that the energy coming out of the Sun is indeed multi-dimensional, and thus if there is an increase of it, we can expect an increasing pressure of fourth-density energy. We also know that we have major social and planetary changes listed in the Cayce readings for 1998 and a possible pole shift in 2001. So, if we pin the tail on the donkey between those two years given by Cayce, we have a “happy medium” of 1999-2000.

So, it makes good sense that the peaks of the 11-year sunspot cycle would also represent peaks in this increasing energy. Since May 2000 is the last peak in the sunspot cycle before 2012, we can expect that, during that year, the higher-dimensional energies would increase to their absolute highest possible point before the final event itself occurs in 2012. The intensity of this “high point” could conceivably bring in a burst of fourth-density energy that is strong enough to create the Ascension or Rapture experience, where human entities spontaneously shift frequencies and rise from third-density to fourth-density vibrations. (But wait, there is even going to be more evidence than this.)

Elkins never asked the question of the 2000 date in the Ra material, so we have to find out for ourselves what the true answer is here. But we can see right away how neatly this ties in with the biblical notions of the Second Coming of Christ ushering in 1000 years of peace. It would certainly make good sense that this 1000 years would be timed in accordance with our own calendrical cycles, and therefore beginning in 2000. This has been the belief of many biblical scholars for long periods of time. If anyone had ever come to Earth who should be capable of understanding these cycles enough to make prophecies, Jesus would obviously be at the top of the list!

However, the purpose of this chapter is to illustrate an even deeper aspect of the Solar Cycle that has never before been correlated together in the way that it is here. We will cite the efforts of another Maurice C.—this time not Maurice Cotterell, but Maurice Chatelain, a former NASA scientist and astrophysicist from France. The synchronicity between these two names is another interesting “hint” of a connection in some higher sense. In his now rare, out-of-print book from 1971 entitled Our Ancestors Came From Outer Space, Chatelain makes an apparently airtight scientific and mathematical case for the Mayan calendar being dated INCORRECTLY.

Before we explain his case, we need to qualify all of this by stating that Wilcock’s readings have now stated emphatically that Chatelain was indeed wrong, in one sense. Chatelain RECONFIGURED the Mayan calendar based on new information that he himself discovered. This reconfiguration fit in so nicely with other pieces of data that Wilcock was convinced that Chatelain had to be right, and wrote it into previous editions of this book. Even though the reconfigured dates were wrong, the information itself is VITALLY important in understanding this cycle.

What we will learn as a result of Chatelain’s work is that IN ORDER TO UNDERSTAND THIS CYCLE, WE NEED TO WATCH JUPITER AND SATURN, SPECIFICALLY WHEN THEY GO INTO CONJUNCTION WITH EACH OTHER. It is for this reason that even greater wonder is associated with May of 2000, as JUPITER AND SATURN REACH CONJUNCTION ON MAY 28, 2000. This will prove to be the “missing link” we were searching for.

Remember that Ra refers to the “outward expanding and inward coagulating” energy that is responsible for our Solar Cycle. Ra’s quote makes it clear that we have to go beyond simply studying the Sun—this “pulsating energy” would be the entire Solar System. Therefore, we do indeed need to consider the cycles of ALL the planets in order to see how this cycle functions. Since Jupiter and Saturn are the largest, we can also expect that they will exert the greatest force on this cycle. It is for this reason that we need to pay very close attention to them.

So, what we will do here is to first present Chatelain’s case from the perspective of our original book, which assumed that he was correct. Do not be misled as we do this. After we go through this explanation and lay out the case, we will bring in new information from Cotterell that confirms why the conventional dating has to be the accurate one. And then, at last, we will rectify the two camps of data together with information based on the revelations in the Wilcock readings.

In his book, which actually covers many different subjects, Chatelain discusses the bitter war between the French and the Germans considering the seeming ambiguity of the Mayan calendar's start date. This occurred when the calendar was first discovered, as there were actually two copies found, and they did not, in fact, precisely agree with each other. It took a great deal of work to finally arrive at the proper starting date. Since so much effort was involved in resolving these conflicting areas of data, Chatelain concedes that our now-universal adaptation of the "winning" date set is not necessarily grounded. Chatelains' own start date perfectly coincides with a massive astrological event that lends great credibility to his date system.

(We do need to keep in mind here that times have now changed. Cotterell has now definitively tied in the "conventional" date set with the precise appearance of Venus at the horizon during the Equinox, known as the "Birth of Venus". Though we have not yet discussed it, Cotterell has also shown how the Mayans calibrated the entire Solar Cycle off of the cycles of Venus' revolutions. Therefore, there is a planetary/astrological connection to the conventional date set as well as to Chatelain's date system. This planetary/astrological connection strengthens the hyperdimensional nature of this cycle as occurring throughout the entire solar system, not just the Sun itself.)

In the year targeted by Chatelain's research as the beginning of the most recent cycle of the Mayan calendar, there is a major four-way planetary conjunction in one quadrant of the sky, consisting of all the outer planets, which obviously are much slower-moving than the inner ones. Chatelain then counts three cycles back, to 18,600 years ago, and shows that during the start of that cycle there was an extremely rare double eclipse, where a total solar and total lunar eclipse happened within mere months of each other. Both conjunctions are precise enough with the new dating system that there can be no accident; the crucial dates in the Chatelain Mayan calendar are associated with major astrological events.

Astrologers ascribe very high significance to conjunctions such as eclipses and 4-way linkups, as they seem to multiply the influences from the different planets, and can thus cause very powerful changes in people on the Earth. One might suggest that they could change or destabilize the Earth's magnetic field as well, though nearly all astrophysicists will disagree with this. If there is an aspect of destabilization that is involved, it might help explain why the magnetic pole shift is associated with this Great Cycle. If there is indeed a planetary action that is somehow destabilizing to magnetic fields, how might it work?

A mid-1998 special issue of Scientific American devoted to the cosmos showed that the size of the magnetic field of Jupiter is larger than the physical size of the Sun. Even though these magnetic effects do not apparently hold sway in three dimensions, we cannot automatically assume that there are not higher-dimensional effects involved.

It will become more and more evident in following chapters that a planetary magnetic field is far more than a simple question of north and south; it could be likened unto a gigantic, geometric crystal of hyperdimensional energy, interwoven with its planetary counterparts in a giant web. This is exactly as we were told in the Ra material, as well as in the Cayce readings.

Returning to the point of this section, Chatelain again indicates massive conjunctions and eclipses with the start dates of the Mayan calendar. And now, in 1999, we are heading into another massive four-way planetary conjunction, which occurs simultaneously with a total solar eclipse. The actual conjunction involves almost all of the planets in a Grand Cross formation, where they are all lined up in a giant square, so to speak. The date of this conjunction is August 11, 1999, and at 11:11 a.m., the Sun is fully darkened, reaching its corona directly over Greenwich, England. Greenwich is ground zero for our time measurement system, the city that the Prime Meridian was designed to penetrate through.

We will indeed be coming back to this August 11 conjunction in great detail, but for now, chew on this: On page 225 of Gilbert and Cotterell's Mayan Prophecies it says this: "The start of the Mayan Long Count calendar is usually taken as 3114 BC.... There is also not 100% agreement as to whether the starting day of the Long Count...is 12 August or 10 August."

Remember the August 11, 1999 conjunction date we just mentioned? Surprised? Out of all 365 days in the year, the scientists only argue over two dates for the start of the Mayan calendar, and this eclipse on August 11 is SMACK-DAB IN THE MIDDLE. We have to then wonder if there is some hyperdimensional significance to the position of the Earth in orbit on August 11. This might have to do with its tilt angle in relation to the Sun, and how this angle affects the magnetic lines of the Global Grid. This one clue is something that helps point in the direction of the 1999 "11:11" event as actually being the first "wave" of Ascension.

And, there is much more to the 11:11 conjunction than just this. We will let Joe Mason bring up the rear on this point, since he did such a good job. This intensive essay can be found at www.greatdreams.com/eclipse.htm. Mason shows us that this same exact conjunction was secretly encoded into the Book Of Revelation, as the myth of the Four Beasts of the Apocalypse. Each of the four beasts represent the four astrological symbols in which the "Grand Cross" takes place. Joan Skrabulis wrote an entire book about this, and the link promo is at www.erols.com/eclipse1999.html.

Also, Rev. 11:11 speaks directly of Ascension: "After the 3-1/2 days... God appeared on a cloud and said 'Come up here' and they were borne up into the heavens..." The metaphor of the 3-1/2 has to do with humanity's leap from the third density into the fourth.

Another brand new and fantastic update on this subject came Wilcock's way in February of 1999, right before this book was to be republished in its new form on the Internet. It has indeed increased Wilcock's confidence in the first Ascension occurring in August of 1999. This data comes about through the work of John Mini, in a work entitled Day Of Destiny. The full Internet write-up on the book can be found at Mini's website (www.dayofdestiny.com).

A few quotes from the site:

"August 13, 1999 was forecast by the ancient Aztecs to be a profound turning point in history. Aztec culture and spiritual practice were highly focused on this date which for them was hundreds of years in the future...."

"Classical interpretations of the Aztec Sun calendar also mean our world could be destroyed by movement, or earthquakes, on August 13, 1999 if we don't attain a global consciousness of peace, love, understanding, and harmony with the kingdom of Nature by that time...."

"The glyph at the top of the Aztec Sun calendar is called 13 Cane. It has many interpretations. One of them is August 13, 1999.... Cane means hollowness, emptiness and rigidity. Nothingness is at the core of matter. Three-dimensional space has a hollow structure.... 13 [also] relates to the renewal of the sacred Aztec ritual fire every Mexican century of fifty-two years. The Mexicans believed in August 13, 1999 so strongly, they ritually demolished and destroyed their entire civilization every fifty-two years as a dress rehearsal.

(If what Mini says here is true, then we have a direct and very interesting connection between the "big one" in 1507, which we remember is called the Toxiuh Molpilli. In that case, it was directly tied into the presence of the Pleiades overhead at exactly 12 midnight. So, as we have just said in the last chapter:

"The Aztecs watched for the culmination of the Pleiades at midnight (in 1507) which would have happened around 11 November...." Now, what is the date of 11 November? You got it, 11/11...."

Thus, it starts to look like less and less of a coincidence that the Grand 11:11 Conjunction occurs only two days prior to this “final” Toxiuh Molpilli that Mini is referring to here. We now go back to Mini’s discussion of the symbolism of this date.)

“Overall, 13 Cane carries the notions of movement, freedom, change, simplification, the sky, Heaven, visions, inspiration, emptying, completion, returning to origin, centrality, choice, possibility, and the beginning of a new cycle. Does it seem like the Mexicans are conveying a hopeful, encouraging and positive message to us across time? August 13, 1999 could be a very significant day for humanity.

“The August 13, 1999 forecast flies in the face of everything we know about predictability and probability. In a system with as many variables as the ecosystem of planet Earth, there’s no way we know of to make a prediction of such all-encompassing magnitude. The equation is just too complex. According to our current level of mathematical predictive science, no one could make a forecast of such accuracy.

“But what if someone did?”

Indeed, Mini’s question is answered quite astonishingly well right within these pages. There is a close connection between the Aztec Sun calendar and the Mayan calendar, and yet the ending dates are different. It is the timing of the J-S conjunctions, and their powerful effect on the Solar Cycle, that provides the perfect explanation for why the Aztecs would have zeroed-in on this date. The pull of the astrological forces surrounding the August 11, 1999 period are obviously strong enough that we have several completely independent sources of information unilaterally cross-validating each other!

(However, the Aztec data might not add up. If we count in 52-year units from the 1507 date of the Toxiuh Molpilli referred to above, we zero in on 1975 and 2027. That makes it more likely to have been a “psychic” piece of guidance. The closeness of the dates is just extremely, extremely persuasive, regardless of the immediately visible “problems”.)

So, we have already seen that Chatelain associates the start of the Mayan calendar with a massive planetary conjunction. Again, what we have here is an indication that the Mayans were very interested in astrology, and the Great Cycle is intimately connected with it.

The mainstream wisdom does not associate the Calendar with conjunctions, although it is correlated with the cycles of Venus through Cotterell. Chatelain paints a completely different picture. The Mayan calendar is a multifaceted astrological tool, in fact quite ingenious and very useful once understood. The calendar is not simply one cycle; it is measured through smaller cycles, which must also be considered.

The Mayan calendar can be measured with several different counting units. The smallest of these is the katun, which is approximately 20 years in length, at 7,200 days. One Mayan calendar cycle of approximately 5,200 years consists of 260 of these katuns. This number 260 proves to be the most sacred number in all of Mayan science and mysticism. We will explore the new information that suggests why it was so important as we progress. This number was so crucial and sacred to their understanding of the universe that they actually assigned it a name, calling it the tzolkin.

In order to break the calendar up into more manageable pieces, they also grouped the 20-year katuns together into groups of 20. Each of these groups of 20 katuns is about 400 years long, or 144,000 days, and the name they created for this was the baktun. Since there are 260 of the katuns in one calendar cycle, you would need 13 groups of 20 in order to have everything add up. So, for each calendar cycle, there are 13 baktuns altogether.

As we just stated, the tzolkin number 260 is the ultimate sacred number to the Mayans. It is the root of their entire mathematical system and the number of days in their Sacred Year. Their calendar consisted always of two dates. They would count the conventional solar years of 365 days, along with the 260-day Sacred Years at the same time. Thus, every calendar date was a combination of these two variables. All of this is very well covered in Chatelain and Gilbert’s Mayan Prophecies.

This aspect of their culture may be yet another astrological cycle that we do not yet understand, but as we shall see, the deeper synchronicities surrounding the number 260 are mind-blowing. As our first example, Cotterell indicates that the swirling gases at the Sun’s equator make one complete rotation every 26 Earth days. Cotterell also demonstrates that ten of these rotations, or 260 days, are pivotal to all higher-level solar cycles. Therefore, the Mayan Sacred Year of 260 days would be a precise way of keeping track of solar activity. The question we must immediately ask is this: How did an apparently non-technical society know to count this? There are certainly no recorded bits of evidence to suggest that they had anything even remotely resembling the satellite technology that we used to discover this.

When we expand our tzolkin number of 260 to its higher harmonics, we have 260 katuns in the calendar cycle. We also have 260 days in the Sacred Year. We will soon see how important this is. The amazing discovery that Chatelain makes is that the katun itself is not just a dead, lifeless fraction of the Great Cycle; it is a working cycle all in its own right. Chatelain indicates in his book that the scientists knew that the length of the katun had to be about 19.75 years, but no one has ever explained what it was actually measuring. They tried such things as dividing the length of the orbits of various planets in years, but nothing seemed to work. Miraculously, and perhaps absurdly, no one ever bothered to check the conjunctions BETWEEN the planets.

Though no one else had ever considered it, Chatelain realized that, by adding a very slight 54 days extra to the standard katun length of 7,200 days, he suddenly, magically arrived at the precise length of time between each conjunction of Jupiter and Saturn. This conjunction was the grease in the gears, the very essence of what made the clock tick. And that is just the beginning. The katun not only worked for Jupiter and Saturn, but when taken as a unit, it plugged into the orbits of many other planets as well.

“For the Mayans, the katun of 7,254 days was not only a measure of time, but also an astronomical unit to express the synodic periods of revolution of planets, or the count of days needed for each planet to be realigned with the Sun and the Earth. For example, 5 katuns were equal to 313 revolutions of Mercury, 13 katuns were equal to 121 revolutions of Mars, or 27 katuns were equal to 7 returns of Halley’s comet.”

So, we can easily see that, by simply using the katuns to count, it would be quite possible to plot out all major planetary motions in this manner through relatively simple math.

The typically recognized number system given for the structure of the Mayan calendar is very simplified and round: 20, 260, 360, 7,200 and 144,000. Each of these refer to a number of days, namely the uinal, tzolkin, tun, katun and baktun. Anyone can read a breakdown of these numbers in Gilbert and Cotterell’s book. Since these numbers describe some amazingly complex cycles, we cannot ignore how divinely simple these numbers really are. For example, 36 and 36 adds to 72, and 72 and 72 add to 144. Plus, 144 is the same as 12 x 12. We obviously have the 12/12 connection of the month of December and the year 2012, which appears to be pure synchronicity. We also have the biblical notion of the idea of 144,000 people being able to Ascend at the time of the Rapture. We cannot ignore the fact that it appears that the Christian authors were tapping into the number mechanics behind this cycle.

In order for Wilcock to have sided with Chatelain’s calendar interpretation in the original version of this book, it was necessary to overlook the beauty and simplicity of the accurate numbers used by the Mayans. Chatelain’s numbers, based on J-S conjunctions, disrupt the elegance of that system with non-round numbers and decimal points. What Wilcock also overlooked was the fact that Cotterell’s case for associating these numbers into the sunspot cycle is literally airtight. That leaves us with a most bizarre and interesting proposition—the fact that there is no “gray area” concerning these numbers that govern the celestial mechanics of our solar system. It becomes very, very obvious that there is indeed an elegant, simplistic, divine and intelligent design to the way these cycles are working. We will continue looking at this as we go on.

For now, we rest with Chatelain's theories, which have drawn attention to the almost 100-percent connection between the katun and the Jupiter-Saturn conjunction. We can then begin to understand the physical connection to the katuns' use as a counting system. The question that we must then ask of Chatelain's data is what about the big picture itself, the main calendar cycle of ~5,200 years? Chatelain distinctly shows that the entire cycle can be perfectly broken down into mathematically precise measurements for many different planetary conjunctions, especially Jupiter and Saturn, as we mentioned. Here is Chatelain to explain:

"Meanwhile, the Mayans had also discovered [the main calendar] cycle of 1,886,040 days that represented exactly 260 conjunctions of Jupiter and Saturn, 2310 of Mars and Jupiter, 2418 of Earth and Mars, and 3230 of Earth and Venus.

"This particular cycle was the key to the mystery of the Mayan calendar. It was based on the conjunctions of Jupiter and Saturn, something nobody had cared to consider... nobody had tested the conjunctions between the planets."

(Until now, they still haven't, other than Cotterell's notice of the cycle that tied in the Mayan calendar with the length of the Venus year.)

"The conjunction period of Jupiter and Saturn is in reality 7,253.445 days, but the rounded-out Mayan value of 7254 days is valid because they did not use decimal parts and counted in whole days only. So the Great [calendar] Cycle of the 260 Mayan conjunctions was 1,886,040 days, or 5163.8 of our years."

And thus, we have Chatelain's explanation of how he arrived at what he considered to be the true length of the Mayan calendar: 5163.8 years, and how it was measured. The measurement occurred through planetary conjunctions, the very foundations of astrology and an unchanging product of celestial mechanics. We also can see from his writings here that a great number of differing planetary conjunctions all fit into the calendar cycle like a giant jigsaw puzzle. Notice, though, that this system of planetary calculations fits for HIS number for the Mayan calendar, at 1,886,040 days of length, and NOT the regular number of 1,872,000 days.

Cotterell does give us many crucial parts of the puzzle, but it was Chatelain's discovery that the Mayan calendar was directly linked to astrological conjunctions that led to his discovery of the importance of Jupiter and Saturn. In order to fit the Jupiter-Saturn conjunctions that the Mayans used as a counting system, Chatelain needed to modify the typically utilized dates. As we go on and look at the numbers, we must ask ourselves if it was possible that the Mayans were indeed well aware of both the Chatelain version of the calendar as well as the conventional one. It certainly appears that the two cycles are permanently and inextricably woven into each other. The length of the katun is just far too close to the length of the J-S conjunction to be a coincidence.

From the excerpts just cited previously, we now know that Chatelain is indicating to us that the length of his version of the Mayan calendar cycle is 1,886,040 days, and therefore a baktun, which is 1/13th of the whole cycle, would be 145,080 days. The standard, rounder figures take the baktun to be 144,000 days, and we again remember that this also is the number of people said to Ascend in the Bible. If we multiply the traditional baktun of 144,000 by 13, we get 1,872,000, the number of days for the common Mayan calendar cycle. So between Chatelain's length of 1,886,040 and the common length of 1,872,000, we can see that there is a discrepancy; the astrology-based Mayan calendar from Chatelain is slightly longer in duration.

Remember now that Cotterell had independently discovered a sunspot cycle that caused the Sun's magnetic fields to shift, before he ever saw any mathematical information tying this in with the Mayans. His numbers had come strictly from the interpretation of satellite data pertaining to the ebb and flow of sunspots. This principal sunspot cycle that Cotterell calculated is given in Mayan Prophecies as 1,366,040 days. The Mayans put great work into monitoring these cycles, as they were directly connected with smaller-scale cataclysms on Earth. Remember that this is a smaller, more frequent cycle that affects when the Sun's own poles shift, not the Great Cycle of ~25,000 years itself. As we previously stated, this solar pole-shift cycle has to run itself through seven times in order to add up to the Great Cycle. By the way, these seven cycles fit exactly into the Great Cycle, so there is no debating the connection there.

Again looking back to Cotterell, we see that his own sunspot shift cycle of 1,366,040 days was very closely related to 1,366,560 days, the Mayan "Super Number" in the Dresden Codex. They are exactly 520 days apart from each other, or 2 x 260, the tzolkin number and Sacred Year. This leaves absolutely no question that the Mayans were aware of these solar cycles. The additional 520 days act as Cotterell's "shift differential operator" introducing an extra pattern into the equation that allows us to expand these cycles into even larger patterns in the Sun's activity. This tzolkin "shift number" obviously has a wide range of uses in the universe!

Remember that Cotterell calculated his solar pole-shift number without ever having seen the Mayan information. When you really dig into Cotterell's information, you discover that the Mayan "Super Number" of 1,366,560 days was based on the usage of the cycles of Venus to calculate solar pole shift. We will not go into detail to explain these points, as it is extremely complicated, relegated to the appendices in the back of Mayan Prophecies. It is an interesting point, though, to see that Venus works so perfectly with the sunspot cycle we are discussing; everything fits together.

So, we add 520 days, or two of Cotterell's solar "shift differentials", and suddenly fact meets fiction: a scientifically derived, totally modern sunspot cycle harmonizes perfectly with an ancient Mayan number. Science is again baffled by a seemingly insoluble quagmire, where a bunch of "savages" clearly had access to some very highbrow stuff. But, since "they" cannot acknowledge something like this, it is simply brushed aside and ignored. We don't like what we don't understand.

The link between Chatelain's astrology-based number of 1,886,040 days for the Mayan calendar and Cotterell's 1,366,040 days for the sunspot shift cycle should be seen right away. The difference is, miraculously, a quite whole number, as both numbers end in 6,040; therefore, when subtracted from each other, the last four digits cancel out to 0,000. This eminent roundness clearly indicates that the matching nature of the numbers is no accident. Their difference is exactly, precisely 520 thousand days. This is undoubtedly one of the most fantastic correlations between the two cycles!

In future chapters of this book, we will go into the work of global grid pioneer Bruce Cathie, but for now we will throw in one of his most fundamental ideas on numbers. Cathie indicates that the ancients would effortlessly add or subtract zeroes to numbers, knowing that the numbers remained harmonically identical underneath. Therefore, 520,000 reduces to 520. Look familiar? This is the exact same number that we just saw above when Cotterell got the solar pole shift to equal the Mayan super number. Again, he did this by simply adding two tzolkins or Sacred Years of 260 days.

So, all of this synchronicity starts to press on the brain. When Wilcock first discovered it, he literally felt like he just stepped out of his own body. These numbers are too airtight to simply be brushed off as chance. We have to admit that there is a fundamental similarity between Chatelain's modified figures for the Mayan calendar, based on J-S conjunctions, and Cotterell's number for the solar pole shift. One starts to question how this could possibly be, as Chatelain's book was out on the shelves in 1971, long before Cotterell calculated the sunspot shift cycle. In addition, Cotterell made these sunspot calculations with no apparent knowledge of Chatelain's work whatsoever.

Just to recap, the harmonics of the “tzolkin number” of 260 appear to be of pivotal importance in understanding all of our mystically interrelated cycles, including the Great Cycle of ~25,000 years, in many more ways than one. The tzolkin is the anchor of the entire system, from the 26 day rotation of the Sun’s equator to the “Sacred Year” of the Mayans, to the number of katuns in the Mayan calendar. The tzolkin also links the sunspot shift cycle to the “super number”, allowing it to expand into the Great Solar Cycle. Now we have just shown how it also demonstrates the harmonic link between the J-S conjunctions and the sunspot shift cycle itself.

If you’re scratching your head at this point, thinking what this all means, it is actually quite simple. Regardless of how much it might confuse, befuddle, and stump mainstream researchers of the Mayan calendar, we have to consider both systems of measurement if we fully want to understand how everything is working. The Jupiter-Saturn conjunctions are a monkey that will not jump off of our back. We must include them in all of this if we wish to make any progress. Wilcock’s initial inclination was to go along with Chatelain and simply discard the conventional Mayan calendar datings; but that wasn’t the right move either. It was quite humorous for Wilcock to hear himself crumble his own theory apart while deep in trance. (It actually wasn’t very funny, and the resistance was so high that the message had trouble coming through at first. But what matters here is the truth, not an incorrect theory.)

It is interesting to note that “frontier scientist” Richard Hoagland and his team wrote a recent article on hyperdimensional physics on his www.enterprisemission.com website that also demonstrates the hyperdimensional importance of the J-S conjunction. In this case, he shows that the power of the J-S conjunction surpasses the power emitted by the standard 11-year sunspot cycle. This was measured by studying the relative level of radio interference caused by the peaks of the sunspot cycle, and then comparing that against the level of interference caused by the J-S conjunctions. The J-S conjunctions caused a significantly higher amount of interference than the 11-year sunspot cycle in this case, and he has reprinted the original articles that prove it. Interestingly, Hoagland also mentions the 25,000-year cycle in the same article, only he has completely missed the real causes behind this cycle, which we are discussing here. In his article on the website, he speculates that the orbit of a distant planet might be the cause this cycle.

We now know, from our excerpts from Edgar Cayce, the Ra material, and other sources, that this mysterious 25,000-year cycle is not caused by a planet at all; it is a solar effect. We also know that it does more than simply affect weather, magnetic pole reversals, and the ups and down of civilization—it also holographically controls the dimensional frequencies throughout the entire solar system. We have already started to explore the content of future chapters, where we will show that each planet is a multidimensional body which assembles into a geometric, crystalline form. These crystalline forms are nothing more than the holographic projections of The One—essentially, conscious energy forms. They are all intertwined into a vast energetic web, and the Sun controls the resonating frequency of this web through the Great Cycle, or the “Breath of the Divine”.

To put it another way, just because the Earth is focused in the third dimension now, doesn’t mean it will necessarily stay there. Our approaching 25,000-year conclusion of this cycle effectively opens a “portal” through space and time. In order to prepare the entities of any planetary body for these changes, the energy will progressively increase. This is obviously a better way to go, as if the energy continues to increase at a steady rate, you have more time to prepare for the dimensional shift itself. But don’t wait too much longer!

As we previously alluded, what we actually see is a “ratchet” form developing, where the available higher-dimensional energy noticeably increases at the peak of each Jupiter-Saturn conjunction. Therefore, even if we stick with the conventional Mayan Calendar date system used by Cotterell, we still need to watch Jupiter and Saturn in order to observe the “ratchets” of this cycle. Later on, we will reprint a Wilcock reading that discusses these energy shifts from the standpoint of 20th-century American history.

It is interesting that Edgar Cayce listed 1958 to 1998 as a crucial “evaluation” period leading up to the planetary changes. Both of these dates are exactly two years prior to when the J-S conjunctions occurred. Based on what we have just unfurled here, we must conclude that this is what the Cayce readings were referring to. We are hard-pressed to find any other physical observations of the Cycle that could possibly match up any better than this.

But why would the Cayce readings anticipate each of these conjunctions two years in advance when referring to a “testing period”? We must conclude that just the approach of the J-S conjunction can cause massive changes, even before it actually hits. This applies in astrology as well, where the effects of a major conjunction get stronger and stronger as the conjunction gets tighter and tighter. It really is the exact same principle, albeit on a larger scale.

The length of time between ’58 and ’98 is forty years, and again we see the Bible symbolism popping out all over the place. The biblical flood involving Noah’s Ark took place for “forty days and forty nights”. The Israelite exodus, led by Moses, spent forty years in the desert. Jesus’ time of temptation by Satan in the desert was forty days and forty nights as well. All three of these cases would certainly be considered “testing periods”. Could there possibly be a connection to the hyperdimensional cycles here yet again, in the same matter as the mention of the 144,000 souls Ascending? (Remember that a baktun is 144,000 days long.)

The conjunction between Jupiter and Saturn actually goes exact on May 28, 2000 at around 8:48 a.m. GMT—23 days after the 5/5/2000 planetary lineup that many are associating with pole shifts and cataclysms. The period between 1998 and May 2000 might be too close to the end of the Cycle for any further “testing” to apply. Therefore, we might need to wait until 5/28/2000 for the first vortex to open. But as was hinted at in the Ra material and other sources, we have to consider ALL the planets in the solar system when studying these cycles, NOT just Jupiter and Saturn.

Therefore, the raw intensity of the solar eclipse/Grand Cross configuration on August 11, 1999 at 11:11 a.m. GMT, combined with the closeness of the J-S conjunction and the 11-year sunspot peak cycle, could trigger the first wave of Ascension. This would be the first time that the transition into the “fourth density” referred to by Ra would occur. The Wilcock readings indicate that this particular vortex will only open for a fraction of a second at exactly 11:11, and thus a decision must be made immediately. If you choose not to go, you will forget that you even had a choice afterwards.

And now, with the additional information from John Mini regarding the August 13, 1999 ending date for the Aztec Sun calendar, we can see an even greater weight of evidence surrounding this date. It would appear that if this calendar had been obtained through psychic means, the Aztecs were also tapping into the close of this current cycle in the same fashion as Cayce, Nostradamus, and the writers of the Bible. The weight of evidence presses heavier and heavier, demanding that the reader take notice!

Remember the overwhelming evidence that connects the story of Jesus to the modern accounts of extraterrestrial visitation. This includes immaculate conception, the giant light that hovered in the sky over Bethlehem, the appearance of “angels of the Lord”, and obviously Jesus’ many fantastic abilities. We also have numerous top-secret government officials who have come forward to say that the extraterrestrial visitors informed them that Jesus was one of their own (Good, 1991). Therefore, to a being that is outside of linear time, the era of Jesus could be the equivalent of one or two of our days in the past. So, when there are writings in the Bible that say: “Two are walking in the fields, and then there is one....” we have to remember that this is not ancient or mythological to them; it is a statement of the fact of exactly what is going to happen to us. Ascension is no laughing matter, and we need to prepare as such.

Getting back to the main point, the May 2000 vortex should be much more “popular” than the 11:11 in 1999. By that point, we will have had five months of y2k collapse, with whatever effects have been created as a result. Needless to say, by the time this vortex opens, many of the prophecies may have hit home in a way that we cannot foresee now. Even the mainstream media is becoming aware of this possibility.

Whenever the transition is actually made, we should see that these new energies will increase the speed of all atoms making up the physical Earth. According to the work of Gordon-Michael Scallion, who also talks of a solar cycle and the 2012 date, this will have an irreversible effect on electricity. No radio or electronic devices will work once this happens. Remember that cars are largely electronic in nature, and thus society as we know it grinds to a halt. No more banks, no more computers, no more television, no more government records, no more lights, no more running water, no more refrigeration, no more distribution of goods, and even no more heat in many cases, as thermostats run on electricity. Even if you had a generator, the energy it was now producing would no longer be compatible with your machinery.

Think about this. We might have more to worry about here than just y2k. When the Earth goes fourth-density, machines stop running. This could certainly be correlated with the inevitable observation of all electronic machinery powering down in the presence of extraterrestrial spacecraft (Good, 1991). Wilcock just read yet another recent account of this happening last night on the Sightings website (1/22/99). When the craft goes into close proximity with third-density equipment, its higher-density energy actually causes the electrons flowing through the machines to vibrate at a higher frequency that is incompatible with the machines. As soon as the craft get out of that proximity, everything comes back on. But if the Sun changes the energy everywhere, we then see all the machines ceasing to function as a result of this. Our friends in the Secret Government may already have prepared for this contingency, designing machines that run on higher-frequency electrons.

We also need to remember what we had mentioned earlier about how the bursts and proton storms from the Sun seem to wreak immediate havoc on our electronics systems when they hit us. Our satellites seem to take the worst beating of all, as in the case of the Galaxy 4 satellite pager crash in America. These bursts are but quick samplings of the energy that will soon become the norm.

Therefore, since mainstream scientists are not aware of how truly massive this convergence of solar cycles really is, they cannot know exactly how intensive this radio and electronic interference will be. But the articles being released as of late 1998, more from Europe than America, are already preparing us for the worst.

So, it might well be inevitable that all conventional electronics will be rendered useless. But as we just said, you might not need to stick around for this; you might be Ascending. Let us just reiterate that the apparent nexus of all of these cycles is the solar system’s “breath”. This breath would occur in all dimensions, not just three, and the breath itself would be the emanations of consciousness energy that the Sun is producing. Therefore, as the Sun is about to “exhale”, it will radiate an energy field of the higher-dimensional frequencies outward, streaming into the holographic Light energy grids of the planets. On the opposite side of the coin, should it “inhale”, such as it did at the time of Atlantis, the dimensional frequencies are essentially “sucked back in” and thereby decreased.

This could explain why the Atlanteans, according to Edgar Cayce, had many abilities that we could hardly dream of. This included the manifestation of objects, and even lifeforms, through thought alone, massive psychic and telepathic abilities, and the levitation of large stones by thought. The Ra material indeed states that the Atlantean civilization had a very unique perspective, where the roles of time and space were reversed. Where we exist in third-density “space-time”, Ra says that the Atlanteans existed in third-density “time-space” where all these things were made possible. In “time-space” time is not linear as we now think of it, but rather more flexible. This allows a much greater degree of psychic control over the physical environment. A good analogy of time-space is the dream plane, and the ways in which different portions of your life can be worked together into the metaphors. So, Atlantis’s unusual abilities obviously had to do with the flip-flopping of the Solar Cycle as we now understand it.

Jesus obviously would be the highest example of a physical being with such abilities still intact in the middle of an “inhale” period. It is clear that he was “preparing the way”; he essentially came to show us a future vision of ourselves. This vision would be of humanity once Ascended, exactly 2,000 years after his arrival. Looking at the big picture, we can see that his arrival was essentially at the close of the most recent cycle. This would explain his quote in John 14: “As I do these things, so shall ye do them, and even greater things....”

Getting back to the point of this chapter, we must remember that no other researcher has ever tied in the Mayan calendar to planetary conjunctions, except for Chatelain. His rendering of the calendar to a different dating system does certainly seem tempting. It is important for us to go a bit further in uncovering how he was able to arrive at such a stunning conclusion, as this will reveal further clues. Surely, Chatelain’s fastidiousness as a NASA scientist would have required that a great deal of proof be given in support of his theory, and he does certainly seem to have it!

p.46: “I presumed that at the start of the last Great Cycle some remarkable astronomic phenomenon must have occurred. The joint arrival of four planets in the same corner of the sky, the meeting of Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, and Neptune takes place every 4,627 years after each of the planets has finished an exact number of conjunctions and is again lined up with the others. And the last time such a phenomenon took place was the year 1484 of the Christian era.

“Stepping now 4627 years back, I marked the year 3144 BC....[This was how Chatelain got his new start date instead of 3114.] [I then] took three more times the same amount of time passed to arrive at the date 18,633 BC.... [This was] a date only three years off the year 18,630 BC mentioned as an important date in a sacred Mayan codex preserved in the Vatican. For me that constitutes proof.”

Before we go any deeper in analyzing this, we should see that Chatelain is NOT using his Mayan calendar numbers to calculate these figures. His calendar length is 5,163.8 years. Here, he is using a completely different cycle—the 4627-year period of time necessary for Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, and Neptune to come into perfect conjunction. He naturally assumed that an event this big would be the best way to count out time in this cycle. He does have a good point, as these are all the biggest planets in our solar system. Obviously, when they come together, the strength of the Solar Cycle only increases. It is no wonder, then, that these numbers would figure in cleanly with the Mayan historical dates.

So, to restate what Chatelain is saying, a sacred record of the Mayans exists which traces their existence back to at least 18,630 BC. Since Edgar Cayce’s sources said that the Mayan land was a part of Atlantis known as Poseidia, what we are looking at here is a forgotten relic of Atlantean technology. This would explain how they were able to get such precision; as Cayce indicated, the Atlanteans had direct psychic access to all the information they needed. We can then tie this in with the groundbreaking work done by Graham Hancock and Robert Bauval in back-dating the Giza pyramid complex to 12,000 years of age, through astrological alignments and water weathering on the Sphinx. From here, we start to see that, in fact, many of the wonders of the ancient world are actually Atlantean artifacts.

conjunctions are so obviously close to the Mayan katun, why the 54-day discrepancy? Wilcock's own readings finally explained it in a way that makes sense, providing that the Ra material is accurate. We remember that Ra said that there was once a planet where the Asteroid Belt now resides, often called Maldek. Ra told us that this planet was caused to explode by a war that occurred between its inhabitants some 500,000 years ago. We also know that Thomas Van Flandern, a reputable astrophysicist, is now putting increasingly hard science behind the notion that this was indeed a planet in the recent past that exploded. All comets in the solar system can be traced back to that point of origin, for example. Since comets are largely water ice, they are the vacuum-frozen chunks of what was once a fertile ocean.

So, even though it might not be "mainstream" yet, the data will continue to increase on this subject. At some future point, this will no longer be considered a matter of fiction, but of simple and tragic human history. The only thing that stops us from being able to accept the truth is the limitations of our own imaginations, and our desire to cling desperately to our "beliefs", which can often be a series of prejudices. We simply cast out the information that we don't like, and everything is "fine". Since we have only just begun to accept the idea of extraterrestrial life, the notion of "planet-hopping" certainly takes some time to get used to. But facts like the gigantic mountain on Mars that is shaped like a human face certainly gives us clues that lead in this direction.

(As a very interesting side note, the morning after Wilcock wrote this, 1/23/99, he had a very detailed and interesting dream that was apparently about Maldek. It was extremely rich and detailed, and borrowed off of the idea of the upcoming new Star Wars movie. In the middle of a sentence that Wilcock spoke to a waitress in a very bizarre "restaurant", the perspective suddenly shifted to outer space, where he saw a gigantic flash of light. That was it!

Then, he was in a movie theater, and everyone was disappointed with the ending. They all had a copy of Gilbert and Cotterell's book Mayan Prophecies. The "movie" just seemed to "cut off" with no prior warning. Wilcock told them not to worry, as there would indeed be a sequel to the movie. Ra says that 50 percent of people on Earth came originally from Maldek. Wilcock had been thinking that the exploded planet portrayed in the movie Star Wars was a sort of "genetic memory" coming through George Lucas, who might have been one of the 50 percent who went through the actual experience. It is very interesting to Wilcock how much the Maldekian "restaurant" resembled the general feeling of the "cantina" scene in Star Wars and Jabba the Hutt's hovering cruiser in Return Of The Jedi. All the characters were human, but there were definite similarities. Theoretically, anyone should be able to access this information and dream accurately about it. Perhaps Lucas turned it into a film as a result of this ability.)

So, if we know that Maldek did indeed explode, we then need to stretch our imaginations just a bit more. Clearly, the force and impact of an entire large planet exploding must be quite something. Indeed, part of Van Flandern's research concerns the amazing blast impacts that are visible on the neighboring planetary and lunar bodies closest to the Asteroid Belt. Many of them appear to have sustained far more damage on one half than the other half, including Mars, which may well have been one of the exploded planet's moons. With the force of a planet-killing nuclear explosion and all the debris that would be created, we clearly would have quite an incredible problem on our hands. Indeed, something similar might happen to Earth were it to be sufficiently disturbed by a large-scale nuclear war.

Therefore, when Maldek blew, the other planets in the solar system took quite a beating. In the conventional Newtonian model, they are held in place solely by the Sun's gravity. So, if you have these free-floating bodies suddenly hit with the impact of this tremendous blast, it would be like playing a game of pool on a billiard table. We can easily see that the other planets would get knocked out of their positions. Since Jupiter and Saturn are both beyond the Asteroid Belt, the explosion would blow them further away from the Sun. All it would take would be for one or both of them to be close to Maldek in their orbit pattern, and the extra 54 days could easily be accounted for.

So, what we have to realize here is that at one time, the solar system functioned in a perfectly divine and beautiful way, with elegant mathematics. These mathematics allowed the conjunctions of Jupiter and Saturn to be exactly 7,200 days in length, thus precisely matching the numbers inherent in the Sunspot Cycle. But, after Maldek's explosion, the planets were knocked out of place, creating a very acceptable 54 days of extra time between each conjunction. But, even though they were knocked slightly out of place, their effects as the driver of the Solar Cycle could not be disputed; they were the two biggest planets in the solar system.

So, the extraterrestrial forces referred to by Ra must have kept track of both systems of measurement. The "conventional" Mayan calendar was used to keep perfect track of what was cooking in the Sun, which was not significantly affected by Maldek's explosion. These numbers would always and forever be beautifully simple and elegant, representing the true divine design of creation. The tzolkin grouping of 260 J-S conjunctions were obviously still of extreme importance as well. Thus, even though Jupiter and Saturn got knocked out of alignment, they still ended up arriving in a position that perfectly harmonized with the cycle in the Sun by the "shift number" of 2×260 , or 520. This "harmonizing energy" of the gravitational forces in this cycle is the exact same factor that causes the 26,000-year precession of the equinoxes on Earth to be a picture-perfect match of the Great Solar Cycle.

So, what we now have is a system where Jupiter and Saturn still pull their weight, even though they no longer figure in precisely to the conventional Mayan calendar. We can now see exactly how important the time period of May of 2000 really is. This is not only the last sunspot cycle peak before the cycle itself ends, it is also the very last time that Jupiter and Saturn will conjoin before the cycle ends. It is for this reason that the period directly surrounding 2000 must be watched, perhaps even more than 2012. We must conclude that it is for this reason that the forces in the Edgar Cayce readings spent all their energy triangulating on 1998-2001 when they spoke of the Solar Cycle and the corresponding pole shift.

In the next chapter, we will investigate the further ramifications of this ancient astrological cycle technology, by uncovering an even vaster cycle that was equally well charted out by the Atlantean/extraterrestrial contingent, handed down to the Mayans and Egyptians. Maurice Chatelain also discovered this cycle as well, and he named it The Nineveh Constant. It is vital for us to explore just how fantastic the harmony of the planetary cycles really can be, and how far it extends. The precision of calculation behind this cycle shows unequivocally that a very high-level influence of some kind was in touch with these ancient cultures, as this 6,000-year-old number enables precise calculations of planets all the way out to Pluto. Read on.

While it may seem that this rather lengthy document is jumping around somewhat, it is more like weaving an intricate tapestry whose design is dependent upon each thread, each curve, each rich color to define its final texture and impression. As I promised you readers several months ago, and David too, let's move now to one of David Wilcock's trance "readings" as it directly relates to the subject matter at hand. For those of you with access to the Internet, David's informative website is: www.ascension2000.com.

The Cleansing And Renewal Of Human Civilization

Thursday 9/23/99, 6:13 a.m.

D: Second morning here at Nana's and Papa's. I didn't realize until I just woke up here that this dream had some very repetitive schema about my father.

(Context: I had just spent dinner with my father and his parents the night before. Dad came out to see us by himself. He was still in excruciating pain and recovering from having broken more than one rib. He sustained this injury by trying to clean out the gutters outside his house without the proper ladder to do it. He was using a ladder that was not tall enough, and standing on the rung right below the top. Because of the recent rainstorms, the ground was wet and he lost control of the ladder. As he fell, his ribcage landed directly on top of the ladder and he knew right away that he was in trouble. Even that night at dinner, several days after the event itself, the slightest motion of his body would make him sometimes scream in pain—it was very real and very serious. The hospital told him that there was essentially nothing that they could do except to give him heavy painkiller drugs, which he did not want to take.)

We will see as this dream and reading progresses that the collapsing ladder of my father's injury is used as a metaphor for humanity. There is indeed a form of painful collapse that we are heading into, as a product of our own collective actions in the most physical sense of the term. Furthermore, there are a number of very interesting metaphorical connections associated with my father's injury. The ladder is often used in dreams to indicate upward spiritual progress—and the gutters represent the dark side of life, which we often do not want to allow ourselves to see.

However, in the dream there is a new spin on the story: if we really ARE willing to clear out our collective "gutters", we do not need to have the total collapse of civilization (or in this case the ladder itself) that many "disaster prophets" have indicated. The dream tells that when we investigate and heal these "gutters" instead of simply collapsing, we will immediately turn up the idea of how so many workers have been systematically exploited. We will also see how the schema of a military-focused magazine indicates that our society believes itself to be omniscient and eternally survivable, well into the distant future. The realities, as expressed in the reading section after the dream, will paint a much different picture.)

In the early parts of this dream, I kept being in the backyard of my original home of 621, going up on this rickety ladder that was angled on a turn. I was trying to clear out the gutter, just as my father did before he fell on his own ladder and broke some ribs, causing him extreme pain. In the dream I didn't fall off of the ladder, but it was extremely precarious. The ladder was bending and very cockeyed each time that I would try to go up, and I was having a very hard time trying to reach the

Before the last time, when I finally achieved success, I saw a Popular Science magazine that had a black war helicopter on the cover, and said that it was a model for the year 200,000 instead of 2000. So, in context of the dream, it seemed like they were just trying to advance time too quickly, predicting that the technologies that we now have would somehow be relevant some 198,000 years in the future.

D: The other interesting thing about 200,000 is that this was the amount of money that the person, who I lightly bumped into from behind in my December 1996 traffic accident, tried to sue me for.

(10/11: This connection seems to be also relevant—the idea of a "crash" that involves a great deal of money potentially lost. As we will see in the reading, this is a direct metaphorical reference to an upcoming stock market crash that they have foreseen as coming our way.)

After seeing this magazine, I decided to try the ladder once again. It still swayed and bent wildly, like it had the other times when I went up on it, except that this last time I was actually able to reach in and grab something. However, instead of pulling out dirty leaves, I came up with this little toy model of a working man with a hard hat. This looked just like a toy that I used to have in my collection from long, long ago.

(10/11: This is the part that is describing the exploitation of workers, when we clear out the collective "gutters" or the dark side of humanity.)

So, the next feature of this dream that I remember in great detail is how ANGRY, ANGRY, ANGRY I got. It happened two different times for the same reason. The first time, I believe it was J F and D G, and both of those two guys were drug kids I knew in high school. It seemed that they had tried to rip me off on something, although it had nothing to do directly with drugs. I think that at least at one point, it involved them taking this really nice looking, flashy clothing of mine. It was a bright green shirt that had a pattern on it, and maybe some pants as well.

(10/11: Green is the color of Ascension, the fourth-dimensional vibrations. It is also the color of money. And thus, when seen in context of the reading's information below, this portion of the dream is telling us about how the negative forces now in power, symbolized by drug-using adolescents, are trying to steal both our money as well as our positive polarity.)

Anyway, the first time that it happened, I was angry enough. Then, when it started to happen again at this party, and it involved J from upstairs at my Rosendale apartment and some other people, I was just LIVID. I was almost FURIOUS. There were some DD (developmentally disabled) people involved in all of this as well; they factored in. I am not exactly sure how, but I know that there was at least one person who showed up in the dream who was DD. Someone was going to be trying to help him, and he had a lot of problems. He might have even been an alcoholic.

(10/11: DD people seem to be used in my dreams to represent those "regular" humans here on Earth who are, in a sense, "spiritually handicapped" and blind to the truth. These are the ones who need the greatest assistance at this time. Here, they were symbolized by both the DD and the alcoholism.)

The scenery of the party gradually changed from a house into a bar, the classic dream symbol of the underworld of humanity. The next thing I know, there was Sabrina. Her hair had some curl in it that she must have put in on her own. She was actually singing at the party, and she looked really, really wonderful and happy. She was very delighted to see me show up at this thing. She had some interesting material that she was working with, and I hadn't seen or heard her sing it before.

(10/11: This obviously is an "angelic" metaphor for those Lightworkers on the planet who are trying to go into those darkest of places in order to facilitate healing on a variety of levels. Also, remember that music is used in my dreams to symbolize my work with the spiritual forces.)

Soon after I started to get the feel for the song, I grabbed a microphone and ended up singing along with her, and when I sang into the microphone, my voice projected even more than hers did. Some really drunk barflies yelled at me, because at one point I started to sing at the end of the song. I was singing without any music behind me.

(10/11: This same thing happened when I sang "Whole Lotta Love" by Led Zeppelin on the one night when I worked in the karaoke bar. I think that the metaphor here is to realize that many people will scorn the gifts that you try to give them, and otherwise try to make you feel somehow inadequate. It is their own way of masking the feelings that they hide about themselves.)

And then, this guy who was really, really, really drunk at the bar got the microphone. He looked horrible—his head was mostly shaved, his beard was growing out, and his skin was all different colors, mottled in appearance. He had deep, dark rings in his eyes and was slumped over with his head in his hands. He was grabbing onto this microphone and singing a Bob Dylan song along with the tape. I was amazed at how much his voice sounded EXACTLY the same as Bob Dylan's did. And although I don't think that this is what the song was, the chorus of what he was singing was "The Day The Music Died".

(10/11: This poignant and sad metaphor that the dream closed on illustrates a very strong point. It is this portion that most directly addresses those elements of our society who are the most lost. It is precisely because of those who are “not getting it” that there will be many social disruptions in the coming times. The title of the song, “The Day The Music Died”, clearly was meant to illustrate this social collapse—especially in light of how the reading is phrased immediately thereafter.)

[NOTE: Capitalized subheadings in this reading were later included by David in order to organize this very in-depth and multifaceted reading.]

“CHAOTIC DISMEMBERMENTS” CONTINUE

In the judicial sense, Atlanta is not comparing any mainstream success issues with exceedingly minute circumstances having to do with the use and transfer of power. Contrapositively, it seems that the entire debacle might indeed be able to create positive changes in a very short time. These chaotic dismemberments do address the central issues at work herein, and we must always keep ourselves abreast of these developments.

(10/11: Since I am so disconnected from the mainstream media, I still am not sure exactly what incident in Atlanta they are speaking of. All I can figure is that it is a reference to school shootings—and this could explain the earlier phrase from a few months back, where it said “The buses in Atlanta will be seen to blow up”. If what they meant was SCHOOL buses, then this could be a direct metaphorical reference to the slaughtering of innocent children. Someone please email me if I am missing an important detail here!)

As time progresses here again, we need to be reminded of the fact that when you have opened the door just a bit, you can still sneak in the camera and achieve the direct superposition of your own energies into those of the future. When you can contemplate this next wave of success, you can then have the ability to think about who and what has happened to you, and how this will affect your future decision-making processes.

GOD DOESN'T NEED A GUN

When both barrels are cleaned, you can then move forward out of these Nazi gun control camps and into a fuller recognition of the wealth of the Divine, which needs not such weapons, as it has the power of God as protection.

[Long pause]

Superior powers believe in superior means to bring about that power. So when we shuffle around for our own raffle tickets, we can be sure that the harmonious counterbalancing energies will be present as well, and this will allow us to balance out the negative energies with those more positive.

GRADUAL FINANCIAL COLLAPSE

The street lamp shines down upon us now, and allows us to make a few adjustments to the extant system of financial resources now present upon your plane. There is indeed a time and a place and a reason for every action and reaction. Contrapositively, it would seem that those at the top must indeed again rise before they fall. And so, don't look at these predictions as indicating the sudden and wholesale disastrous collapse. Rather, it is the slow wearing and eating away of the edifice of this entrenched financial system that will be most paramount.

D: I do know that you have been predicting this for a long time. My father, at dinner last night, mentioned that the Dow Jones had gone down 200 points, and he didn't know why. He had just sold something the day before, and he was proud of himself that he did it before the market thing. So, I am just going to try to stay as far away from these workings as possible, so I won't ask you any questions. Let's please continue.

THE DEATH OF THE ONE IN POWER

You will feel protected when these times of change are upon us. Like President Kennedy, there is an important agenda that may very well involve the death of the one in power. We are speaking metaphorically here, in reference to the death of the system that now exists. Again, there will be sacrifices on the immediate personal level; this is an obvious consequence. But, we must again state that the conspiracy theorists have it right on this particular topic. The majority of damage will be to the top level, not the bottom. Those who stand to lose the most are those who stand to gain the most at present, and what to you might seem to be only a flickering of their total wealth, if lost, could be an acrimonious defeat in their own minds.

THE FORCE OF THE JUPITER-SATURN CONJUNCTION

Jupiter challenges Saturn as they move closer and closer together in their orbit. And in between these different events, we can then be sure that those who have ingested the Beta Carotene of the spirit world, those who have the high vital energy through service to others, diet, exercise, and a positive attitude, will not feel the effects of this slingshot, as we have called it, that appears to be pulling back at this time, set to stun or to kill.

STAYING CALM

We recommend that you do as much reading as possible during these changes, and insure that you have utilizations for the time that will be on your hands as a result. Boredom leads to fear and trepidation in a circumstance where society is undergoing some changes. We want to remind you that people will still continue working, and the basic services and vital needs will continue to be met. This is by virtue of the fact that people will continue to order and to organize, and you will see many things come about as a result.

THE FINAL AWAKENING OF SCIENCE

Now and again, you will hear the howling winds as they blow outside the window. You will know the eventual collapse that must come about. You will also be aware of the beckoning difference between the world that is collapsing and the world that is to be. When we start out on this different path, we see that there are different circumstances indeed. Even those younger scientific minds who before had been such bastions of realism and empiricism are opening up their minds to these new realities. And, of course, science is the last step before these new truths are assimilated into the public.

ALL RELIGIONS ARE ONE

Religion also poses somewhat of a barrier, but we find that this is working quite well indeed. One of David's gifts from having his housemate, Apostol, who was a Muslim, was that he realized that many Muslims are very open-minded about the Law of One, and can easily assimilate the beliefs of Christians and other faiths as well into their studies.

And thus, it is not really as divided and as separate as you thought. We are working with all peoples on all levels simultaneously. The tools and practices that we might implement with a Muslim would differ somewhat from those of a person in the Western culture, but these are only labels. An angel for Allah can be the same angel who works for the Lord in the life of an American citizen. We want you to remind these things to yourself the next time that you adopt a bleeding-heart philosophy for those who do not have the “privilege” that you do in the spiritual sense.

Such delusions of personal grandeur can be blown all out of proportion when you fail to see the Oneness of all beings, and your own relative placement within said Oneness. This system is predicated upon an existing foundation of beliefs, whose core internal purpose is to free you of the opinions that surround your self-understanding. And so, even as this Marxist coup in the government is occurring in some way, you can indeed know that the leftist agenda of those more liberal will help to continue to reduce the enslavement of the people who work towards egalitarian balance, and the superposition of the moral concerns over those of the financial.

YOU DO NEED OUR HELP

Our chief financial backers indicate that it would be extremely difficult, if not impossible, for those upon your planet to rectify these problems on their own. And thus, you do need our help, and this will only become clear in what you would term as the future, although many are starting to realize it now. The essential problem is that you are not able to see that far ahead.

The systems that you have now built are creating extraordinary damage to your biosphere. This is to the point where you yourselves would become sterile, or otherwise unviable for survival in a much shorter period of linear time than you could have ever imagined. These die-offs are already starting to happen now in Africa, precipitated by the AIDS virus among others.

And so, we don't want to appear facetious in any overt sense when we talk about the positivity of these changes. Our purpose is to educate and to edify the foundations of your existing beliefs in order that you may have an expansive perspective on these workings and on the reality itself.

LOCAL COMMERCE

Think for a moment whether it is justified for you to begin a commerce with those of your own local area instead of a commerce involving the corporations and giant structures. This is what we expect will happen, as the human will to survive is quite strong. There will be those who jump into action and insure that the food supply is preserved, even as those who would retain positions of power lose the ability to control such matters, and indeed lose their financial viability altogether.

HUMAN SPECIES SURVIVAL

Indeed, this financial collapse is as inevitable as the flood tide, because we have engineered it for your own survival. Were it not to have happened, it would be impossible for you to get through these problems unscathed. The alternatives are indeed far worse. Remember the birds who are showing up all over the world whose beaks go in two different directions and do not line up. These birds must be fed, either intravenously or with an eyedropper, in order to survive at all.

Remember and be aware of the mass deaths in the oceans—the fishes and the emaciated whales washing up on the shores of the West Coast of America by the tens of thousands. Remember the coral reefs, and those experts who expect that they will be 100-percent dead within less than five years. These are the sustenance of the fish in the ocean. (It is believed that, without them, the food chain will be so massively disrupted that all the oceans will die out completely. Furthermore, a recent October 1999 article appeared on the Sightings website, which said that over 50 percent of all freshwater species in North America are expected to become extinct within under ten years.)

DO NOT RUN AND HIDE

Think about all these things. Do not run and hide from the truth. Do not run and hide from the knowledge that is already present in front of you. Accept the necessary parameters of this existence that you now have, and understand that, as you sally forth into these changes, there are those above who are protecting you every step of the way, and are guiding the Light so that it may reach its final destination.

HALTING THE CYNICISM OF THE SYSTEM

The blooming point of Ascension does continue to occur, and in this dream we utilized the metaphors of David's father's recent injury on the ladder so as to prove a point in general about human civilization. You are all working towards a recognition of your own inner wealth, and are becoming more and more ready to halt the cynicism of the outside system that exists. More and more parents are becoming aware of the evils of television, and the harmful effects on young minds that it produces, as there is simply not the quality of educational programs that there were even fifteen years ago.

And so, we see indeed that the glamorized violence is finally having to accept the wrath of the people, which comes about through the fundamental ignoring of its fruits, namely the television entertainment media. We cannot tell you enough how this system has frustrated us. When David talks about not watching television, he is looked upon almost with horror. And yet, continue to have these experiences yourself, and you will discover before too much longer that they do not seem so strange.

The commerce system is indeed breaking down, and the loyalties will indeed be misplaced for a time.

THE BATTLE OF ARMAGEDDON

Many of your people will not even realize that the mythical battle of Armageddon is indeed taking place in a much different format than you would ever have had it. Many people do not realize that there is indeed a Luciferian dogma within some of the secret societies of those in positions of power. There are many others who are not aware of this connection, and thus it is not fair to say that they are all Luciferians. However, those in the highest positions of authority do indeed preach such a connection. Remember that when we say "highest positions of authority" we are not necessarily talking about anyone visible in the government, such as the president.

(10/11: Quite significantly, a MAJOR article came out in the mainstream media about the Luciferian dogma, AFTER this reading was conducted. The article was about a Christian housewife in the Midwest who discovered that the Montessori school handbook, inspired by the work of Rudolf Steiner and others, contained explicit references to Lucifer as being the true "god" of knowledge, which they support. Montessori schools are conducted internationally, and thus this was quite a shocker to those uninformed.)

KEEP OUR CONFIDENCE

You can keep our confidence through being able to witness the fruits of the spirit through your own diligent inner reflection process. We want you to be aware that, in terms of your creaturehood, there is never going to be anything outrageously different. In terms of your spirithood, however, you will experience epic transitions in the blink of an eye, as we have once already stated in the past as you would have it.

A NEW ORACLE

The Board of Directors seeks a new oracle with which to reveal the next phase of the mission. That oracle is you, the reader of these words. Why not take the time to begin remembering your dreams so that you can participate in this mission? When your creaturehood is at its mark, you can then accept the Buddhahood of the spiritual mastery over the physical. Your life in the ethers predicates the reality of your life in the physical, and indeed your life in the physical is molded and sculpted in the ethers before it ever manifests itself.

Now, no one is asking you to become a "Mighty Joe Young" of the higher realms, becoming as a giant gorilla who would crash in to an orderly and established method and cause great destruction. Rather, we want you to see that it is already a natural process for you on the astral or subconscious level. And now, all you have to do is make that awareness conscious, and in so doing you then help to balance yourself in a way never heretofore seen.

If you don't give your dreams a chance, then how are you ever going to know what they could be doing for you? Start today. Start your resolve to bring forth the highest levels of Guidance available to you in a human physical body. Start to have a conscious dedication to be of service to others and to your own highest needs in this matter. Recognize that the process of self-integration, or of reducing your fragmentation as we have spoken of so often in these readings, is most highly assisted by dreamwork.

TAKE NOTES—EVEN IF YOU DON'T UNDERSTAND

Dreamwork is the royal road to integration, as Dr. Fritz Perls once said. So, keep a running journal notebook of your experiences next to your bed. If you wake up and do not remember anything, then date your entry and state it as such. You may choose to do as David does, and write down the day of the week, the date and the time. The reason for putting the day of the week down is that these days have a great bearing upon your experiences. And thus, if you only knew the date, you may not know what point in your natural rhythm or flow you are at. And so, this is important.

We keep reminding you that the tools for transformation are available to you in a very direct format. So many of you are scared to engage in dreamwork, because of the mysteries surrounding it. Embrace the mysteries. Understand that all parts of The Creation have their revealed and unrevealed portions. You should treat every piece of dream data as important. Do not allow your own ignorance of the language of metaphor to cause you to surreptitiously decline this Guidance, with the ego's own conclusion of it having been of no importance.

DO NOT SLEEP LIKE AN ANIMAL

Think about it. Recognize that there is great importance in your dreams. If you are one of the ones who thinks that you do not dream, or insists that you cannot remember anything, now is the time to reassess those priorities. Begin hitting an honest game of baseball with yourself. Recognize that every morning is a new pitch that is going over the home plate, and you have an opportunity to swing at it. If you simply wake up like an animal, you will never be able to remember what is happening to you. If you do not sleep enough, then you are not taking care of yourself in ways that must be rectified.

You must have enough sleep, so that when you wake up you do not suddenly lapse back into consciousness. If you think that you can survive on five or six hours a night, you are mistaken. This is one of the direct causes of cancer, as it were. Find the necessary foodstuffs to purify yourself, as this will also have a great impact upon how much you can remember in the mornings.

All of these things that we speak of are interrelated, and the dreamwork is of such high importance to you, the seeker, the reader of these words, that we again stress its importance, even though we are sure that you are already aware of it.

FAILURE IS IMPOSSIBLE

You will retain pieces of data if you make a concerted effort to do this each morning. It is impossible for you to fail when you begin directing your conscious energy to making an effort to do this each morning. Not one of you can make excuses, or think that this is somehow unimportant or irrelevant. As we move into the next phase of these changes that we have so often spoken of, it will be highly important for you to have a clear connection to The Source, and to know exactly what, when, and where your energies are expected to be doing.

ACCEPTING THE LIGHT WITHIN

Don't ever fail to see the burning Light of the Christ within, and its consistent and constant efforts to make its presence known to you. Again, we stress the line from the Bible which reads, "No one can come unto the Father but by me." We want you to be aware that this is relevant to the Christ within, to your own internal Christ Light, which is that same Light that developed Jesus into the Master, enough so that Apostle Paul later referred to him as the Son of God and The Christ, although this was not initially intended.

You are also a Son of God, or a Daughter of God, and you have equal potentials. Jesus was meant to show you the way, was meant to lead you in the proper direction. He wanted to demonstrate the abilities that you will be able to have when you open yourself up to Love in such a manner. It is not necessary to martyr yourself or to go to the cross, and the aspect of him having died for your sins has much more to do with providing an example, instead of providing an excuse.

SPIRITUAL SELF-RESPONSIBILITY

There are those people in the Fundamentalist faiths who think that because Jesus died on the cross, they no longer need to worry about their own personal evolution process. If you, the reader of these readings, think about that, you might laugh to yourself, and it might seem rather unimportant. However, keep in mind that there are still those who have whitewashed the processes of personal transformation, and believe that the blood of Jesus Christ will wash away all their sins.

When you can begin seeing this as nothing more than an example, an example of how to conduct yourself, you must look at this in a whole different light. Never again can you be so blind as to refuse the guidance of the Inner Christ within, which comes through dreams, metaphors, synchronicities, symbolism, and the voices and words of those who you meet in your day-to-day interactions.

ACCEPTING SYNCHRONICITY AS TRUTH

We know that it causes you to have a very large revision of your belief structures in order to see how the physical world can speak to you in terms of this metaphor. Synchronicity, and the language of metaphor that it is predicated upon, does seem to be quite impossible to so many of you. And yet, contrapositively we can assure you of its existence, because after all, we are the creators of same.

YOU ARE LOVED

Keep all these thoughts in mind as you move throughout each day. Begin to see your physical illusion as nothing more than a projection of thought/energy/consciousness that is the collective effort of so many entities, both inside and outside of your physical sphere of influence. We remind you once again that you are loved more than you could ever possibly imagine, and that this fathomless beauty that we see in you is something that you must also begin honoring within yourselves. We look forward to taking you through this next stage of your personal evolution, wherein the planetary circumstances will assist you in finding a clear connection to this Inner Christ.

We now have to end this reading. Peace be with you in the Light of everlasting Love. Adonai.

Closing Remarks

The facts are, hard changes are upon us as a species. Whether we like it or not, we must face the immediate reality of transformation—personal, metamorphic, deep cellular, and spiritual change. The third-dimensional restrictive facade of "time" is fading into the sunrise of a much expanded fourth-dimensional fluent experience, a future pregnant with possibility, rich in potential, truly a blank canvas upon which to paint one's own reality. The question becomes academic as to whether or not one wants to make a choice. A choice is inevitable; it is as sure as breath itself.

And with each breath comes the promise of another, and another. And with each new breath also comes the help that is freely offered from our dear Elder Brothers sent from God, sent to Guide our way home, ultimately.

But in the meantime we must nurture and care for our Earth, for Earth is an integral part within The Creation itself. And our regard (or disregard) toward Mother Earth is a reflection of our deeper desire to embrace (or not) the responsibility that comes along with freedom in general.

And so, too, we must always remember that, in order to receive the Higher Help which is always available, we must first ASK for it. The Creation, which holds life in its delicate orbital balance, in cooperation and conjunction with God's will, awaits the decisions of man, whose choices will ultimately determine man's place in the universal order.

The question then becomes: will man earn his rightful seat at the table of the Galactic Federation, or will he withdraw to the cave to scrape out an existence in the darkness? "Time" alone will answer this question, and "time", too, shall soon be a thing of the past.

It is hoped that the overall picture presented by the various segments of this article provide some impetus to assist ones of sincere inquiry to tap the Potential within themselves which is always there, waiting to be recognized and utilized. On the one hand, these times can be viewed with trepidation and fear, as the time to finally "pay the piper" for past selfish choices on both a personal and planetary scale. However, on the other hand, the challenging times we are now experiencing can be the most exhilarating and soul expanding opportunity possible in the physical realm. What happens for each of us, personally, will be exactly what we—each of us—make it to be.

So we each must ask ourselves: "What am I making MY life to be at this time?" And then have the courage to answer yourself honestly!

What follow are some closing remarks from several of the contributors to this article. Sometimes the scope of the entire forest can get lost when examining the trees closely. It helps to back-up and remember the Larger Picture under discussion at this time.

David Wilcock, from Convergence:

Cayce also states that the Pyramid (the Great Pyramid of Giza) was built to triangulate upon "the time when the Earth shifts its position", which as we have already seen appears to be coming up very soon, as a product of the Sun's activity. Again, Cayce has this date at 2001. Cayce also speaks of 25,000-year cycles, correlating them with the rise and fall of various civilizations, including Atlantis.

Well, what does this say about the Mayan calendar date? Though the pyramid timeline extends right straight through to the future, it doesn't mention it at all.

This was definitely part of the reason why Wilcock assumed that the regular Mayan calendar dating system was wrong. But perhaps our readers are still not satisfied that this represents a problem. We could define the 2012 date by saying that, since both Egyptian and Mayan cultures were isolated from each other, one hand didn't know what the other was doing. Therefore, one might not assume that the Egyptians would have access to the same data as the Mayans. Yet, both cultures built pyramids and mummified their dead, and seaworthy sailing ships were recently discovered to be perfectly preserved and buried in the "boat pits" surrounding the Great Pyramid. Thus, the cultural similarities, of which there are many, might very well have been no accident, but a product of Egyptians making direct contact with the Mayans by sailing overseas. Many good books have been written to solidify this conclusion.

With the incredible precision of the Mayan calendar and its correct measurement of the solar/precessional cycle harmonic in years, and the incredible precision of the Great Pyramid, the most enigmatic object on the face of the planet, one must seriously consider a common link.

Yet, when we take the two puzzle pieces, being the timelines, and slam them together, one thing remains clear: something is wrong; the puzzle pieces don't seem to fit. No special attention seems to be given to the 2012 date, almost as if the outlay of events had occurred prior to that time, and the date was also overshadowed by events that occurred thereafter.

When we look to the Mayans, we can see a culture that might very well have preserved a great deal of Atlantean knowledge over time. Nowhere is this more apparent than in their amazing preservation of a system of precise data regarding Sunspot cycles. The work of Maurice Cotterell gave us the hard science to back up the Mayan numbers. So, when we learn from Mayan codices that these calendar cycles chart the beginnings and endings of AGES, the pieces do indeed start fitting very nicely. The Mayans had a system of mathematics so exact that we are still trying to catch up to them today, and figure out exactly how they came about all of this information.

In Edgar Cayce's reading 1602-003, the following enigmatic lines appear:

"In 1998 we may find a great deal of the activities as have been wrought by the gradual changes that are coming about. These are at the periods when the cycle of the solar activity, or the years as related to the Sun's passage through the various spheres of activity, become paramount...to the change between the Piscean and Aquarian age...."

We then looked at Cayce's timeline of events, and saw that this "cycle of the solar activity" most probably breaks down into 25,000-year intervals. We connected this cycle of time to the 25,920-year precession of the equinoxes, the Earth's slow wobble which shifts our view of the stars in the night sky by one degree every seventy-two years. Then, we examined the Ra material, and we saw that this 25,000-year solar cycle is indeed in effect, and will shift the dimensional frequencies here on Earth:

"One major cycle is approximately 25,000 of your years. There are three cycles of this nature during which those who have progressed may be harvested at the end of three major cycles.... This sphere...has not made an easy transition to the vibrations which beckon. This inconvenience...shall continue unabated for a period of approximately thirty of your years.

"Q: After this period of thirty years (1981+30=2011), I am assuming that this will be a fourth density planet. Is this correct?

RA: I am Ra. This is so."

Once we had gotten our information from Ra, we looked in the groundbreaking work of Maurice Cotterell, who discovered an identical cycle in the solar body through strictly scientific means. Cotterell also discovered that the Mayans had the same information encoded in stone, through the Mayan calendar. We looked at all of the clues suggested from Cotterell's work and others that indicate that we are due for a major change, a possible pole shift or "the end of the present world". Then, we saw the work of John Mini, who revealed to us the existence of an Aztec Sun calendar that many believe ends August 13, 1999. This is only two days after the August 11, 1999 Grand Cross/total solar eclipse configuration that will occur directly over Cornwall, England, which we are speculating may be the first possible opportunity for Ascension.

Then, we checked in with ex-NASA scientist Maurice Chatelain for his insights on the Mayan calendar. From this work, we were led to discover the incredible mathematical precision of the Jupiter-Saturn conjunction, and its effects on the Great Solar Cycle. We learned that there is only a 54-day difference between the actual timing of a J-S conjunction and a Mayan katun of 7200 days. When we figured the number of days in one of Chatelain's Mayan calendar cycles, based on J-S conjunctions at 1,886,040 days, and then subtracted this from the length of one of Cotterell's "sunspot shift cycles" at 1,366,040 days, we came up with exactly 520,000 days left over. Cotterell demonstrates how the number 520, or 2x260, is a universal system for "shifting" cycles. From this one point, we can see how the J-S conjunction obviously fits into the grand scheme of things in a mysterious, synchronistic, and mathematically precise fashion.

Hoagland had written an entire study on his website that showed that this event had even more radio-jamming, hyperdimensional power than the common 11-year sunspot cycle. When we looked at the actual timing of the J-S conjunction, we realized that it very strongly suggested May 28, 2000 as a date of great significance. On this date, Jupiter and Saturn, the drivers of the Great Solar Cycle, will make their last conjunction prior to the completion of the cycle itself. That certainly is an event of great significance.

Robert Ghost Wolf, from Through The Eye Of The Shaman:

We are preparing at this time for the Awakening. Events that are happening in our universe are bringing into alignment something very special and unique. There are planetary alignments that are occurring to orchestrate certain frequencies within our solar system, amongst Earth's sister planets, that will realign the holographic patterns of Earth and her expressed reality, placing her back into harmony with her own signature frequencies. Thus the holographic patterns through which The Light expresses is the living theater we call the human drama.

The Earth herself will be set back to her original frequencies, and that which has been holding the present holographic reality will begin to dissolve, as the original frequencies are reinstated and the overlay is removed from our consciousness.

* * *

As you move into alignment with the God Force, there is absolutely no way of predetermining what will happen next. You are moving into uncharted waters, the unknown. Your focus will get you there, but you cannot be in denial. You can never outwit The Universal God Force, which is why it is called a Great Mystery.

* * *

You are but an extended part of the Creator. The Creator, though separate from you, is also one and the same as you. The Creator gave unto you, Itself—Its Life Force and Its Consciousness. The Creator is the Universal, while you are the singular expression of the same thought. All that The Creator is, was given unto you so that you might be and have all that you desire. Whatever you can conceive of in your contemplative thought, so can it be...if you so choose to Will it into existence. It is Source that is the Energy that fulfills your dreams and desires, and it is Source that is the Dream-maker. And who are you? You are the dreamer, the spinner of what flows through your Consciousness, which is the Source as It contemplates Its experience through your adventure. So, what are dreams made from? They are made from thought.

The Creator has given you the Energy, as It has unto the Earth that derives its Life Force from the Sun. The Source has created the seed that the grasses grow from, and from the grasses the Great Spirit has given you the means to spin the cloth and make the robe that you wear. While in another moment It has given you the grasses from which you harvest the seed and make the bread that you subsist upon. It is a dance, and you are the choreographer designing each step and the tempo of the experience, as you express in the moment.

It is your Divine Right to take from the gifts Creator has bestowed upon you and create anything that you wish, be it great or be it vile, be it ugly or be it beautiful, be it happy or be it sad, be it abundance, be it lack...it is your right to create anything you so desire. The Source of All That Is sees all things as splendid beauty and an emanation of Its Life Force...for all things of themselves are ultimately pure. Source, the Father-Mother principle of all that expresses itself in material form, judges not Its Creations, nor does Source discern one better than the other...for all is life, and life itself is Sacred.

A Remarkable Glimpse Of Egyptian History

Editor's note: The following is a gem of a provocative report from excellent researcher and contributor to this newspaper, Calvin Burgin. One humorous point made loud-and-clear herein is that if your Guides "upstairs" really want something important to cross your path, they'll make sure it happens—one way or another.

The second reason we share this is because of the fascinating information about ancient Egypt and their language which is revealed. A side matter is the futile suppression of such key information by the so-called "elite" controllers. Maybe some Egyptian scholars out there, unbiased by the kind of "paycheck blindness" which clouds the vision of so many, can pursue this information further.

And the third point to note is made near the end of Calvin's article, where this 1930s book corroborates one of the issues which David Icke made in his Front Page interview with Rick Martin (see the August 3, 1999 issue of The SPECTRUM) about the shape-shifting "low-life" entities who infest our planet in key world control positions—that they encourage and require low-frequency things like war in order to maintain their existence in our dimensional realm.

Looks like Calvin has "discovered" a new long-term research project which will be of great interest to many at this time of significant revelations of The Truth on all fronts. Any of you readers out there who can help Calvin find the necessary books (which he refers to herein) to continue this research can contact him at his wrldline@texas.net email address.

9/19/99 CALVIN BURGIN

A friend of mine was given a box of old books and he brought it to me to see if I wanted any. One thing I DON'T have is a shortage of books to read. I picked out a couple that I might look at someday, and turned down the rest. He suggested I read one on reincarnation, but I passed on it. I said I didn't have time to read it. I felt that I did not need to waste my time reading somebody else's explanation of something he probably did not really understand anyway.

A week later the friend called me at work and said he wanted to know if I was going to be in, he had some books for me. This sounded a bit odd, since he never bothered to call before he came by previously, and I am "always in" during working hours. He came back by with two of the books he had brought before and just delivered them to me without asking.

One of the books was about how the Bible came to be written. I will look at it more closely someday; it might have something worthwhile. The other book was the one he had said was about "reincarnation" which I had already told him before that I was not interested in. He must have forgotten.

It turns out that it is a fascinating book! It gives the keys to understanding the SPOKEN language of Egypt of the time of Akhenaton III! It is about a psychic investigator and a "medium" named Rosemary who communicated with a spirit being who is currently named Nona. Nona said she was formerly known as Telika, who at that time was the Babylonian princess who married Amenhotep III. Amenhotep III was the predecessor to Akhenaton and usually considered to be the first to honor The God of Light, Aton.

The book is called This Egyptian Miracle and was written by Frederic H. Wood in 1939. Telika/Nona worked with Wood and restored the lost speech of Ancient Egypt by speaking in Egyptian and giving the translations when needed. The speaking was recorded on audio recorders. The book tells the story of the scholars who tried unsuccessfully to disprove Wood. Telika and other "Higher Powers" worked with Rosemary and Wood and restored the ancient Egyptian SPOKEN language with keys to understanding how to correctly translate the WRITTEN language. The book mentions thirty volumes of material in Rosemary Records already completed. Wood also wrote two other books called After Thirty Centuries and Ancient Egypt Speaks.

A clay tablet found at Tell el Amarna in 1887 is a copy of a letter sent by the Babylonian king to Pharaoh Amenhotep III which said: "Behold, thou desirest my daughter for thyself in marriage, while my sister, that my father gave thee, is there with thee: and nobody now has seen her, whether she be living or dead." Apparently, the sister in this tablet was Telika. Telika said she married Amenhotep "in his later years".

The book is mostly about language, but there are fascinating tidbits here and there. In the 1930s Telika said of the Sphinx:

"I think they will find something under the Sphinx; a temple or room of some kind. There were steps going down, and then a small flight up to a door. I seem to see a floor made of earth, marked off in brilliant colours, patterned."

Telika says it was she, and not Teie (now often spelled Tiy, Tiye, etc.), who used her influence with Pharaoh Amenhotep III in favour of the New Religion which Akh-en-Aten, his son, adopted in the next reign. For so doing, the priests and Teie hated her and later tried to destroy her name from history. She was killed by the priests in a boating "accident".

This means that the religion of Aton attributed to Akhenaton was introduced to Akhenaton's father by Telika from Babylonia. Telika was known as a "Fenkhu", a word usually understood to mean Phoenician, but Telika said it can also sometimes mean Asiatics in general. She said "the term was very loosely applied in my time".

Telika said that the square sign in Egyptian hieroglyphics is usually thought to mean P, but that is a modern mistake and that it actually means V. She said the name Ptah, which is unpronounceable with P, should actually be "Vatah"—very similar to the German "Vater" which now means "father".

She said that "I am one of many hundreds who are making contact now". This was in the 1930s.

Also she said "We do not matter, anyhow. The work will go on, whatever happens, because God wants it to. We must stop thinking about ourselves and the part we play in it, for we are individuals of no consequence. Nothing can stop this work. No amount of persecution can stop it. It will go on."

Wood wrote: "To the timid souls who would suggest that one life at a time is sufficient to occupy our whole attention, I would point out that my family guides on the Other Side say they all bitterly regretted, afterwards, that they did not know more of these facts while they were here. The laws of existence, as taught by Nona [Telika], show that it is to our interest so to order our conduct in this life that the next cycle may find us farther along the road of spiritual development. We can reduce the number of necessary incarnations, if we choose, by stricter obedience to the laws of right living, and by unselfish service.

"We bring into this life the accumulated gains and losses of a currency of spiritual growth. Each of us is not merely 'a bundle of ancestors' in our physical traits. We are also bundles of our former selves, in the attributes of character. We pass out of each life taking with us the sum-total of all those former experiences, plus a new balance-sheet for the life just ended.

“Nona teaches that the main purpose of existence is to give us experience, whether easy or difficult, which may be for our ultimate welfare. We can control our destiny to some extent if in the struggle we overcome both the defects with which we were born—which in many cases are the outcome of former errors—together with the handicaps of present environment, which in some cases we chose deliberately, states Nona, before we came to Earth, in order to give ourselves the training needed. We can ensure that our future shall be better and happier than our past: first, by overcoming pre-natal defects which, when finally overcome, will trouble us no more. This is a feature of Nona’s teaching, and it was also held by the ancient Egyptians; secondly, we make spiritual progress by all forms of disinterested service.”

Nona/Telika said in one talk: “The whole Egyptian argument is of infinitesimal importance compared with the truth you have begun to propagate. You are but touching the fringe of these mysteries, which are only part of a still larger mystery. You on Earth have seized upon a tiny part of the Truth; and as you are so misinformed about Time—or what you think of as Time—this accounts for much confusion of thought.”

“Personal responsibility is a hard teaching. Many souls on Earth could not bear it. People will not believe the truth until they can bear it, but we are doing it the right way. Anything which will help people to take a long view of life, both backwards and forwards, is most necessary. We cannot begin to think about life and its problems until we can think both ways.”

“There never will be in the physical life that millennium you all hope for. This Earth is a mere school, a passing phase. One prophet after another must come to help people to realize that this life is a mere room which we must enter at one end and leave at the other. You live in Time, which has a false vibration and dimension.”

Wood said that “as we go to press, war has broken out between Britain, France, and Poland on the one hand, and Nazi Germany on the other”. He then comments that he and Rosemary were working with many in Germany and he hoped to renew contact with the Germans after the war.

On April 22, 1936, Nona said: “There are great forces on the Other Side who delight in war. The lowest forces struggle for existence and expression on your side, too, and war enables them to manifest.” On July 6, she said: “I see thick, dirty black clouds, and guns fired, but they do not obscure the whole sky.”

I will now be most interested in trying to find Frederic Wood’s other books Rosemary Records, After Thirty Centuries and Ancient Egypt Speaks! I needed some more books, anyway!

On “Reptilian” Shape-Shifting And The Hatonn-Ra Connection

10/29/99 HATONN

Good evening, my friend. It is I, Gyeorgos Ceres Hatonn, come to you in Light and in Service to The One Light—Creator God—symbolized Lovingly in your language by the term and tonality “Aton”. Be at peace.

My scribe asks that I scan the various ones who will receive this message and that I address that which will be of the greatest benefit to ALL. And so we shall.

Many of you ones are seeking to have insight on the political and economical thinking and “reasoning” of the so-called elite of your planet so as to have “inside” information and prophecy as to what will happen. Many are seeking to have confirmation of David Icke and Credo Mutwa’s information regarding the reptilian phenomena [presented as Front Page stories in the August 3 and October 5 issues of The SPECTRUM, respectively]. And still most of you would like to have specific information regarding the various UFO craft being sighted in your skies and what is the Intergalactic Federation’s specific role at this time. (Some refer to us as the Confederation of Planets in service to The Infinite Source. Both are translational variances of the same idea.)

These topics are quite interesting for you ones to think about, and we who come in Lighted Service to Creator Source must strike a balance between information that is truly helpful and productive, and that which would merely serve as a distraction from more important but less-asked-about situations.

First and foremost, please do NOT get overly worried or distracted by things like reptilian shape-shifting entities. Fear and worry will only serve to lower your frequency vibration and thus destabilize your inner ability to remain consciously connected to Higher Guidance. There are many phenomena on your planet that you ones have difficulty expressing in words, for there are hardly the words to describe the happenings of higher-dimensional events as they produce a harmonic vibrational effect (and thus observable manifestation) in your density.

For many thousands of your years, there have been encounters with higher-dimensional entities who you ones would describe as both angelic and demonic. There are ones who you would call demonic who have a primary agenda of enslaving your planetary population so as to further aid their own survival. As your planet continually raises in frequency, you will become more and more aware of these entities as they will become apparent to you each in various manners. This is because you are moving up in frequency and they cannot now so easily “hide” in a vibratory range that used to be far less accessible to you.

Many of your Shamen, Adepts, and other ones who have developed “second sight” can, have, and will see right before their eyes the kind of shape-shifting transformations reported by David Icke or Credo Mutwa and others, where seemingly physical features (actually mostly etheric perceptions) are described as becoming “distorted” or “ugly” or “reptilian” or such in appearance. Note that what is observed always generates a negative emotional “gut” reaction (a warning from one’s inner “radar”) rather than causing a feeling that is positive or uplifting.

It is quite possible for ones to observe the extreme overshadowment (demonic possession of sorts) of low-frequency humans by dark, other-dimensional energies. For all intents and purposes, the human ones so “possessed” then become physical manifestations of (and hosts for) these demonic, other-dimensional entities.

When ones are around human beings who are overshadowed in such a thorough manner, they will often begin to perceive the very powerful non-physical demonic entities as they really are. The observer of this phenomenon will indeed see—again, more with etheric sight than physical—the transfiguration of the human likeness into the “reptilian” likeness as clear as you would witness the changing of a television station. The “distortions” in etheric appearance (which cause a negative “gut” reaction in you Lighted ones) are, generally speaking, the result of the continual efforts of these demonic ones to deny their Lighted connection to Source.

These darkly motivated, other-dimensional entities have been working non-stop to try to enslave the freedom of third-dimensional entities for thousands upon thousands of years. These ones generally come from an area of your Milky Way Galaxy that you refer to as the Orion Constellation. These ones are VERY real and have woven symbols of their place of origin into many of your planetary endeavors—such as in the political, business, and entertainment arenas which impose controls on you in one way or another.

These demonic ones are those who are, in large part, responsible for the overly materialistic focus of your planet at this time.

These ones use the temptations of wealth, power, and ego desire for fame and recognition to try to seduce you (a testing process) into distractions which can eventually trap you under their control if you are not cautious and attentive to the process. These ones are the ones to whom you “sell your soul” when, in a moment of desperation, you state something to the effect: “I’d do ANYTHING for ---”. This sort of low-frequency, emotionally desperate statement sends out a call to these ones, which then permits them a foothold within your space that is well within the rules of non-interference of free will. Remember that the call always compels the answer; this call would be likened to a petition or prayer to the Angelic or Lighted aspects of Creation, just turned around the other way.

These demonic ones, if allowed to persist, will begin to give human individuals what they are wanting in terms of material wealth, fame, recognition and such, and the price is that the human individual becomes their puppet to control. This can continue to such a degree that, for all intents and purposes, the demonic entity becomes the human person.

This game has been going on for centuries upon centuries upon your planet. It should be recognized and appreciated how such fits into the Larger Picture of the testing aspect of learning your lessons on schoolroom Earth.

Your planet has already passed her final testing and is nicely adjusting to her new fourth-density position. The transition will not be fully completed for several hundred of your years. However, as I have already stated, as the background planetary frequency continues to raise, these darkly-motivated fourth-density demonic entities are becoming more and more visible to you ones now experiencing the transformation (awakening) process.

These dark ones know that their time of mischief-making grows short. It is a matter of mathematical certainty. The high planetary frequency and the high frequency of those of you who observe these harmonic manifestations (intrusions) into the third-density illusion will cause their mischievous charade to dissolve in relatively short order.

Why is this? Remember that each must wear a sign, and the sensing or perception of the overall energy form of these dark ones automatically prompts an emotional (soul-level or “gut”) response-reaction of disgust in those who are, in the majority, oriented towards the Lighted aspects of The Creation. Thus this “gut” disgust reaction creates a kind of “intrinsic motivation” within Lighted ones to put an end to the charade of the dark ones!

If I may use your words in a non-common format, this phenomenon of shape-shifting could be termed “fourth-dimensional ‘bleed-through’ into the third-dimensional consciousness (reality)”. The stronger the demonic overshadowment, the more likely the effects of same will be observable in the physical domain.

From a behavioral point of view, a completely demonically possessed person can appear quite calm, rational, and relatively normal by external looks of things. Meanwhile, the basically good-hearted person who is entertaining such dark energies, but struggling for release, is the one who often becomes somewhat erratic, vicious, and nasty in their behavior; this is, by the way, the real-life basis for theatrical portrayals of such struggles in movies such as The Exorcist. The demonic entity knows its time of influence is potentially short-lived, and thus considers it has very little to lose by not keeping its presence more hidden.

The Lighted ones who are bringing forth the messages of exposure, and otherwise awakening the public, are prime candidates for attack by such controlled individuals. The dark ones cannot stand to have their cover blown, for they know that they will be rejected as soon as they are identified and exposed. Awakened Lighted ones have the unlimited Power of God working through them (through prayers, etc.) to dissolve dark energy infestations.

Therefore these dark ones (both the demonic entity and the controlled human host) are drawn to having secret meetings and rituals wherein they can more fully manifest and intensify their true vibrational nature. When these ones come together for the purpose of such expression of their true nature, there will be, to use a scientific term, a “heterodyning” (or mixing and multiplying) of their energies, and thus there will be formed dimensional vortices wherein the demonic entities can “recharge” themselves and receive their “higher” instructions.

Realize, please, that these higher-dimensional dark entities are themselves puppets—slaves to still higher-dimensional beings such as ones you have termed Lucifer and Satan. The irony is that BOTH these demonic entities and their human, so-called elite hosts on your planet, who work to enslave the rest of you, are themselves enslaved by the higher-dimensional slave-masters. They are kept in a constant state of manipulation (distraction) and thus are somewhat blinded to the nature of their true condition and state of disconnect.

This process continues until there is little-to-no true soul essence left in either the human host puppets or their other-dimensional masters. Such entities typically dissolve back into undifferentiated (non-polarized) soul essence (Light), wherefrom they will take on a first-density existence and repeat the evolutionary cycle again.

These dark ones are fully exploring an aspect of The Creation that makes up the duality (polarity) of experience. This is necessary, else there would be no choice and thus no free-will needed in order to choose. ALL aspects of The Creation serve a viable function and ALL is inter-connected and inter-dependent upon ALL else for proper balanced interchange and growth. Just as with your sporting events, there has to be opposing sides in order for there to be a challenge (testing) of knowledge, skill, and determination.

Your political and economic illusions are molded and manipulated, for the most part, by darkened humans who have been taken over in such a manner as I have described above. These ones are truly the minority of your planet and they have a great fear of the awakening, Lighted masses.

The darkened ones know that there will be such a great focus of high-frequency energy directly upon them, as well as prayers and petitions (calls which compel responses) from the masses to the Lighted Realms of Creation, for assistance, that their whole game will be dissolved. Many of these darkly motivated ones will expend their very last conscious thought as they struggle to maintain their present, low-frequency vibratory orientation in the focused presence of pure Love/Light, and thus they too will dissolve back into undifferentiated (non-polarized) Light Source essence. Herein you have the formula and the Higher Soul-ution to the game being played at this time.

Fear NOT these darkened ones, for they thrive on the frequency of fear; they know that they control you to some degree by the mere act of you being frightened. Fear NOT such contrived notions as failure, embarrassment, ridicule and such. These are but mere tools used to keep you from recognizing your God-given right to freely choose to call upon ALL of The Creation to offer you a solution for the betterment (freedom) of all mankind everywhere.

Imposing the will of the few upon the majority, through the use of force, is not the answer that will garner you freedom. It is the answer that ensures your own enslavement to another—in most cases the ones pulling the strings are from other than the physical density. Remember: ALL of the dark, so-called elite of your world are, in fact, themselves slaves to another.

Let us focus now on another topic of concern at this time. Many of you are wanting to know specific details of the purpose and function of the Intergalactic Federation Of Sovereign Planets. We of the Federation (sometimes referred to as the Confederation Of Planets) come to you in Lighted Service to Creator-Creation and we serve the Higher Will of the One Infinite Source. We serve as a matter of free will choice and we all come into this service in the same way that many of you are now—or have in the past—come into this same service.

We answer the call of a petition for assistance and we do so with the Highest Idea and Knowing that to help another is to help ALL ones everywhere including, but not in any way limited to, ourselves. Many of you who are drawn to this information at this time are what you have come to know as Ground Crew for the Federation's effort to assist. (Such ones have also been referred to as Wanderers in some prior information offered to your planet by the Federation/Confederation.)

You each choose to incarnate into a particular planetary arena as a means for bringing forth the desired assistance as a Lighted wayshower. There is also, almost always, a lesson that you need to experience in order to balance out past "energy ridges" (karma) that you may have accumulated along the way to this point in your experience.

There is utmost care and consideration given to the choice and decision to go back through the "veil of forgetting" and into a third-density experience, such as on your planet, for there is always the possibility of acquiring an unbalanced energy exchange (karma), and thus there becomes a need for even further repetitions at later times. This is not all that uncommon. However, Love toward others almost always makes the "risk" well worth the challenging undertaking.

Recent offerings brought to your attention in The SPECTRUM newspaper by one David Wilcock refer to a body of information commonly called the Ra Material or The Law Of One. This information was offered to your planetary consciousness by the Federation (Confederation) starting in the early 1980s and chronicles contact with us beginning in 1962. My scribe recently had a copy of this material "dropped in his lap"—after several unsuccessful attempts by us through various routes that suggested to this one that he get this material. My scribe was perhaps more startled than anyone to find the following information in the introduction section to the first volume of the series. You will also find an interesting description of the general purpose for the Federation/Confederation craft in your skies and why we operate in a manner which you may perceive as a mystery.

15, 1981 and February 17, 1981. This suggests that the following introductory message(s) from Hatonn are around 18 years old, and perhaps go as far back as the 1962 initiation of contact.

This series of five books were compiled from trance sessions conducted through Carla Rueckert (with questions asked by Don Elkins). This excellent material is available from a non-profit organization: L/L Research Publications, P.O. Box 5195, Louisville, KY 40255-0195; phone/fax: 502-245-6495. They also have Internet access via the website address www.llresearch.org wherein is more complete ordering information. These ones do not accept credit cards. While they offer a number of publications besides the five Ra volumes, at different suggested donations, all of the Ra volumes have a suggested donation of $11.50 each to cover their production costs.]

[QUOTING:]

I [Carla Rueckert] could spend the length of the book attempting to give you a sketchy introduction to the thousands and thousands of sightings like Captain Mantell's that involve irrefutably puzzling and concrete evidence of something highly strange occurring. There are many radar sightings of UFOs. There is one volume, published by the Center For UFO Studies in Evanston, Illinois, which deals solely with the numerous physical traces that UFOs have left behind, either by irradiating the soil, causing other changes in soil composition, or leaving impressions in the ground. A computer set up by this same organization to carry a program of information regarding UFOs contains well over 80,000 reports; and some things become startlingly clear by the use of "UFOCAT" the computer. For instance, it is now possible, if one measures a landing trace from a UFO sighting, to find out from the computer what the probable description of the UFO itself will be. Thus, in a way, the witness is merely confirming what the computer already knows.

However, this is an introduction to a book which consists of transcripts of messages of a very precise nature having to do with metaphysics, philosophy, and the plan of evolution, both physical and spiritual, of man on Earth. Consequently, what I propose to do is share with you some of the research material which our group has collected through the years. Since all of these examples come from the same group, we never describe who the receiver may be, as we feel that it is the information that is important rather than the person who is transmitting.

According to an entity called Hatonn, who has spoken with our group and several others for many years, the purpose in being here of at least some of the UFOs that are seen in our skies at this time is much like the purpose that we might have in sending aid to a disaster-stricken or extremely impoverished country. It is a desire to be of service.

"We have been contacting people of planet Earth for many, many of your years. We have been contacting at intervals of thousands of years those who sought our aid. It is time for many of the people of this planet to be contacted, for many now have the understanding and the desire to seek something outside the physical illusion that has for so many years involved the thinking of those of this planet.

"The process we are stimulating is one which is self-generating. As more and more of those who desire our contact receive it and pass it on to others, then those who receive this passed-on information will then themselves be able to reach a state of thinking and understanding sufficiently in-tune, shall I say, with our vibrations in order to receive our contact. For this, my friends, is how contacts work.

"It is first necessary, if the entity is to be able to receive our contact, for him to become of a certain vibration as a result of his thinking. This is greatly speeded by involvement in groups such as this. And then it is finally done through meditation. In other words, the verbal communications given to the entity by the channels such as this one create a system of thought and a desire for spiritual awareness that raises his vibration.

"We of the Confederation of Planets in the Service of The Infinite Creator are very sorry that we cannot step upon your soil and teach those of your people who desire our service. But, my friends, as we have said before, this would be a very great disservice to those who do not desire our service at this time, and we are afraid we would have little effect in bringing understanding even to those who desire it, for understanding, my friends, comes from within. We can only guide. We can only suggest. We are attempting to do this in such a way that the seeking of the individual will be stimulated to turning his thinking inward, inward to that single source of love and understanding, The Creator, who is part of us all, part of everything that exists, for everything that exists, my friends, is The Creator.

"We are very privileged to have you join with us in this great service at this time in the history of your planet. For this is a very great time, a great transitional period, in which many of the Earth's people will be raised from their state of confusion to a simple understanding: the love of their Creator.”

Hatonn speaks of our desire to seek something outside the physical illusion. What he talks about so persuasively is something that is often referred to by members of what Ra calls the Confederation of Planets in the Service of The Infinite Creator as “the original thought”. This is another term for our word “love”, but implies a great deal more. It implies a unity that is so great that we do not see each other simply as close friends, or brothers and sisters, but, ideally, as The Creator; and, as we see each other and ourselves as The Creator, we see one being. This concept is at the very heart of telepathy and Hatonn talks about this concept and the original thought in general:

“At this time I am in a craft far above your place of dwelling. I am at this time able to monitor your thoughts. This, my friends, might seem to some of your peoples to be an infringement, but I can assure you that it is not. Our capabilities of knowing the thinking of the peoples of this planet Earth are not designed in any way to infringe upon either their thinking or their activities. We do not consider the knowledge of the thoughts of others to be an infringement, for we see these thoughts as our own. We see these thoughts as the thoughts of The Creator.

“My friends, it may seem to you that a thought of a nature other than one of love and brotherhood might be a thought generated not of our Creator. This is not possible, my friends. All thought that is generated is generated by The Creator. All things that are generated are generated by The Creator. He is all things and is in all places, and all of the consciousness and all of the thought that exists is the thought of our Creator. His infinite number of parts all have free will, and all may generate in any way they choose. All of his parts communicate with all of The Creation, in his entire and infinite sense.

“We are not attempting to change the thinking of our Creator. We are only attempting to bring his ideas to some of the more isolated parts for their inspection and appraisal. Isolated parts, I say, my friends, and why should we consider these parts to be isolated? We consider them isolated because, from our point of view, they have chosen to wander far from the concept that we have found to permeate most of the parts of The Creation with which we are familiar. We find, my friends, that man upon planet Earth, in his experiences and experiments, has become isolated in his thinking and has divorced it from that to which we are accustomed in the vast reaches of Creation which we have experienced.

“I urge you, my friends, to remember what we have brought to you. The next time that you are, shall we say, backed into a corner by the circumstances which prevail within the illusion of your physical existence, remember what you have learned and do not forget what you have worked so hard to obtain. You will choose at any time to alter your needs and desires from within the physical illusion to your being within The Creation of the Father. As long as your objectives lie within this physical illusion, it will be necessary for you to be subject to the laws which prevail within this illusion. If your desires can be altered by the application of what you are learning and are lifted in The Creation of the Infinite One, then, my friends, you may have a great deal more ability to remove yourself from the corners into which the illusion seems to back you.”

To some who may read these words, the concepts may seem to be a less-than-practical and certainly overly idealistic method of discussing what many have called the New Age or the Age of Aquarius. It certainly seems unlikely that an entire planet could go so wrong philosophically and that beings supposedly more advanced than we would care enough about us to attempt to help us.

However as we look for the heart of the “cosmic” system of philosophy, we find much that is clear and simple without being simplistic in the least, much that is ethical without being dogmatic—in short, much that is informative. Here Hatonn speaks of the nature of reality, which, in the main, seems to have escaped the notice of Earth man:

“My friends, man on Earth has become very shortsighted in appreciation of The Creation. He does not understand the true meaning of the simple and beautiful life that surrounds him. He does not appreciate its generation and regeneration. He learns that the very atmosphere that he breathes is cycled through the plant life to be regenerated to support him and his fellow beings and creatures, and yet this seems to the vast majority of those who dwell upon this planet to be an exercise in technology rather than one in theology. There is no awareness of The Creator’s plan to provide for his children, to provide for their every desire, and to provide a state of perfection. Man on Earth has lost the awareness that is rightfully his. And why, my friends, has he lost this awareness? He has lost this because he has focused his attention upon devices and inventions of his own. He has become hypnotized by his playthings and his ideas. He is but a child in his mind.

“All of this may be very simply remedied, and man can once more return to an appreciation of reality rather than an appreciation of the illusion created by his mind. All that is necessary, my friends, is that he individually avail himself to this appreciation of reality through the process of meditation, for this process stills his active conscious mind, which is continually seeking stimulus within the illusion developed over so many centuries of time upon planet Earth. Very rapidly, then, he can return to an appreciation of the reality in the functioning of the real Creation.

“This, my friends, is what man of Earth must return to if he is to know reality: this simple thought of absolute love, a thought of total unity with all his brothers, regardless of how they might express themselves or whom they might be, for this is the original thought of your Creator.”

The Creation of the Father, then, as Hatonn calls it, has a very simple nature, a nature in which love is the essence of all things and of all their functions.

Yet this “real” Creation obviously is not uppermost in most of our minds because we live in a day-to-day atmosphere to which the Confederation has referred quite often as an illusion.

“We of the Confederation of Planets in the Service of The Infinite Creator have been, for many of your years, aware of many principles of reality. We are aware of these principles because we have availed ourselves to them just as the people of your planet may do.

“It is possible through meditation to totally reduce the illusion that you now experience that creates the separation—an illusory separation—to what it actually is, a total illusion. We have been continuing to speak to you about meditation. We have spoken to you many times about reality and about love and about understanding, and yet you do not seem to be able to overcome the illusion.

“The reason for the illusion, my friends, is one that man on Earth has generated. He has generated it out of desire. This illusion is useful. It is very useful for those who would wish to evolve at a very rapid rate by experiencing it and by using it while within it. Many of us who are now circling your planet would desire to have the opportunity that you have, the opportunity to be within the illusion and then, through the generation of understanding, use the potentials of the illusion. This is a way of gaining progress spiritually and has been sought out by many of our brothers.

“I cannot over-emphasize the necessity of becoming able to understand the nature of the potentials within your illusion and then, by self-analysis and meditation, reacting to that in a way that will express the thought that generated us: the thought of our Creator. This was done by the teacher whom you know as Jesus. This man recognized his position. He recognized the illusion. He understood the reason for the potentials within the illusion, and his reaction to these potentials and activities within the illusion was a reaction which was expressing the thought of The Creator, a thought of love.

“Keep uppermost in your mind that the illusion that you experience is an illusion, that it is surrounding you for the purpose of teaching you. It can only teach you if you become aware of its teachings. It is said that ‘He worked His wonders in mysterious ways.’ This way may seem mysterious; however, it is the way of spiritual evolvment. There are many souls experiencing the illusion in which you find yourself; however, there are few using this illusion to grow. They are not doing this other than at a subliminal level because they have not availed themselves, through their seeking, to a knowledge of the possibility of doing this.

“Once an individual has become aware of the possibility of using the illusion in which he finds himself in your physical world for the progression of spiritual growth, it is necessary that he take the next step and use his knowledge to express, regardless of the potentials which affect him, the love and understanding of his Creator.”

As you have by now become aware, meditation is always suggested as the best means of attaining understanding, of progressing spiritually, and of understanding the nature of the illusion and the purpose for which you are experiencing it. Each person is involved in an illusion or game in which we may, if we wish, use our consciousness in meditation in such a way as to create a more rapid growth in personal evolution. But how do we bring ourselves to the point at which this process, which often seems very difficult, is grasped and begun?

“Desire, my friends, is the key to what you receive. If you desire it, you shall receive it. This was The Creator’s plan, a plan in which all of his parts would receive exactly what they desire. My friends, often in the illusion which you now experience, it seems that you do not acquire what you desire. In fact, the opposite seems to be the case in many, many instances. It is a paradox, it seems, that such a statement should be made and that such apparent results of desire are manifested, and yet we state, without exception, that man receives exactly what he desires. Perhaps, my friends, you do not understand desire. Perhaps this understanding is not within the intellectual mind. Perhaps it will be necessary to spend time in meditation to become aware of your real desire. For, my friends, there is much, much more of you and of The Creation than you presently appreciate with your intellectual abilities in your present illusion.

“It is very difficult for the peoples of this planet to give up their illusion, to give up the preconceived knowledge of what they believe to be cause and effect. However, this is not reality. This is illusion, born of illusion. It is a simple product of the complexity that man upon this planet has generated. Join with us in divorcing your thinking from such complexities and become aware of what has created you, everything that you experience, and everything that is thought. Become aware of your Creator. Become aware of his desire, and when you know this desire, you will know your own, for you and your Creator are one, and you are one with all of his parts and, therefore, all of your fellow beings throughout all of The Creation. When you know his desire, you will feel it. There will be no more confusion. There will be no more questions. You will have found what you have sought. You will have found Love, for this is the desire of your Creator: that all of his parts express and experience the Love that created you. This may be found simply, in meditation. No amount of seeking within the intellectual concepts of your people, no amount of careful planning or careful interpretation of the written or spoken word, will lead you to the simple truth.”

The Confederation messages concentrate a great deal upon the concept of seeking and of desire, feeling that the will of each entity is absolutely central to each entity’s quest for evolution. In fact, they say, free will is at the foundation of the universe. Each entity is conceived not only as being part of One Unity, but also as being a totally unique part of that Unity. Each person’s free will is quite paramount and the Confederation’s concern is always to avoid infringement upon the free will of any person. Their method of contacting man on Earth takes its form from a deep concern for this free will:

“We do not wish to impose our understanding of truth upon your peoples, and this would be something that we would do if we contacted them directly. We could not help it, for our very utterance of truth would be accepted by many of your peoples as being valid. We do not wish to be thought of as the ultimate representatives of The Creator’s truth. We wish to give this to your peoples in such a way so that they may accept or reject this at their own will. This, as we understand it, is a necessary provision in the spiritual evolvment of all mankind: that he be, at some state of his evolution, in a position to accept or reject what is necessary for his evolution. In this way, and only in this way, can he know the truth, the truth of The Creator, that single truth that is The Creation, the truth of the Love of The Creation.

“It must be realized from within. It cannot be impressed from without. We are attempting to stimulate those of your peoples who would be stimulated to seeking this truth that is within them. We have been required, by our understanding of our Creator’s principle, to remain in hiding, for we cannot serve one individual and at the same time do a disservice to his neighbor by proving within his own mind that we exist, for many of those of planet Earth at this time do not desire to believe in or have proof of our existence. For this reason we find it necessary to speak to those who seek through channels such as this one. We find it necessary to give to those who seek that which they seek in such a way that they, for themselves, may appraise its value and accept or reject, on their own terms, those thoughts that we bring, and understand the reality of The Creation in which all of us exist.”

Once the desire to receive this message has been developed, the messages are indeed available, not just from our group but from many so-called contactee or channeling groups around the world. Indeed, you will find little new in the “cosmic” system of philosophy. Those concepts are basic, profound, and simple. The Confederation has a name for one of the great goals of this system of meditation and study—Understanding:

“Many of your peoples are, at this time, seeking outside their illusion. To those who seek, we offer our understanding. We do not attempt to say that we have ultimate wisdom. We only suggest that that which we have to offer may be of value, for we have found, in our experience, as we have passed through the same experiences as those of Earth, that there is a most beneficial direction in seeking to serve. We are acting through instruments, such as those here tonight, to give to those who seek, an understanding. Our presence is meant to stimulate seeking. Through this process, we hope to contact as many of the peoples of your planet as would desire our contact. We hope in the very near future to be able to contact many more of the peoples of your planet, the peoples who would desire understanding. It is difficult to contact those people of your planet because of this, shall I say, mixture of types, but it is well worth our effort if we are able to contact but one.

“We will continue to act as we do now, speaking through instruments such as this one, until a sufficient number of the peoples of your planet have become aware of truth. We are constantly striving to bring, through many channels of communication, the simple message to the peoples of Earth: the simple message that will leave them with a simple understanding of all that there is, and that is

But understanding, that understanding which shows us the Love of an Infinite Creator, is again and again described as being possible far more easily through the processes of meditation than by any other method:

“There are pieces of information that are of importance, and there are pieces of information that are not. Wisdom is a rather lonely matter, my friends. You must accept this truth as you acquire the burden of wisdom. That which you know, you are to be careful of, for what you know in the real Creation has power, and that which you desire is all of the direction which that power will be aimed at; but have faith, my friends, in what you know and what you are learning. Feed your faith and your understanding through meditation. The further that you go along this path, my friends, the more meaningful you will find this simple statement: meditate. It begins as a simple process and, little by little, it becomes a way in which you live. Observe it as you progress along your own spiritual path.”

It is frequently suggested in contactee messages that the state of mind of the seeker has the opportunity of being continuously in a far more pleasant configuration than is the mind of one who is not actively engaged in pursuing a path of self-knowledge and seeking. However, there are other fruits of the path of meditation and seeking which are predictable and which engage the attention of those who channel these messages.

“It is to be remembered, my friends, that service to others is service to one’s self. Notice that we do not say that service is like unto service to one’s self. There is no similarity between others and ourselves. There is identity. There is completion and unity. Therefore, that which is felt of a negative nature towards a sheep of the flock is felt towards one’s self and is felt toward The Creator. This enters the service which you attempt to give to yourself and to The Creator, through service to another, and causes a blot or a stain upon the perfect service you would have performed. It must be remembered that each person is a completely free entity whose independence must in no way be shaken, and yet whose identity remains one with you.”

[Editor’s note: The asterisks here indicate a separation between a quotation from one transcript and a quotation on the same subject from a different transcript.]

“There is only one thing of great importance for you to consider at this time. That is your personal preparation for service. You are to serve your fellow man, and, therefore, it is necessary that you prepare yourselves for this service. This, of course, my friends, is done in meditation. We cannot overemphasize the importance of meditation. Through this technique you will receive answers to all of your questions. It is difficult to realize this, but this is true. All of your questions can be reduced to an extremely simple concept. This you can become aware of in meditation. Once this has been done, you will be ready to serve, just as others have served and are now serving upon your planet. Follow their example; spend time in meditation. Qualify yourself to reach out to your fellow man and lead him from the darkness of confusion, that he is experiencing, back into the Light that he desires.”

One service which the Confederation sources greatly appreciate is that provided by vocal channels which are trained in groups such as the one which we have had in Louisville since 1962. They never suggest in any way that their message is unique or that “salvation” can only be gained by listening to that message. However, they are aware that there are many who seek that message through sources other than orthodox religion and classical philosophy. Consequently, they are here to provide a service of making information available and can only perform their service through vocal channels:

“There are more people upon this planet seeking than there have been in the past. However, many are quite confused in their attempts to seek and there is a need at this time for many more channels, such as this one, who can receive directly the thoughts that so many of the people of this planet are seeking. We are attempting at this time to generate greater numbers of proficient vocal channels who can receive our thoughts quite readily. This requires daily meditation. This is all that is required: daily meditation. It is assumed, of course, that as this daily meditation is performed, there is a desire for our contact.”

As one who has participated in meditation groups for many years, may I suggest that individual meditations not include the attempt to contact Confederation sources. It is best to pursue this attempt only in a group situation, preferably a group which contains at least one experienced receiver. And always, whether meditating alone or in a group, I strongly recommend some means of “tuning” so that the meditation which follows will be at the highest spiritual level possible. This “tuning” can be accomplished in any way preferable to the meditator. The Lord’s Prayer, “Aum-ing” or other singing or chanting, the reading of some inspirational writing, or a careful visualization of the “White Light” of The Creator, are all useful “tuning” methods.

Reincarnation is very basic to the Confederation message. One of the most highly regarded fruits of the meditation and seeking process is the ability of the seeker to penetrate what Ra calls the “forgetting process” which occurs at the time of our birth into this incarnation so that we might become aware of the lessons which we have to learn during this incarnation. These lessons are always along the lines of how to love better, more fully, more deeply, or with more kindness and understanding. However, each entity has unique lessons:

“At the time at which each of you incarnated, my friends, each of you was aware that certain lessons, hitherto unlearned, were to be the goals for achievement in this incarnation. If it seems to you that your entire incarnation within this illusion has been a series of difficulties of one particular type, then you are almost certainly aware, in some manner, of one of your lessons. As you can see, these lessons are not to be avoided. They are to be learned.”

“Further, we must point out to you that, when a confrontation in such a lesson has been achieved, that which separates you from understanding is most often your own thinking. Your conscious thinking processes are quite capable of being self-destructive in the sense that they may aid you to avoid the lesson that you wish in reality to learn. Therefore, as you approach a lesson, we suggest that if it is possible to achieve a temporary abeyance of the conscious, analytical processes, then you may return to the problem with a much clearer mentality, ready to learn what you came to this experience to learn, rather than only to avoid what you came to learn.”

“We know how difficult it is to achieve the meditative state at all times, for we have been where you are and we are aware of that particular type of illusion that you call physical. We urge you, therefore, to depend on meditation of a formal kind, then to attempt a semi-meditative state at all times, and, by this, we mean simply to achieve a state of attention so that your destructive impulses are not free to clog your mind completely and keep you from learning the lessons you came to learn.”

Undergirding all of the lessons that we have to learn about love is the basic concept that all things are one:

“Meditate upon the complete unity of yourself and all that you see. Do this not once, and not simply in present circumstances, but at all times, and especially in difficult circumstances. For insofar as you love and feel at one with those things which are difficult for you, to that extent will those circumstances be alleviated. This is not due to any laws within our physical illusion, but is due to the Law of Love—for that body which is of spirit, which is interpenetrated with the physical body, is higher than your physical body, and those changes which you make by Love upon your spiritual body will, of necessity, reflect themselves within the physical illusion.”

“All is one, my friends. My voice is now the voice of this instrument; my thoughts are her thoughts. Please believe that the vibration we offer to you is not a vibration of personality, but is a vibration of The Creator. We are also channels. There is only one voice. Within this vibration, we are self-consciously aware that this voice is the voice of The Creator. It is simply a matter of lifting vibrations which are not so self-aware of The Creator. All things will eventually come into harmony in relation to your understanding.

“Even if the universe for those around you remains disharmonious and difficult, if your mind is stayed upon the unity of The Creator, your own universe will become harmonious, and this is not by your doing, but by the simple love of The Creator.”

From many sources we have heard that we are in the last days of a particular era of evolution. Popular writers of the Christian faith have taken the writings of the Book Of Revelation and analyzed them in such a way that it is suggested that the days of Armageddon are near at hand. Scientists have written many books exploring the possibility that unusual planetary configurations such as the Jupiter Effect will occur now and in the year 2000, thus enlarging the possibility for Earth changes. Other scientists have examined much evidence indicating that a polar shift by the year 2000 is probable. Prophets such as Edgar Cayce have channeled information having to do with such drastic changes occurring and, in addition, of course, there are our many concerns having strictly to do with the man-made potential for planetary devastation. We also have gathered information in our meetings on the subject of Earth changes:

“There is a season upon your planet which shall be highly traumatic within your physical illusion. The physical reasons for this are varied. Your scientists will spend a great deal of time, while they can, in attempting to catalog and describe each of the conditions which will produce disaster on this physical plane of your planet. That which your scientists speak of is quite so, and will be part of the program which has been predicted by all of those holy works which you have upon the face of the Earth.

“It is not either permissible or possible for us to tell you precisely what events will occur, or when they will occur, due to the fact that the vibration within the mind and heart of the peoples upon your planet is determining and will determine the precise events. There is within the planet Earth a great deal of karma which must be adjusted as the cycle changes, and these things will manifest. Precisely when, and how, we cannot say, nor would we wish to, my friends. For the rain, and the wind, and fire, will destroy only those things which are in what you call the third density of vibration. You may value those things because you cannot imagine what a fourth-density existence will be like. We suggest to you that you spend no time concerning yourselves with the effort of maintaining your third-density existence after the vibration change to fourth density has been completed.

“If, within your spirit, your graduation day has come, those things necessary for your emergence into fourth density will be done for you. All will be accomplished by Helpers which you must be aware that you have.

“It is extremely possible that damage will occur to those things which you identify with yourself in the third density. If we may speak plainly, you will observe the valley of the shadow of death. These very words, my friends, have been spoken to you before, and yet you cling to that physical body and those physical surroundings as though your spirit were attached quite permanently to them.

“May we suggest to you that you can find your spirit neither in your head, nor in your hands, nor in your chest, nor in your legs, nor in your feet, that nowhere can you find your spirit; nowhere can you operate to remove it, nor to aid it. Your spirit resides within a shell. The shell may be removed, but that is no matter. The spirit does not perish.”

What is the metaphysical meaning of this suggested physical trauma of our planet? The Confederation suggests that the planet itself is moving into a new vibration, a new portion of space and time, which many have called the New Age, but into which we shall not be able to enter unless we have indeed learned the lessons of Love which it has been our choice to learn or not to learn for many incarnations. Therefore the Confederation suggests that it is very important to choose to follow the positive path or not to follow it:

“There is a choice to be made very shortly, and it would be preferable if all of the people of this planet understand the choice that is to be made. It will be difficult for many of the people of this planet to understand what this choice is, because it is a choice that they have not considered. They have been much too involved in their daily activities and their confusion and their desires of a very trivial nature to be concerned with an understanding of the choice that they are very shortly to make. Whether they wish to or not, whether they understand it or not, regardless of any influence, each and every one of the people who dwell upon planet Earth will shortly make a choice. There will be no middle area. There will be those who choose to follow the path of Love and Light, and those who choose otherwise.

“This choice will not be made by saying ‘I choose the path of Love and Light’ or ‘I do not choose it’. The verbal choice will mean nothing. This choice will be measured by the individual’s demonstration of his choice. This demonstration will be very easy for us of the Confederation of Planets in His Service to interpret. This choice is measured by what we term the vibratory rate of the individual. It is necessary, if an individual is to join those who make the choice of Love and Understanding, for his rate of vibration to be above a certain minimal level. There are many now who are close to this minimum level, but due to continuing conditions of erroneous thought that prevail upon your surface, they are either fluctuating around this point or are even in some cases drifting away from the path of Love and Understanding. There are many whose vibratory rate at this time is sufficiently high for them to travel with no difficulty into the density of vibration that this planet is shortly to experience.”

At some time in the future, then, something that the Confederation has called “the harvest” will take place. This concept of the Judgment Day differs from the eschatological one in that the one who judges us is not a God apart from us but the God within us. As a result of this harvest, some will go on to a new age of Love and Light, and will learn new lessons in a very positive and beautiful density, as the Confederation calls it. Others will have to repeat this particular grade of lessons and relearn the lessons of Love. Here the Confederation entity, Hatonn, speaks once again of “the harvest” and of the Confederation’s purpose in speaking through contactee groups:

“There is going to be a harvest, as you might call it, a harvest of souls that will shortly occur upon your planet. We are attempting to extract the greatest possible harvest from this planet. This is our mission, for we are the Harvesters.

“In order to be most efficient, we are attempting to create first a state of seeking among the people of this planet who desire to seek. This would be those who are close to the acceptable level of vibration. Those above this level are, of course, not of as great an interest to us since they have, you might say, already made the grade. Those far below this level, unfortunately, cannot be helped by us at this time. We are attempting at this time to increase by a relatively small percentage the number who will be harvested into the path of Love and Understanding.

“Even a small percentage of those who dwell upon your planet is a vast number, and this is our mission—to act through groups such as this one in order to disseminate information in such a fashion that it may be accepted or rejected, that it may be in a state lacking what the people of your planet choose to call proof.

“We offer them no concrete proof, as they have a way of expressing it. We offer them Truth. This is an important function of our mission—to offer Truth without proof. In this way, the motivation will, in each and every case, come from within the individual. In this way, the individual vibratory rate will be increased. An offering of proof or an impressing of this Truth upon an individual in such a way that he would be forced to accept it would have no usable effect upon his vibratory rate.

“This, then, my friends, is the mystery of our way of approaching your peoples.”

Another concept that has come out of the many communications from alleged UFO entities is that of “Wanderers”. They are usually service-oriented people, and, as would be predictable, they often have a great deal of difficulty fitting into the planetary vibrations of Earth. Often they have the feeling that they do not fit in or do not belong, but at the same time, very often, these people are possessed of many gifts, in the arts, in teaching, or in the simple sharing of a cheerful and happy vibration, which certainly does not suggest the normal attitude of a simple malcontent.

This concept is particularly interesting to many people who will be drawn to The Ra Material because, according to that material, much of it will be most easily recognized as being useful by Wanderers. There are not just a few Wanderers on Earth today; Ra suggests a figure of approximately sixty-five million. They have left other densities, in harmonious environments, to take on a kind of job that is most difficult and dangerous, for if a Wanderer cannot at least begin to pierce the forgetting process that occurs at birth into this density during his or her lifetime on planet Earth, and remember the Love and the Light that the person was intended to share, the Wanderer can conceivably become caught in the third-density illusion, collecting what may loosely be termed as karma, and be delayed in arriving again at the home planet until all that is unbalanced in third density in this lifetime has been balanced.

When Don Elkins and I wrote Secrets Of The UFO in 1976, we devoted a chapter to the concept of Wanderers and used material gathered in hypnotic regressions of three women who are friends in this lifetime and who, when separately regressed, gave independent and dovetailing stories of their lives on another planet.

[END QUOTING]

Hatonn here in Light to continue: All things happen for a reason! Why do you suppose that I, Hatonn, was chosen to be featured in the introduction to this work? These are indeed clues for you ones to consider. I do hope you are at least curious about the information offered in this series of books. The Ra Material (The Law Of One) is among the least distorted information brought through to your density in the last 2000 years. You ones would do well for yourselves and others to read the contents of this five-book series. The terminology may be difficult for some of you at first, but with careful consideration you will find that each session has a great deal of subtle information, much of which will only be recognized after the second or third reading.

All sessions, you will find, will begin with a very clear identification of the group consciousness “Ra” and their alignment with Lighted intent. You will also find that the group consciousness also identifies after each and every question. This, in and of itself, is to trigger a recognition (and remind/teach you) that you cannot be certain from one question to the next that you still have the same entity or group communicating that started the session.

There is no room for assumptions, for the mission of Ra was/is to rectify an out-of-balance condition it created around the time of Akhenaton and the Great Pyramid. Also, this method of identification set a precedent for what was expected, and thus having ample identification made it nearly impossible for dark intrusion. In the event of intrusion there would be quite a noticeable lack of what was established as proper identification protocol. Dear friends, you can NEVER be too cautious!

The first book alone deals with the manufacture of the Great Pyramid, robotic animations (or “robotoids”), mind control being used by your “elite”, and the general nature of the duality (polarity) of The Creation. Most importantly this work deals with the Law of One, which states we are all ONE; there is no separation or distinction. When this simple reality is TRULY appreciated and understood, then you will have advanced a major step along your evolutionary journey.

We give honor to those who have worked diligently for the majority of their lives to bring forth this work, and thus make it available to any and all who would be seeking to find the same. These Ground Crew members still run a research organization and the majority of all their resources come from the sale of the various books they have produced, as well as from donations received in thanks from generous souls who recognize the value and importance of their work. Please support these ones in any way you can; your kindness will be reflected back to you a thousand times over.

I am Gyeorgos Ceres Hatonn. I leave you all in the Light and Love of the Infinite One Source that is ALL. Blessings and peace be with you as this Adventure continues to unfold in perfection. Salu!

Ed Note On Magnets & Solar Panels

There's a lot to do these days on top of getting out this newspaper. I wanted to share with you readers a few discoveries I have made related to some outside-the-newspaper projects I am involved with. This information mostly has to do with products and/or services which you may be interested in. If you DO contact any of these, please let them know you read about them here.

- My first discovery is a company that provides magnets for water conditioning or “softening” and automobile fuel-line conditioning for better mileage and performance. Most of the companies supplying such magnets are charging two or three times a reasonable price. This company charges a fair price for great products; call or write for their literature if you're interested:

Magnetizer—The Free Energy Company
5525 Swamp Road
Fountainville, PA 18923-9612
Phone: 215-249-1200
Website: www.magnetizer.com

- The second discovery is for all of you out there who are either “off the grid” completely or working toward having some kind of back-up electrical power from generators, photovoltaics (solar panels), and/or wind generation. The usual costs for this kind of equipment is quite high and many companies are taking advantage of “y2k” fears to charge even more outrageous prices. One company I have found out about (due to a friend who I should have listened to months ago) is financially responsible as well as helpful with alternative energy projects. Call or write to the owner, Carsten (who impresses me as being Ground Crew), of:

Creative Energy Technologies
P.O. Box 304
Summit, NY 12175
Phone: 888-305-0278
Website: www.cetsolar.com

- And related to the above, for those of you who may already have generators powered by gasoline, but might like to be able to easily convert them to run on propane or natural gas through easy-to-install kits (or at least have that option available to you in an emergency), contact Nancy at:

U.S. Carburetion, Inc.
Building B-1
Canvas, WV 26662
Phone: 770-966-1646
Website: www.uscarb.qpg.com

Maybe these sources will be of interest to those of you who are working on projects in these areas of alternative energy systems. It is useful to just have the excellent literature available for your reference which these sources offer.

The Biggest Secret

by David Icke

ISBN: 0-9526147-66

The long awaited NEW RELEASE by David Icke. The Blockbuster of all Blockbusters!! With Stunning information never before released on the murder of Diana, Princess of Wales.

David Icke's most powerful and explosive book to date includes the astonishing background to the murder of Diana, Princess of Wales. Every man, woman, and child on the planet is affected by the stunning information that Icke exposes. He reveals in documented detail how the same interconnecting bloodlines have controlled the planet for thousands of years. How they created all the major religions and suppressed the spiritual and esoteric knowledge that will set humanity free from its mental and emotional prisons. It includes a devastating exposé of the true origins of Christianity and the other major religions and documents the suppressed science, which explains why the world is facing a time of incredible change and transformation. The Biggest Secret also exposes the true and astonishing background to the British Royal Family and, through enormous research and unique contacts, he reveals how and why Diana, Princess of Wales, was murdered in Paris in 1997. This includes information from a close confidant of Diana for nine years, which has never before been made public.

The Biggest Secret is a unique book and is quite rightly dubbed "The book that will change the world." No one who reads it will ever be the same again.

The Reptilian Agenda

Parts I & II

David Icke has produced two amazing videos with the Zulu "sanusi" or shaman, Credo Mutwa, who reveals astonishing information which, until now, was only available to the highest initiates of the African shaman tradition.

He has had attempts on his life and endless threats in an effort to silence him right up to the recording, but, as Credo says, "The world must know this—and know it now."

He reveals how a shapeshifting reptilian race (the "Chitauli" to Africans) has controlled humanity for thousands of years and how their bloodlines are in the positions of royal, political and economic power today.

Credo Mutwa supports all the themes outlined in The Biggest Secret and adds his own unique knowledge and experience of travelling Africa for nearly 80 years.

These videos will re-write the UFO/extraterrestrial story in a way that will blow your mind. UFO researchers have ignored Africa and therefore ignored one of the greatest sources of knowledge on the planet.

While people still argue over Roswell and the extraterrestrial beings apparently found there, African tribespeople have been interacting with these ET "gods" for thousands of years, sometimes eating them, as Credo Mutwa did on one occasion with unforgettable consequences.

Credo has not only seen dead "greys" many times, he has seen them examined behind their "grey" exterior and he knows exactly what they really look like—and it is nothing like we think!

"This is the most amazing man it has ever been my honor to meet—a genius—and the importance of these videos is simply beyond words". — David Icke

After making these videos, Credo was visited by two people from Cape Town who offered him 50,000 rand and a house anywhere in South Africa he would like to name if he would agree to never speak to David Icke again and never have anything to do with him. Credo's reply can be imagined!

Amazing Confirmation that a reptilian extraterrestrial race controlled the world for thousands of years

"the most astonishing man it has been my honour to meet."
